GRAND JURY HEARS D. C. STEPHENSON FOR FIVE HOURS

Ex-"Dragon" Goes From Prison to Testify and Lawyer Says He Had Agreed to Tell All.

DOCUMENTS TAKEN TO INVESTIGATORS

Life Prisoner Quoted as Saying He Bought Politicians in Open Market and Paid Too Much.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 30.—The Marion County grand jury today concluded its examination of D. C. Stephenson in connection with its investigation of alleged political corruption and shortly after 12:30 p. m. Indiana's celebrated life prisoner was whisked to a waiting machine and the return journey to Michigan City State Prison started.

When the jurors concluded their five hours' questioning of Stephenson they reported to Judge James A. Collins that they would not hear witnesses during the month of August, when all the members of the prosecutor's staff are on vacation, but that they would continue in session. Presumably such a course would permit them to examine testimony previously taken and to check over again the evidence now in their possession.

Stephenson, former "grand dragon" of the Ku Klux Klan, serving a life sentence for the murder of Madge Oberholtzer two years ago, was brought to Indianapolis by automobile. It was understood that in recent interviews with Prosecuting Attorney Remy of Marion County, Stephenson had indicated a willingness to testify before the grand jury.

Schaefer appeared during the morning with one of the "black boxes" said to contain important documentary evidence, and he took it and an envelope containing the other documents into the grand jury room.

Ex-"Dragon" Seen Gesticulating.

As the door opened Stephenson was seen in his shirt sleeves talking to the grand jurors and gesticulating vigorously.

Word from the grand jury room was that Stephenson was telling freely of his 1924 connection with Indiana politics and that he was making good his recent promise to "tell all."

Last fall Stephenson was brought to the city to testify before the first of the three grand juries that have investigated the charges of political corruption originally instituted by Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes, Ind., publisher. At that time it was understood that he declined to give any information concerning alleged bargainings for his support by persons now holding high public office. The charges center around the 1924 election. Two previous grand juries have failed to return indictments.

Statement by Attorney.

Robert H. Moore of Michigan City, Ind., attorney for the prisoner, quotes Stephenson as saying: "I will go through with what I have started. I purchased persons involved in the investigation, in the open market. I paid an excessive price for them. Afterwards they railroaded me to prison and convicted me of a crime of which I was not guilty. I can't even have the right to talk with my attorney privately. They denied me that privilege. Now I am going to turn them over to the State of Indiana for a while."

The decision to bring Stephenson to Indianapolis for appearance before the grand jury was reached, Moore said, after Remy had told him the line of questioning he proposed and after Stephenson had expressed his willingness to answer.

Stephenson and an automobile load of guards secretly left the penitentiary at 2 o'clock this morning. They arrived here at 7:30, Stephenson immediately being taken to the grand jury room. The grand jurors arrived immediately after Stephenson and the five-hour executive session started, with only a handful of newspaper men in the corridor. As deputy prosecutors walked in and out, occasional glimpses could be caught of the man who once proclaimed himself "the law in Indiana" talking energetically to the grand jury men, whom he faced across a table. A fat cigar, probably his first in 20 months, inasmuch as prison rules contemplate only pipes, was held in his teeth at a jaunty angle.

Dramatic Departure.

Shortly after 12:30 Stephenson departed. The scene was as dramatic as if he, in his former capacity of master showman, had

CAROL SAYS HE WOULD RETURN TO RUMANIA

Insists Renunciation of Throne Was Forced—Willing to Heed, if Called.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 30.—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania informed the Associated Press today that he still maintains his hereditary rights to the Rumanian throne.

Carol, through an authorized agent, spoke of the acceptance of his renunciation of the throne, which was voted by the Rumanian Government, Jan. 4, 1926, as a forced action.

Carol considers himself authorized to intervene personally, it was stated, although "remaining a loyal patriot."

At 10 o'clock this evening the Paris office of the Associated Press received a telephone call and a voice asked: "Is Mr. Topping there?"

Thomas T. Topping of the Paris staff was summoned to the phone and was given the following message:

"Prince Carol of Rumania authorizes us to declare that his letter of renunciation of the throne signed by him a year and a half ago was imposed upon his dignity under grave circumstances and by persons upon whom he prefers to abstain from passing judgment or giving details.

"Prince Carol affirms that he has no intention of provoking any agitation in his country, but as a father and a Rumanian he has the right and duty to safeguard and watch over the prosperity of his own men. He considers himself as authorized personally to intervene as he always has been and will remain an ardent patriot and loyal Rumanian whose only desire is to be useful to his country.

"Should the Rumanian people address an appeal to him he believes it would be his duty to obey that command."

Confirmation of his decision, which may become momentous in future developments in Rumania was received from Carol at 126 Boulevard Bibeau, Neuilly, where he has been living the life of a retired bourgeois.

"Don't worry about the genuineness of that telephone message," the Prince assured the correspondent of the Associated Press, "that's the way I feel. Don't ask me any more questions."

QUEBEC GREETS TWO PRINCES AND PRIME MINISTER

WEARS UNIFORM OF SCOTTISH REGIMENT

Mayor Welcomes Guests in Two Languages After Royal Salute of 21 Guns Is Fired in Their Honor.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Canada, July 30.—Two Princes and a Prime Minister came to Quebec today, and while the welcome for the trio was tumultous, the gladdest of the glad hands was for "the Prince."

The great reception to the Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, suggested to bystanders that he is first in the hearts of his countrymen across the seas.

Accompanied by his younger brother, Prince George, and Stanley Baldwin, the first Prime Minister in office to visit Canada, the Prince came ashore from the steamer Empress of Australia to find the Canadians primed to do him every honor. They had been set for several hours.

The Prince of Wales wore a serious look under his bright plaid Glengarry (a Highland cap), a part of his Colonel's uniform of the Seaforth Highlanders. As he left the liner to board a tug for the King's Wharf, and the formal welcome waiting there, girls and boys in small craft about the huge three-funneled Empress of Australia, broke into cheers. He smiled brightly at them.

American Students Sing.

There was an American angle to the Prince's reception. The Glee Club of Ohio Wesleyan University, returning from England on the Empress of Australia, sang him over the side with 'God Save the King" and "O Canada."

The Prince was very Scotch. His Seaforth Highlander's uniform with its khaki coat, bright boots and plaid breeches, topped off by the Glengarry, made it easy to identify him as he mounted the wharf among the scores of army and navy officers escorting him. He did not wear kilts, however.

He stepped ashore in company with Mackenzie King, Canadian Premier, and Narcisse Perodeau, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec, as the royal salute of 21 guns boomed from the citadel, high above the wharf. The Royal 22d Regiment stood at rigid attention as the regimental band played the first eight bars of "God Save the King," the Prince coming to a smart salute.

As the music stopped, "the royal salute," was the sharp command, and the click of rifles being presented left the guard of honor in order for review. The Prince of Wales walked between the ranks, saying a word here and there to the soldiers, many of whom wore decorations conferred for service in the World War. Prince George and Prime Minister Baldwin followed.

Mayor Uses Two Languages.

After the official introductions, Mayor Valmont Martin delivered the formal welcome of the city of Quebec to the Princes and Premier, delivering one address to the Prince of Wales and Prince George in both French and English, then making Prime Minister Baldwin welcome in both languages.

The Prince of Wales replied briefly but heartily, speaking in French, for his brother and himself, while Mr. Baldwin made his response, also brief, but appreciative, in English.

As the ceremonies at the wharf were concluded and the procession moved away there was wild cheering from the populace.

After the formal reception on King's Wharf, the two princes were driven off in an open car accompanied by a mounted escort of Royal Canadian dragoons in scarlet and gold. Premier King and Premier Baldwin followed in an open car. As the party moved off rounds of cheers went up for the visitors.

Baldwin Greets Reporters.

The Prime Minister received two score newspaper men on the Empress of Australia. The reporters were taken to the liner in midstream before the visitors landed. As the tug was jockeying for position by the big ship's side, Mr. Baldwin stuck his head through a port hole with a smile and cheery wave of the hand, which held his ever-present pipe.

Mr. Baldwin spoke first of a visit he had made to Canada with a friend from Cambridge 30 years ago.

"If I am rightly informed," he

MAN TO SPY OUT SMOKE FROM ROOF OF BELL BUILDING

Abatement League Observer With Binoculars Will Report Offenders in Wide Field.

An observer of the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League is to be stationed on the roof of the Bell Telephone Building, 375 feet above the sidewalk, to watch for and report violations of the smoke ordinance. He will use binoculars and spend most of the working hours of the day on this airy vantage point.

E. G. Engel of 4441 Clarence avenue, employed by the league as instructor and observer, will have the post. It is expected he will be able to spot violations in the large area between the river and Grand boulevard and for several miles north and south from the downtown district. The only obstruction to his view will be the new Civil Courthouse, to the southwest.

Smoke abatement is expected to be aided by the psychological effect of having this watcher on duty, without resort to prosecution if it can be avoided.

ALLEGED DEFAMER OF ITALY GIVEN 12 YEARS IN PRISON

Youth Who Spent Two Years in Boston Admitted Dealings With Anti-Fascisti in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 30.—Convicted of "having spread lies abroad about Italy's internal condition, hence damaging the nation's credit and prestige," Manlio Chiossone, 20 years old, was sentenced to 12½ years' imprisonment by a special military tribunal today.

Chiossone returned to Italy last January after being deported from the United States, it is said. Chiossone is reported to have spent two years in Boston, being deported when it was found he had entered the United States clandestinely, although he is alleged to have fought deportation by asserting that he would be killed by order of Premier Mussolini if taken back to Italy.

No witnesses appeared against Chiossone. He admitted having dealings with anti-Fascisti in America but said he was tricked into them.

GREENE COUNTY DEPUTY HELD ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGES

R. V. Morris Released at Springfield, Mo., Under $8000 Bond in Investigation of Collector's Office.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 30.—R. V. (Ruff) Morris, for 21 years a deputy in the office of the Greene County Collector of Revenue, was arrested tonight on four charges of embezzlement of county funds. He furnished bond of $8000.

This is the first arrest as the result of the grand jury inquiry into the conduct of the office of collector of revenue during the time W. E. Banks was collector. The inquiry will continue and there were intimations that other indictments might be returned.

Morris refused to make any statement other than to say, "It will all come out in the trial."

CARRIES FULL SAIL 40 DAYS

Schooner Makes 3600-Mile Voyage in Light Winds.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 30.—The two-masted schooner, Mary Elizabeth, arrived in Port today from Brava, Cape Verde Islands, with the record of having voyaged 40 consecutive days with all nine sails set, and without once having lowered or reefed canvas. Veteran mariners here assert that such a feat never before has been accomplishd in a trans-Atlantic passage. The Mary Elizabeth covered 3600 nautical miles.

Most of the voyage, Capt. Henry Rose said, was made in barely enough wind to furnish steerage.

SEES PANACEA IN $5 DIVORCES

Chicago Judge Believes Easier Decrees Would End Evils.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A cheap divorce might solve the problem of congested courts, one of Chicago's most experienced divorce judges suggested today.

"I don't know but that the laws should fix it so that two persons who are tired of living together could go to the County Clerk, pay $5 and get a divorce," said Judge Joseph B. David, in a side remark from the bench. "The man cheats the wife. The wife cheats the husband. They both cheat the children and conspire to cheat the Judge. After all, why gum up the courts with fraudulent divorces?"

Newspapers Use Carrier Pigeons.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 30.—Newspapers on the French Riviera are using carried pigeons to cover important sporting events. When the Tour de France—the bicycle race around France—came through the district reports of the race were brought in every 30 minutes by pigeons. It was estimated that the newspapers gained two hours over the usual wire service, since much of the course was through mountainous country where the telephone is unknown.

SACCO-VANZETTI DECISION MAY BE GIVEN THIS WEEK

Gov. Fuller Says Illness of His Son Is Not Likely to Delay His Action in Case of Radicals.

RULING LOOKED FOR BY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Executive Works on His Opinion, Which, if For Clemency, Must Be Passed on by Council.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 30.—Despite added cares that came to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller today with the sudden illness of his little son, the Governor let it be known tonight that there was little likelihood that his decision in the Sacco-Vanzetti case would be delayed. Last night he had intimated that he would probably announce the decision "some time Wednesday night."

The favorable reaction of the Governor's 12-year-old son, Alvan Jr., after an operation for appendicitis, performed today at the Massachusetts General Hospital, enabled Gov. Fuller to return to his summer home at Rye Beach and resume work on the preparation of his decision in the famous case. It had been intimated at the State House earlier that the illness in his family would cause the Governor to delay completion of this task.

Executive Works on Opinion.

Gov. Fuller spent several hours today on the case and planned to devote a part of tomorrow to preparation of his decision. On Monday at the State House he will interview several witnesses and continue at his study of the case. The Governor's council will meet Wednesday, at which time it had been expected the executive would present his findings to that body.

Physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital reported that young Alvin was doing very well, and probably would be able to leave the institution in ten days.

In view of a meeting called on Boston Common tomorrow in the interests of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, internationally known radicals condemned for murder, an extra force of guards was placed on duty at the State House, effective tonight.

Their respite, granted to permit the Governor to complete his investigation into the case, expires on Aug. 10. The executive council, which has the power to approve or disapprove any recommendation by the Governor for pardon, commutation or further reprieve, will meet on Aug. 3. That will be its last regular meeting before the date the respite expires. Should the Governor refuse to interfere with execution of the death sentence, the council would have no say in the matter.

Advice Not to Despair Is "Nonsense," Sacco Says.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Nicola Sacco, who, with Bartolomeo Vanzetti, is awaiting the outcome of the inquiry being made by Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts into their conviction and death sentence, declared in a letter today that "only an international clamor will free us."

In answer to a letter from H. S. Valkenburgh of the Student Sacco-Vanzetti Committee, advising him not to despair, Sacco called such advice "blind optimism" and "nonsense."

"They will kill us if the voice of our comrades does not become a mighty one and is not backed by the will to do whatever is necessary to achieve victory," Sacco wrote.

EDISON BACK OF RUBBER FIRM

Experiments in Production of Product to Be Conducted.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—Organized to carry out the newest venture of Thomas A. Edison, the cultivation of rubber, the Edison Botanic Research Corporation, today filed articles of incorporation here. The principal object is "to carry on and conduct experimental and research work relating to the production of rubber" from vegetation and to make objects either in whole or part from rubber. The corporation also may engage in wholesale and retail merchandising and export and import products.

BRITISH TO TRY AGAIN TO SAVE NAVAL PARLEY

MUDDLE IS FAULT OF PROPAGANDA, HE SAYS

U. S. Offers New Treaty to Great Britain Permitting Signatories to Challenge Others' Programs.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, July 30.—Viscount Robert Cecil of Great Britain told the Post-Dispatch correspondent today that the conference would not collapse Monday. He virtually admitted his Government had not made its last proposal. Nevertheless, he said, it was up to the Americans to make concrete proposals and that on these proposals rested the progress or failure of the conference.

Lord Cecil blamed the muddled situation on certain elements of the press and on propagandists, whom he charged with consistently misrepresenting the conference's divergencies, both in the United States and England.

The United States delegation to the Naval Arms Conference has offered a treaty to Great Britain whereunder any signatory could at any time challenge the building program of another Nation and could abrogate the treaty with a year's notice. The offer was made with full approval by President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg.

Naval Expert Made Plan.

This feature is embodied in what is known as the Dulles plan, conceived by Allen Dulles, a New York naval expert attached to the American delegation. The full plan will be made public Monday at the plenary session.

"If any high contracting party feels at any time that the authorized or contemplated building by any signatory or other power calls for a readjustment of tonnage levels here in agreed upon," the plan reads, "that signatory may, after 1931, by giving six months' notice, demand a conference of the signatories to study the situation with a view toward readjustment. If agreement is impossible, the treaty can be terminated on a year's notice."

On Britain's recognition of the United States' demand for the right to utilize the total tonnage of auxiliary naval vessels in any way it sees fit depends the success or failure of the conference. Britain's demand is that restrictions be placed on the number and kind of vessels to be built within the limit of total tonnage.

The six months' notice of the calling of an emergency conference was injected to allow Japan and other distant points time to prepare and send delegations.

Plans Made up to 1931.

The reason for making the Dulles clause effective only after 1931 is that building programs until that time are fairly well mapped out and any ominous construction would come only after that time.

The delegation conferred among themselves today. The Japanese drafted a tentative statement for Monday.

JAPANESE TRYING TO SAVE SITUATION

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 30.—The Tripartite Naval Conference faces a showdown at the plenary session scheduled for Monday.

Efforts today to obtain an adjournment of six months or a year in order to give the conferees time for further reflection did not succeed and nothing had been done tonight to prevent the holding of the plenary session Monday.

Information in authoritative quarters tonight tended to show that either Viscount Ishii or Admiral Sato of Japan would endeavor to mediate to the extent of urging W. C. Bridgeman, British delegate, and Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, to keep Monday's plenary session within moderate bounds. Bridgeman may be asked to confine his remarks to an explanation of the latest British plan and Gibson simply to explain why the Americans could not accept the British scheme, if

TWO DIE IN JUMPING FROM BLAZING PLANE

Bodies Burned and Monoplane Destroyed at Oaklawn, a Chicago Suburb.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Caught in a blazing monoplane 700 feet above the ground, a flying instructor and a student aviator were killed tonight when they jumped to escape the flames.

The blazing plane crashed, a twisted mass of wreckage, in Oaklawn, a suburb, beside the bodies of its victims. Many of the village's residents witnessed the accident.

The bodies were identified as George Zabriski, 28 years old, instructor, and James Rose, 30, a student, both of Chicago, by Nimmo Black, head of the Aviation Service & Transport Corporation, which employed Zabriski.

Witnesses said they saw a puff of smoke and heard an explosion when the plane was at an altitude of about 700 feet. The pilot apparently made a desperate effort to effect a quick landing. As he headed nose down the monoplane burst into flames. When about 200 feet from the ground, one of the men, his clothes ablaze, leaped to his death, and a moment later, the second occupant, his clothing also in flames, jumped from the cockpit. Neither carried a parachute.

The crash was the second here this week. In the earlier one three persons were killed. As a result of the first crash Cook County authorities have applied to the Government for permission to regulate flying.

RS-1 HOVERS OVER BUFFALO AWAITING DAYLIGHT LANDING

Begins Circling Over City at 1 A. M., After Flight Starting at Lakehurst at Noon.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 31.—The RS-1, the Army semi-rigid dirigible, passed over Buffalo airport shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and began to circle over the city. No effort will be made to bring the airship to anchor until about 4 a. m., it was said. Rain was falling but there was only a light wind.

The RS-1 took off from the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., at noon today, headed for Buffalo. Fourteen officers and men and one news photographer are aboard the airship.

Lieutenant-Colonel John E. Paegelow, commanding the ship, said the RS-1 would fly to her home field at Scott Field, Ill., by way of Dayton, O., and St. Louis. The dirigible reached Lakehurst Tuesday night from Bolling Field, Washington. Low pressure to the north and south caused postponement of the ship's takeoff until today.

FORD PROMISES NEW CARS WILL OUTNUMBER OLD; NOT SEEKING WAR

Plans for Production to Exceed, in Less Time, the 15,000,000 T Models Put Out in 19 Years.

PERSONALLY TESTS SPEED AND MOTOR

Talks of Business on His 64th Birthday — Says Trade Friction Would Upset Automobile Industry.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 30. — Henry Ford believes an automotive trade war would be wasteful and bad policy for all companies concerned; that the dreaded saturation point in automobile production is a myth; he does not plan abandoning the low priced car field and believes his company will surpass its own record of producing 15,000,000 cars in 19 years, with the new Ford car soon to be introduced on the market.

The industrial wizard expressed views on subjects which have been the basis of sensational rumors during the last few months to a group of associates here today, on the occasion of his sixty-fourth birthday.

No Desire For a Trade War.

In reference to the trade war rumor, Ford declared:

"We have no desire to take business away from any automobile manufacturer. Our thought has always been that the automobile business is prosperous only when all of the makers of cars are busy. If any particular automobile company's success meant putting out of business some other automobile manufacturer, there would be no gain to that; it would only mean putting thousands of men out of work, letting valuable power go to waste and may be, throwing a great industry out of balance."

Discussing the saturation point bugaboo, Ford said the best expression of his views on that subject could be gleaned from the fact that he planned to go far beyond previous production records in the coming years.

Expects to Increase Production.

"We built 15,000,000 models of cars in less than 19 years and we expect to build many more than 15,000,000 of the new cars in much less than 19 years.

"That might sound strange, but you must realize there are still parts of the world where there are many families without automobiles. There are some parts of the world where whole families have never seen an automobile."

Ford would not discuss the details of design of his coming new car. He said he expected to announce a complete description of the new model within a few weeks. Of the many rumors circulated about the new car Ford said most were misleading.

"There's the matter of price, for example. We didn't build this new Ford to fit a price, but we are certainly not abandoning the low-priced field."

Tests New Car for Speed.

Ford revealed that he had been testing out his new car for the last several months over Michigan roads. Wednesday and Thursday of this week were spent in making motor and speed tests throughout upper Michigan with his son Edsel, the magnate said.

It has been a practice of Ford to handle all such tests personally. He said he had been experimenting with new and improved types of automobiles for several years and had actually built many new experimental models.

"But it is one thing to build experimental models in a laboratory and a very different thing to retool the biggest manufacturing plants in the world for mass production of new models," he said.

Ford discussed the passing of his famous Model T car, upon which the foundation of his huge fortune was built, with regret. The old car built the experience and earned the money to make the new car possible, he said. The company has paid $547,000,000 into the coffers of the treasury in taxes on these cars and has expended money running into the billions of dollars in salaries to employes.

Billions of Dollars Spent.

He said that during the period of manufacture of the model T salaries and wages paid totaled $1,970,414,172.20, or an average of $100,000,000 a year. In addition, he said, dealers have paid salaries for service employes totalling $1,333,800,000, and the same dealers

SAYS WATERWAYS WILL BENEFIT BY RAIL-WATER RATE

Gen. Ashburn Regards Commerce Commission Ruling an Important Gain for River Service.

RAILROADS MUST AGREE ON TARIFFS

Fight for Principle Granted Has Been Carried on for Years, Says Chairman of Corporation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Major-General T. Q. Ashburn, executive chairman of the Inland Waterways Corporation, in commenting on the decision today of the Interstate Commerce Commission establishing a 15 per cent diffential for joint rail-water hauls on the Upper Mississippi River, declared that the Commission's action was one of the most important events in recent waterways transportation history.

By the Commission's tentative order, the waterways corporation, the shippers in the Northwest territory and the railroads serving this territory within the next 45 days must submit to the Commission joint water and rail freight tariffs which will be 15 per cent less than the present all-rail rates.

The new tariffs must use as a yardstick the present all-rail rates between Dubuque, Ia., and St. Paul and Minneapolis. A 20 per cent differential now is employed in the joint rates on the Lower River.

"This decision means that the railroads must now make joint rail rates with the Upper River service," Gen. Ashburn said. "We have such joint rates on the Lower River. The 15 per cent, instead of a 20 per cent differential, is acceptable to the barge service. This means that our charges will be slightly higher on the Upper River in comparison with the Lower but we can make our own rates for the all-water hauls. One of the most important points about the decision is that the railroads must consult with us about routes. We have been fighting for this principle for years and now we have it embodied in an I. C. C. decision."

Ashburn added that the decision came at an opportune time because the waterways corporation expected to put three new towboats and 15 barges in operation on the upper river, Aug. 15, and expected to have a fleet of four towboats and 60 barges in service by the end of the year.

Opposition to the waterways corporation plan for joint rail and water routes and rates came principally from the Chicago Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and the Illinois Central Railroads. All these lines, excepting the Illinois Central, were wholly averse to participating with the barge line in through routes and joint rates, particularly in differential rates, the decision said. These carriers contended that without an increase in their facilities they could handle from 25 to 100 per cent more traffic than now.

The South Dakota Railroad Commission intervened in opposition to the establishment of the differential routes and rates on the grounds that differential rates into the Twin Cities would throw a burden on other traffic. Similar views were expressed before the commission by commercial interests of Sioux Falls and Watertown.

RECORD SWORDFISH CAUGHT

Brother of Zane Grey Lands Specimen Weighing 588½ Pounds.

By the Associated Press.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., July 30.—What is said to be the world's record broadbill swordfish was caught in Catalina Channel yesterday by R. C. Grey, brother of Zane Grey, novelist and sportsman.

The fish weighed 588½ pounds, 6½ pounds more than the previous record fish, caught by Zane Grey. It gave the angler a 4¼-hour battle before it was landed. The great broadbill was hauled aboard the cruiser Gladiator with block and tackle, and brought here for weighing.

The catch was made with rod and reel on 39-thread line. The fish measured 13 feet 1 inch in length, 5 feet in girth and had a sword of 46 inches.

have paid other employes such as salesmen and office employe, $380,000,000. Authorized repair shops affiliated with the organization have paid salaries and wages totaling $1,778,400,000.

In addition Ford explained $4,868,427,012 has been expended in this country, Canada and abroad during the last 19 years for materials used in construction of the cars.

Before the last of the Model T cars have gone into the junk heap, the entire fleet of 15,000,000 will have consumed 60,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 1,800,000,000 gallons of oil and will have traveled more than 1,185,000,000,000 miles, Ford said.

Says He Is in Best of Health.

Ford spent his birthday engaged in his usual busy routine of business affairs. He had no time to celebrate, he said, but declared himself to be in the best of health and planning an even bigger task than he has accomplished thus far.

"I am in better health than I was four years ago," Ford said. "More fit in every way. You see I have a job to do," alluding to the work of preparing introduction of his new car.

Ford arose early this morning and issued instructions regarding an entertainment tonight at the Dearborn Country Club. He was at his laboratories at 8 a. m. conferring with his engineers. An hour later he inspected some antiques and then toured the Dearborn plant of the company. In the afternoon, he took a trip to the Fordson plant to inspect some new boilers. The remainder of the day was spent in conferences with assistants and inspection of plans for the new car.

"I am going to do one thing only—the thing I know best how to do," Ford told Firestone.

CAPPER TO DISCUSS FARM MEASURES WITH PRESIDENT

Kansas Senator Will Arrive at Summer White House Monday—Mrs. Wilbur There.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 30.—Another opportunity to discuss the agricultural situation, especially farm relief, which might be afforded through broader co-operative marketing facilities, will be given President Coolidge Monday, when Senator Capper of Kansas arrives to be a guest at the summer white house. The Kansas Senator is an advocate of co-operative marketing and was expected to bring suggestions to the summer white house regarding any relief which Congress might be asked to provide next winter in place of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill. Mr. Capper is a member of the Senate Agricultural Committee.

A publisher of a Kansas farm journal, Senator Capper was the sponsor in the Senate of the first co-operative marketing bill passed about three years ago.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge today welcomed Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, as a guest at the game lodge. Mrs. Wilbur will be followed by the Secretary as soon as the naval armament deliberations at Geneva have been concluded.

EAST ST. LOUIS MAN KILLS SELF IN PRESENCE OF WIFE

His breath smelling of liquor, William B. Lancaster of 2733 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, a lumber handler, kissed his wife when he arrived home yesterday afternoon.

"Are you angry, dear?" he asked her.

Then he stood within the front door, put a revolver to his head and fired, killing himself. His wife said they had quarreled previously because he drank. He was 39 years old.

LEVINE FLIES TO ENGLAND LEAVING DROUHIN BEHIND

Rumors of Friction With French Pilot Over Financial Affairs Revived in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 30.—Talk of discord between Charles A. Levine and Maurice Drouhin, the French flyer whom he has engaged to pilot the airplane Columbia on a return Trans-Atlantic flight, was again brought to mind today when Levine departed for England and left Drouhin behind.

Levine went as a passenger on board the "Flying Pig," a special plane held in reserve by one of the big air lines for emergencies.

A few minutes after the "Flying Pig" took off Drouhin arrived. After visiting the shed sheltering the "Columbia" and finding the plane still there, he motored away to a Paris hospital to visit Mme. Drouhin, who soon is to become a mother.

Besides unsettled money matters, there is also the question of whether Levine or Drouhin is to steer the "Columbia" on the Trans-Atlantic flight. Thus far Levine and Drouhin have been working under a preliminary contract providing for the deposit of 300,000 francs (about $12,000) in a French bank for the benefit of Mme. Drouhin in the even of a fatal termination of the flight, with 100,000 francs to go to Drouhin if Levine should fail to carry out the agreement.

It was further provided that Drouhin should be paid 3000 francs weekly for his expenses during the tuning up of the "Columbia," according to friends of the French aviator. This week Drouhin, it is understood here, gave the owner of the Columbia to understand that he would not enter the cockpit of the plane until he saw the color of the money.

HOME BREW IN KEGS SEIZED IN EAST ST. LOUIS SALOON

Police Also Confiscate Bottled Beer in "Wholesale" Establishment.

Home brew by the barrel was found by prohibition agents in a raid on a saloon at 355 East Broadway, East St. Louis, yesterday afternoon. In addition to 26 cases of bottled home brew, hundreds of empty bottles, a large quantity of mash and 10 quarts of colored alcohol labeled "Canadian Whisky," the agents reported they found 21 half-barrels of home brew in the basement.

They said the place was a wholesale distribution center and that the home brew was being sent out to saloons in barrel lots.

Charles Shaffer, in charge of the place when the raiders arrived, was arrested and held under $3000 bond after he had been arraigned before United States Commissioner Felsen.

Two other men also were arrested by East St. Louis prohibition agents yesterday. Zeke Zimmerman of 712 Converse avenue was arrested in his home after a roadster with 13 gallons of alcohol stored in it had been captured in front of the house. Sidney Brown was arrested in a raid on his saloon at 217 North Sixth street. A small quantity of whisky was found, the raiders said.

GRAND JURY AT INDIANAPOLIS GETS STEPHENSON STORY

planned it. The chauffeur dashed down the two flights of stairs, followed by Stephenson and his two guards. The former hopped into his car and started racing the motor as the latter three walked briskly through the crowd of curious spectators that had formed. Stephenson waved to a few acquaintances and, as he stepped into the car, shook hands with one man. A final throb of the motor and the former political czar was swept in the prison car out into the swirl of noonday traffic in which the trail of blue smoke from the automobile's exhaust pipe was lost as it turned a corner.

At one time or another during Stephenson's appearance before the grand jury, Lloyd O. Hill, Michigan City, one of his attorneys, and Miss Mildred Meade, his former secretary and confidant, appeared and were admitted to the jury room. Miss Meade, who could not be found during the first investigation last fall, greeted Stephenson cordially, he shook hands with her, chatting for a moment before both turned to the jurors to answer questions jointly.

Stephenson had no sooner been taken away than attention was turned to the expected arrival here of Gov. Ed Jackson, one of the officials mentioned repeatedly in the corruption allegations, who has been at Mackinac Island, Mich., for the last few days.

said, "your population has doubled in 37 years. That is very remarkable, and I expect to see a great many changes in other directions. My only regret is that the time at my disposal is short."

Mr. Baldwin said he had been looking forward to the present trip.

"I am not coming here to try to teach you," he went on, "but to try to interpret my own country to Canada. And I hope to secure sufficient information during the time at my disposal to learn your problems and to learn your way of looking at imperial questions that I may interpret them when I get home.

"What we in Europe feel is this: We have a tremendous lot of old problems of which you are free. Instead of having to look back to the past, you can look forward to the future. Sometimes our progress is so slow that we feel we shall hardly be able to see out of the fog.

"Nothing is more refreshing than to come over here where everything is so young—where you can look at problems, if I may say so, with the eyes of youth. I hope to get the benefit of that atmosphere and I hope it will be to the benefit of our people when I get back."

NEWMAN, HYLAND ARE DRESSED IN AT STATE PRISON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MENARD, Ill., July 30.—Two more of the Birger gang went behind prison bars here this afternoon when Art Newman and Ray Hyland, under life sentences for conspiracy in the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, were dressed in as convicts at Southern Illinois Penitentiary.

They left their leader, Charlie Birger, facing a death sentence in the Franklin County jail at Benton.

In prison they will see Harry Thomasson, another Birgrite, whose confession in the Adams case, brought about their convictions and that of Birger. He is serving a life sentence. Of other Birgerites Freddie Wooten is serving a year and a day at Atlanta for stealing an automobile and Riley Simmons is serving a sentence at Leavenworth for the same offense.

Newman and Hyland were brought to Chester by train in charge of four Franklin County Deputy Sheriffs. They appeared to be in good spirits, laughing and waving to pedestrians on the ride by automobile through the streets of Chester to the penitentiary. Both had feared death sentences and the lesser punishment was a relief. They announced after motions for a new trial were overruled that they would not appeal.

Birger's henchmen have hopes of being used as witnesses in clearing up other crimes laid to the Birger gang and believe such service to the State may bring them clemency. Counsel for the gang leader are preparing his appeal to the Supreme Court and an insanity plea as a last resort to save him from the gallows is considered a possibility.

LAWYER SIGNS BOND FOR U. S. SENATE IN VARE CASE

Surety in Appeal By Reed Committee Said Be First Time in History Such Was Required.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—Michael Francis Doyle, Philadelphia lawyer, today went on the bond of the United States Senate in Federal Court. The court yesterday issued an order restraining the destruction of ballots cast in Delaware County, Pa., in the last senatorial election. The order was made at the request of Jerry C. South, special counsel for the Reed Senate Investigating Committee, which desires to inquire into the election contest brought by William B. Wilson, Democrat, against William S. Vare, Republican, who holds the certificate of election as United States Senator.

The bond covers the costs in the case, which has been appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and is to guarantee the bond South himself put up for the costs. While Doyle's bond is not actually the bond of the Reed committee itself, it is in a sense the Senate's obligation as South is acting for it.

"I consider this quite a compliment," Doyle observed as he signed the bond, "as it is the first time the United States Senate has been required to give a bond for anything."

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A majority of the Senate Elections Committee has authorized Chairman Watson to impound the ballots cast in the last Pennsylvania Senatorial election, it was announced today at Watson's office. Receipt of a telegram today from Senator George, of Georgia, a Democratic member of the committee giving his approval made a total of seven members who were willing to have the ballots impounded.

LINDBERGH ON QUIET OUTING

Flyer Crosses From Buffalo Into Canada for Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 30.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today enjoyed his first real rest and recreation since starting on his air tour of the United States ten days ago. Miles from Buffalo, at a point "somewhere in Canada," presumably on the north shore of Lake Erie, the youthful trans-Atlantic flyer was given an opportunity to re-discover the joy of being an ordinary human being.

The Colonel was recognized by few persons as he sped through Southern Ontario today. After a picnic luncheon in an isolated bit of woodland, Lindbergh went on a fishing trip in an outrigger skiff, but here for once Lindy's luck failed him. Some fish nibbled at his line, and others swam around, but not one was hooked. The party next went swimming and then retired to their cottage for an informal dinner.

WHEELER REPLIES TO GOV. RITCHIE

Charges Repudiation of Obligation of Office by Attitude Toward Liquor Issue.

By the Associated Press.

SHELBY, Mich., July 30—Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League, replied today to the refusal of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland to a debate on the prohibition question at the University of Michigan.

"Gov. Ritchie repudiates the obligations placed on him as Governor by the Federal Constitution to "help uphold and enforce the Eighteenth Amendment in his State," Wheeler said. "He opposes the State enforcement code and is against the national enforcement act. Without enforcement laws the Constitution would be nullified.

"If Gov. Ritchie does not want to defend his record and his theories in a public debate, since he is a candidate for President, let him tell the people how the Constitution can be enforced in Maryland under his plan.

"I may be a special pleader for the prohibition cause, as Gov. Ritchie charges, but that position is more tenable than to be Governor of a State and repudiate obligations to the Federal Constitution."

"Gov. Ritchie admits that 'there are several reasons' which might prevent his debating with me at Ann Arbor, and then gives one reason only, his personal dislike of me and my methods. The people are not interested in what Gov. Ritchie thinks of me or of what I think of him.

"Let him tell the people if he favors state or local officers enforcing the provisions of the national prohibition act in Maryland, which are enforceable by such officers—especially since it is their duty to do so. Does the Governor think that any state has the right to ignore any provision of the Federal Constitution or that its obligations can be avoided except by repeal by constitutional methods?"

Buster Keaton's Nose Broken.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 30.—Buster Keaton, film comedian, suffered a broken nose in a baseball game here late yesterday and the injury may temporarily hold up filming of scenes in which he appears. The accident occurred while an indoor baseball team of moving picture people was playing a local team. Keaton, catcher for the "movie" team, removed his mask in the eighth inning. A few minutes later a fast ball crashed into his nose.

BOAT SURVIVORS VARY IN STORY OF DISASTER

Some Tell Coroner of "Rotten" Life Belts; Others Say They Were Good.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Widely differing stories of the safety of the excursion boat Favorite, which capsized here Thursday with a loss of 27 lives, were told investigators of the tragedy today.

Survivors declared at the Coroner's inquest that life belts were "rotten," while others informed Federal steamboat inspectors that the Favorite's belts were in good condition.

A father who lost two sons after saving his wife, charged two members of the excursion boat's crew of five paddled away from the scene on a life raft and made no effort to save the 71 passengers struggling in the water or caught in the submerged craft. Several who escaped said the crew worked to rescue their charges until nearly exhausted.

Two of the four investigations started yesterday have been concluded. The State's Attorney's office has ended its inquest, stating that no evidences of criminality were found. The Police Department also has discontinued looking into the tragedy.

The inquest, however, will be resumed Tuesday, and Federal officials will hold open a report of their finding until others aboard the boat have had an opportunity to testify. D. Hoover, chief of Federal steamboat inspection, is conducting the investigation for the Government. Assisting him is Frederick J. Meno of Detroit, district inspector.

Out of the various inquiries officials hope will come new regulations for lake craft to prevent a reoccurance of Thursday's disaster.

Hultiple funerals of the victims will be held tomorrow and Monday. Four were buried yesterday. the defense of Capt. Arthur Olson's ability as a navigator.

Eugene McDonald, sportsman and explorer, a yachtsman of long experience on the lake, came to the defense of Capt. Arthur Dison's ability as a navigator.

"I consider the Favorite the most seaworthy of all the excursion launches on the lake front," he declared.

TWO ST. LOUISANS SHOT TO DEATH BY CHICAGO PHYSICIAN

Victims Were Gilbert Farris, 25, and Carl J. Kuessner, 30, World War Veterans.

IDENTIFICATIONS BY RELATIVE OF ONE

Doctor Who Testified They Tried to Rob Him in Office, Ordered Held After Inquest.

Two young men, shot to death by a Chicago physician in his office Thursday night, under circumstances now being investigated, were identified yesterday as St. Louisans who had been war "buddies."

John L. Close of 5082 Milentz avenue, accountant employed by the St. Louis-Southwestern Railroad, informed St. Louis police that one of the men was his brother-in-law, Gilbert Farris, 26 years old, former Washington University student, and the other was Carl J. Kuessner Jr., 30, of 3403A Utah street, mechanic and one-time honor guard for President Wilson's peace party.

The two men left St. Louis about six months ago for Chicago, Farris to work as a salesman and Kuessner as an automobile mechanic and electrician, according to letters they wrote back to St. Louis.

Farris Washington U. Student.

Farris formerly lived in the 3800 block on Westminster place. Three years ago he entered the School of Commerce and Finance of Washington University here, then removed to Georgetown University near Washington, D. C., his brother-in-law said.

The slain men met as members of the same company in the 138th Infantry during the war.

After reading in the newspapers that Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, who said he shot the two men after they had tried to hold him up in his office, was ordered held after a Coroner's inquest, Close said he would go to Chicago to investigate the killing himself. He endeavored to get in touch with a brother of Farris living at Grand Rapids, Mich., by long-distance telephone, to enlist his aid in the investigation. He was unable to reach him.

Kuessner a Wilson Guard.

Kuessner's father, of the Utah street address, made preparations to go to Chicago tomorrow soon after the family received an anonymous telegram yesterday afternoon informing them of his death. His mother, Mrs. Anna Kuessner, told a Post-Dispatch reporter her son had been appointed honor guard for President Wilson after the war, and accompanied the peace party to the United States on the steamship George Washington.

According to police records Kuessner was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in 1922 for a holdup of a Kroger store, but was paroled later from the State Reformatory at Boonville. He was divorced from his wife two years ago. His mother said he went to Chicago to look for work.

Farris wrote a relative shortly before he was killed, Close asserted, that he had "a good job and good prospects." Previously he had been working as a salesman for a company manufacturing aluminum filing cabinets. A search of his room in Chicago yesterday revealed an application for work addressed to an employment agency in which he described himself as a college graduate and professional radio singer.

Dr. Nathanson was taken into custody Friday after an investigation by Deputy Coroner Joseph R. Dorfman, and Coroner's Physician Samuel Epstein cast doubt on his story that he fired on the pair when they tried to rob him. Captain Gleason of Fillmore street, police station, where he was held last night, said he was satisfied the physician was telling the truth.

The Chicago police at first were satisfied with his story. It was supported by three women witnesses, a patient and two nurses. Dorfman, however, advanced the theory the men might have gone to the physician's office, at 2807 West Madison street, to seek revenge for some real or fancied wrong. The physician said he was prepared because of a previous holdup in which he had been robbed of $2500.

Men Roomed Together.

Mrs. Anthony Golden, wife of a Chicago fire captain, rented a room to the two men in her home, 904 Wilson avenue, a month ago. She identified their bodies at the County Morgue. A stolen automobile was found standing in front of her home, but she did not know if it had been used by the pair.

The pistols found on the bodies of the men were so rusty they could not be fired. All identifying marks on their clothing had been cut away.

TWO ST. LOUISANS SHOT TO DEATH BY CHICAGO PHYSICIAN

Victims Were Gilbert Farris, 25, and Carl J. Kuessner, 30, World War Veterans.

IDENTIFICATIONS BY RELATIVE OF ONE

Doctor Who Testified They Tried to Rob Him in Office, Ordered Held After Inquest.

Two young men, shot to death by a Chicago physician in his office Thursday night, under circumstances now being investigated, were identified yesterday as St. Louisans who had been war "buddies."

John L. Close of 5082 Milentz avenue, accountant employed by the St. Louis-Southwestern Railroad, informed St. Louis police that one of the men was his brother-in-law, Gilbert Farris, 26 years old, former Washington University student, and the other was Carl J. Kuessner Jr., 30, of 3403A Utah street, mechanic and one-time honor guard for President Wilson's peace party.

The two men left St. Louis about six months ago for Chicago, Farris to work as a salesman and Kuessner as an automobile mechanic and electrician, according to letters they wrote back to St. Louis.

Farris Washington U. Student.

Farris formerly lived in the 3800 block on Westminster place. Three years ago he entered the School of Commerce and Finance of Washington University here, then removed to Georgetown University near Washington, D. C., his brother-in-law said.

The slain men met as members of the same company in the 138th Infantry during the war.

After reading in the newspapers that Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, who said he shot the two men after they had tried to hold him up in his office, was ordered held after a Coroner's inquest, Close said he would go to Chicago to investigate the killing himself. He endeavored to get in touch with a brother of Farris living at Grand Rapids, Mich., by long-distance telephone, to enlist his aid in the investigation. He was unable to reach him.

Kuessner a Wilson Guard.

Kuessner's father, of the Utah street address, made preparations to go to Chicago tomorrow soon after the family received an anonymous telegram yesterday afternoon informing them of his death. His mother, Mrs. Anna Kuessner, told a Post-Dispatch reporter her son had been appointed honor guard for President Wilson after the war, and accompanied the peace party to the United States on the steamship George Washington.

According to police records Kuessner was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in 1922 for a holdup of a Kroger store, but was paroled later from the State Reformatory at Boonville. He was divorced from his wife two years ago. His mother said he went to Chicago to look for work.

Farris wrote a relative shortly before he was killed, Close asserted, that he had "a good job and good prospects." Previously he had been working as a salesman for a company manufacturing aluminum filing cabinets. A search of his room in Chicago yesterday revealed an application for work addressed to an employment agency in which he described himself as a college graduate and professional radio singer.

Dr. Nathanson was taken into custody Friday after an investigation by Deputy Coroner Joseph R. Dorfman, and Coroner's Physician Samuel Epstein cast doubt on his story that he fired on the pair when they tried to rob him. Captain Gleason of Fillmore street police station, where he was held last night, said he was satisfied the physician was telling the truth.

The Chicago police at first were satisfied with his story. It was supported by three women witnesses, a patient and two nurses. Dorfman, however, advanced the theory the men might have gone to the physician's office at 3807 West Madison street, to seek revenge for some real or fancied wrong. The physician said he was prepared because of a previous holdup in which he had been robbed of $2500.

Men Roomed Together.

Mrs. Anthony Golden, wife of a Chicago fire captain, rented a room to the two men in her home, 904 Wilson avenue, a month ago. She identified their bodies at the County Morgue. A stolen automobile was found standing in front of her home, but she did not know if it had been used by the pair.

The pistols found on the bodies of the men were so rusty they could not be fired. All identifying marks on their clothing had been cut away.

Cold Summer Theory Goes Astray in Face of Figures

Average Temperature for July Only 1.1 Degrees Below Normal, Statistics of St. Louis Weather Bureau Show.

Cold figures are making it hot for the cool summer theorists.

There has been a lot of talk about 1927 being a year without a summer, and indeed there have been numerous days of pleasant relief from excessive heat, but Weather Bureau statistics show that the temperatures, as a general thing, particularly in July, have been but slightly below normal.

Average temperature for July, which will end this midnight, has been 77.6 degrees, which is only 1.1 degree less than the normal—normal being determined by the average for the month over a long term of years.

Summer begins June 22. In the period this year since that date the average temperature has been 77.4, while normal is only .9 of a degree higher. Average for the nine days of official summer in last June was 76.2, compared with a normal of 76.9.

Highest temperature this July was 97, at 4 p. m. Thursday. The lowest was 56, at 5:30 a. m. Independence day. Last year, July's hottest was 98, on the 2d, and the coolest 60, on the 14th. This year the month has had only nine days on which the mercury reached 90 or higher—92 on the 1st, 90 on the 6th and 10th, 93 on the 11th, 91 on the 19th, 92 on the 21st, 91 on the 26th, 95 on the 27th and Thursday's maximum.

Rain and the threat of rain kept the thermometer down yesterday to a high point of 80. Eleven out of the last 55 Julys in St. Louis have been cooler, so that Meteorologist Hayes, who is used to all kinds of weather and an even greater variety of questions about the weather, can see nothing unusual about the present conditions.

July 21 the Weather Bureau recorded a maximum wind velocity for the month of 33 miles an hour, and 31 miles the night of the 6th, but reports from outlying districts indicated even stronger wind blew elsewhere.

Total rainfall this July was 2.79 inches. Normal precipitation for the month is greater, 3.43 inches. There were four thunderstorms, a somewhat small number.

BRITISH TO TRY AGAIN TO SAVE NAVAL PARLEY

they have definitely decided that they cannot.

Nevertheless it is believed that a spectacular public session is likely Monday, particularly if the British not only explain their plan but also criticise the demand of the Americans for freedom to build large size cruisers and in a general way seek to put the blame for failure of the conference upon the Americans.

An additional suggestion which received some consideration today was that after Monday's plenary session the plenipotentiaries hold a meeting, perhaps Tuesday, and determine whether any good could be achieved by continuing the negotiations at present and whether adjournment should be taken until some later date, the three delegations then agreeing upon a common communique to be isued by the secretary-general of the conference.

COOLIDGE SHOWS DEEP CONCERN

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 30.—Deeply concerned that the Geneva armament conference seems destined to fail in its purpose of effecting further reduction of naval armament, President Coolidge awaited every detail from Washington and Europe at the summer White House tonight with an interest that excluded virtually all other matters.

Although there was no official pronouncement, Mr. Coolidge was represented as hoping that nothing would occur to disturb the friendly relations of the countries participating should the Monday meeting of the tripartite conferees prove to be an adjournment without having reached an agreement.

It was pointed out in Rapid City that the President has followed the Geneva meeting with far greater attention than was generally supposed, it having been his studied effort to detract the eyes of the world from himself and thus give the Geneva delegates full liberty without any public statements from the President which might have been misconstrued abroad.

The fact that in Mr. Coolidge's opinion the proposals of Great Britain call for a larger navy than he will sanction appears here in view of Great Britain's apparent determination, to prove an insurmountable barrier to any negotiations which might result in a treaty, but the President's intention to adhere to the purpose for which he called the conference—further reduction of naval armament—is hoped to give no grounds for any international reaction except that an honest difference of opinion existed between the nations concerned.

The President was understood to have instructed the American delegates some time ago not to recede from the general position which the Washington Government first laid down.

This position was based upon the proposition that naval armament should be further restricted and any compromise which would materially destroy that position, which the proposal of Great Britain is held by the President to do, would be untenable to this Government.

The desire of Mr. Coolidge that if the conference must end without an agreement it should be terminated without disturbing the good relations between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, is based, it was pointed out, on his secondary reason for calling the meeting, that of developing a still sounder understanding and a more practical assurance of peace between the participants. Whatever the outcome of the naval armament proposals, Mr. Coolidge was represented as being particularly eager that there be no misconstruction of sentiments should the conference break up.

Points in Navy Proposals on Which U. S. and Britain Disagree.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Inability of the American and British Governments to agree upon two major problems—size of guns for and total tonnage of cruisers—constitutes the rock toward which the Geneva naval limitation conference appears to be definitely headed.

As usual in such cases, if failure comes each Government will seek to justify its own position in the eyes of the world. The view here is that the British will content that a break-up was due to the American insistence that crusers carry guns up to the maximum size defined in the Washington agreement, 8 inches in diameter.

President Coolidge and his advisers already have voiced the American view that by insisting upon an extensive cruiser program, the British would have turned a conference for naval limitation into one which in fact would authorize vast naval expansion with increased instead of decreased burdens on the taxpayers of the three leading naval powers.

The viewpoint of the American Government on the latest British proposal as regards cruisers and submarines is now very well defined. It is that not only are the British persisting toward a cruiser expansion program, but are insisting upon sharply limiting the type of craft best suited to the geographical requirements of the United States, the 10,000 ton craft with a wide cruising radius.

Baldwin Says Visit to Coolidge Is Doubtful.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Canada, July 30.—Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, reaching Canada today for a fortnight's visit, said that if the disarmament conference failed at Geneva he was sure it would not be through the fault of England's representatives.

The Premier declared that while he was intimately in touch with the situation at Geneva before he left London, his week at sea had placed him out of touch and he could not discuss possibilities of the conference in other than the most general terms.

Baldwin said he had heard nothing of a proposal that he meet President Coolidge while he is in Canad, and suggested that such a possibility was very remote.

SNEERS AT DRY AMENDMENT BANNED BY FILM PRODUCERS

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 30.—Profanity, ridicule of the clergy and all sneers at the Federal Constitution, particularly the prohibition amendment, have been banned from films produced by members of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc.

A resolution to that end was passed last June 8 by 20 motion picture producing units, comprising the full membership of the association, but announcement of the action was withheld until today.

Fred W. Beetson, secretary of the association, confirmed a report by Dr. C. C. McLean, father of Douglas McLean, screen actor, who is chairman of the Stage and Screen Committee of the United Church Brotherhoods of Los Angeles, that the resolution had been passed.

The producers further pledged themselves to omit all improper billboard advertising from publicity programs. The 20 units adopting the resolution include virtually all the large studios in Southern California.

BODIES OF 7 U. S. SOLDIERS FOUND IN BATTLEFIELD

Lieut. William E. Sheehan and Six Privates Buried Together in Shell-Hole Near Montfaucon, France

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—From the shell tortured earth about Montfaucon, where nine years ago American and German lines were locked in the grim struggle of the Meuse-Argonne drive, the bodies of seven young Americans of the 79th Division who gave their lives for the flag in that fight have been yielded up at last to end the long suspense of grieving relatives.

Late in June, rewarding a search that had lasted almost a decade, field workers of the graves registration service in Paris came upon a filled-in shell hole where the bodies lay. They were ranged in their common grave in an orderly row, laid there almost beyond doubt, not by comrades, but by enemy hands.

In the group were numbered the casualties of a platoon of Company F, 315th Infantry, including Lieut. William A. Sheehan of this city, platoon Commander, sustained on the morning of Sept. 29, 1918. On that morning the four day advance of the Division was held in check by German resistance organized in the woods near which the bodies were found.

Sheehan and his platoon had driven on a little beyond the line of the other platoons in the last attack on these woods. The young officer and six men of his detachment whose bodies lay with him had already been ordered back for reorganization of the line when they fell. There was no chance for their comrades to carry them back or to bury them, for the ground they left passed at once into German control.

Identity Ascertained.

That night the regiment was relieved. Not until after the armistice in November could Sheehan's brother officers reach the spot again. Three trips then failed to locate where he and his men lay. Twice again relatives or friends went from the United States but with no better success. It remained for the tireless vigilance of the graves registration service tracking down every clue to missing comrades to find its way at last to the shell crater that served these seven war dead for a tomb.

Sheehan and the six men, all privates, fought and died on that September morning. The others were Irving S. Roffis of Brooklyn, N. Y.; August H. Rittmiller of Baltimore, and Jesse E. Schall of Philadelphia, all of Sheehan's platoon of F Company; Edward C. Moran of Philadelphia and Henry Paller of Pottsville, Pa., both of H Company of the 315th, and Ellis Eskowitz of Baltimore of C Company, 313th regiment of the same division.

How the Platoon Died.

A letter to Sheehan's friend, Wade H. Ellis, of this city, former Attorney-General of Ohio, from F Company's commander, Capt. F. H. McClintock, written a few days after the battle tells how the seven died.

The drive on Montfaucon started Sept. 26, McClintock said, the regiment pressing forward until the night of the twenty-eighth against machine gun and artillery fire. It was held at last facing a dense forest strongly organized by the enemy and which repelled two attacks, each time with "Lieut. 'Bill' in the front line with his troops. Next morning another attack was driven in with the company's mixed along the front line and Sheehan's platoon far in the lead of us all."

Machine guns and shells again beat back the American line and as they retired, Sheehan dropped, shot through but living long enough "to wave the remainder of his platoon to fall back."

"The last word from his lips was 'Mother,'" McClintock said. "One man succeeded in getting his wrist watch from him, all the rest of his belongings have been lost."

Identity of the seven dead was made certain when the double identification discs were found on each body. Publication was withheld, however, until records could be checked and relatives informed.

Young Sheehan was a law graduate of Georgetown University in this city and worked at the Department of Justice when Ellis was a special assistant there. He was trained for war at Fort Myer, across the river, where many officers of the Seventy-ninth received their training.

Just over the road from Fort Myer is Arlington National Cemetery, where Sheehan will be buried at the request of his mother, Mrs. Eudora Sheehan.

"My son always wanted to be buried in Arlington," she said today. "When he was at Fort Myer, he used to go there frequently. "'I want to pick out a spot to be buried in,' he told me then."

Joy Ride With Borrowed Plane Lands Youth in Jail

William C. Kobelt, 21, of Kansas City Is Held at Clayton on Larceny Charge — Machine Wrecked in Landing.

William C. Kobelt, 21 years old, of Kansas City, is in Clayton jail charged with grand larceny, because he yielded to the lure of the air, and took an aerial joyride in a borrowed plane at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Kobelt stood alone near several parked planes Friday evenings, after most of the flyers had gone home, and while the mechanics were at supper. He saw the Curtiss Standard plane owned by Raleigh Shaffer, licensed flyer and mechanic, and he weakened. Almost before he knew what had happened, he had flipped the propeller, slid into the cockpit, taxied to a cross-wind position and was in the act of leaving the ground.

Dismayed mechanics ran from their mess, shouting to the air joyrider to come down. But the borrower of the OX "Jenny" merely banked at a dangerously steep angle, waved his hand and began to climb for altitude.

Studied Books on Flying.

Kobelt, formerly employed by Swift & Co., studied flying in books and had a few rides in planes about Kansas City. He came to St. Louis, according to Deputy Constable Pat Bennett, who later arrested him, and had a few hours of instruction in the air, several weeks ago.

The mechanics on the ground knowing that Kobelt was not a licensed pilot, held their breaths as he began to con the acrobatic lexicon with his lumbering plane. At a height of 1500 feet he jockeyed his ship in a "falling leaf," did vertical banks, attempted an Immelman turn and a tail spin.

"Send for the ambulance," the mechanics cried. "It can't last long."

Apparently Kobelt had just begun. Two days ago, according to Bennett, Kobelt had ridden as an air passenger to St. Louis from Kansas City. He zoomed the lumbering Jenny as if she were a scout, flipped her ailerons as if she were the latest, smartest, fastest ship extant.

Wrecked in Landing.

About a mile from the field, Kobelt's dare at the skies came to grief. He skidded on a turn the nose of the Jenny dropped, and Kobelt, at a dizzy clip, began racing to earth. He regained control in time to make what was termed by experts a "flat" landing. It cracked both wings, smashel the propeller and reduced the plane to a wreck. Kobelt was jolted and bruised, but not seriously hurt.

He said he was sorry he wrecked the plane and he would like to have it fixed, but had no money. The mechanics took him back to the field, where he was arrested. He was placed under $10,000 bond, and will have a hearing tomorrow.

ILLINOIS MAN, 78, FINDS BROTHER HE HAD NEVER SEEN

Daughter, a St. Louisan, With Abe Wheeler When He Locates Ed Wheeler in West.

Mrs. Minnie Boundy of 2011 Hebert street, touring California with her father, Abe Wheeler, of Springfield, Ill., has found a long-lost uncle in Redding, Cal., whom she had never seen, according to word received by her husband, George E. Boundy. Her father is 78 years old and had never seen his younger brother, Ed, 73.

Wheeler, when a child, left his home in Canada with an uncle, and his brother was born after his departure. He learned from other relatives only a few weeks ago that the younger brother was living somewhere in California, and set out to find him.

"I'll bet you don't know who I am," Wheeler said when, after a long search, he found in Redding the brother he had never seen.

"I'll bet I do, you're my brother, Abe," Ed Wheeler said. "I can tell a Wheeler a block away."

Abe Wheeler was brought to Illinois in 1850 and worked in the mines near Springfield for years. He has two brothers.

GIRL INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS ENGINE; ENGINEER ARRESTED

Youth Says Locomotive Gave No Warning When It Crossed Street at Broadway and Dorcas.

Miss Marie Grunzinger, 17 years old, of 4821 Alexandria avenue, was injured at 9:30 o'clock last night when the Ford car in which she was riding with Leo Hutchison, 19, ran into a freight locomotive at Broadway and Dorcas street, flinging her and the driver through the windshield. She was taken to City Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and several cuts. Hutchison received minor scratches.

Hutchison said the locomotive, owned by the Manufacturers' Railway, crossed the street without warning whistle, bell or lights. The engineer, arrested, said the bell was sounded at the crossing.

Raiders Find Beer at Dance.

Deputy Sheriff Kick and others last night raided a house at 909 North Sixty-sixth street, University City, seizing 284 pints of beer and arresting William L. Myer, 64 years old. The raiders had a search warrant. A dance was in progress at the time.

YOUTH CAUGHT AFTER OIL STATION HOLDUP

Alleged Robber Falls at Policeman's Shot, but Is Found to Be Uninjured.

Ray Doer, a youth who said he lived in Lawrenceville, Ill., was captured about 10:30 o'clock last night after a chase and the discharge of several revolver shots, following the holdup of a filling station at Union boulevard and Palm street. The youth took $14 from John Cahill, manager of the station, jumped into his car, and sped away.

Cahill sounded the alarm, and a police car pursued the robber. Doer was cornered in an alley, where Patrolman Gleason fired two shots. The youth dropped to the ground moaning, but at City Hospital, the red coloring on his shirt was found to be paint.

Delbert Bowen, a collector for the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., was forced to act as chauffeur for a robber who took from him $216 in cash and checks amounting to several hundred dollars about 4 p. m. yesterday near the Kroger store at 403 North Euclid avenue.

The ride ended for Bowen when the robber told him to get out of his own car in an alley near Lake avenue, University City, and drove away. An hour later, Bowen's car, with a few checks in it, was found at Euclid and Pershing avenues.

Three men held up the cigar store of C. Borngesser, at 748 South Fourth street, at 4:20 yesterday afternoon, taking $6 from the proprietor and $5.60 from Hubert Blouente, a customer. The men ran out to a waiting car, in which there were two other men, and escaped.

Four armed men took between $90 and $100 from the cash register of the Beck Market, 6401 Spencer avenue, Wellston, at 8:30 o'clock last night, while they forced the proprietor, J. H. Beck, to lie on the floor. They escaped in a closed Marmon car.

Police believe the same men committed the holdup reported 45 minutes later at the grocery store of John Hodecker, 6500 St. Louis avenue, where $400 was taken, and another 40 minutes after that, at the grocery store of Nicholas Ehler, 1582 Wellston place, where $115 was taken.

Grow Old Gracefully

Some men and women grow kinder, brighter and more useful as the days go by.

They give, day by day as they go along, their heart's strength and power.

The sun's rays are just as warm and give just as much light and brightness now as the day it first shone.

LATE TOM M'GRATH AN EXPERT IN SLANG

Former City Detective's Will Filed at Clayton Gives Property to Family.

Thomas B. McGrath, former city detective, whose will was filed at Clayton Thursday, leaving an estimated estate of $100,000 to his widow, sisters and brothers, was noted for his ready wit and crisp slang vocabulary.

He was 70 years old, and had been retired from the police force 22 years, when he died in France last Sunday, while touring the battle fields. A few days before he left for Paris, he was seated in front of the American Annex when a friend suggested they run over to Fairmount track and bet on a horse that was touted as a "cinch."

"Nothing doing. Quit the ponies long ago, pal," said McGrath. "The ponies were too good for Tom. I had some chances, though, to beat them good. Did you ever hear of a patrol wagon hunch? That's the only hunch I'll ever play."

And then McGrath related how one day when he was at Garfield Park racetrack near Chicago, he encountered a young man who had left St. Louis after embezzling $7000 from a Washington avenue firm of which he was cashier.

Rejects Offered Bribe.

The embezzler agreed to return to St. Louis, but demurred at taking an early train. He explained he had $3000 left, was going to bet it on a long shot, Radonas, in a late race, and was confident he would win enough to pay back the $7000 and escape prosecution. He even offered to give McGrath half of the $3000 if only he would let him stay for the late race.

"I wasn't feeling like taking a poor cage's dough, and his crack made me kind of sore," McGrath related. "'Cut that out,' said I. 'Let's mope, kid.'"

And so they left for St. Louis before the race started, but not until after the youth had held a conversation with another man.

As their train reached Springfield, they bought a newspaper containing the latest racing news. McGrath couldn't understand why the embezzler became so excited. Radonas had won, paying $40 for each $1 bet. And the embezzler explained he had bet the $3000 through the man he had conversed with before they left the track.

Another "patrol wagon hunch" which McGrath neglected to obey came from a fellow arrested for panhandling on Eighth street.

"There's a good one at Lakeside today," the panhandler told McGrath. "It's Portarlington. Ed Trotter owns him and the trainer is a brother of a cook I know. This one is like stealing it. He'll be an awful nice price, too. I have a few bucks and would like time to go over and put them down. Portarlington is going to cop it sure and I'll not forget ye, bully, if you let me take a minute to scatter this little bunch of kale across the board on him."

"Come on, Pittsburg Phil," retorted McGrath, "hold that plunk for George Gould. He needs it for bridge toll. It's the big bridge for you, pal. Into the jungles of Illinois for you, bum."

"I strolled downtown that afternoon," McGrath later related. "As I passed Carr's the tip about Portarlington struck me, so I walked in and rubbered. May I die on the spot if they didn't have him rung up with 60 to 1 against him."

"I tell you if I was in the business and nailed a bum today and he wants to stall while he can go around to a book and bet 10 cents on Chief Urcas to beat Crusader, he not only gets it down, but I string along for $100 with him. I have learned that a guy in a patrol wagon with a hunch is sure money. It's always a cinch when it's him for the stripes and bars."

DINNER CLOTHES IN COLORS

London Men Look as if They Belonged in Musical Comedy.

LONDON, July 30.—American visitors who have been attending London social functions have expressed much surprise at seeing some men's dinner suits which seems to them to have come from a musical comedy show. What would you say to a light blue jacket, or a white jacket, with light blue borders and lapels? Yet these are quite orthodox here, because they stand for scholastic or university athletic honors.

The Leander Club members, who wear special evening dress, are rowing stars of the Universities. Their evening dress consists of a dinner jacket of dark blue cloth, with brass buttons, dark blue braided trousers, a single-breasted dark blue waistcoat with brass buttons, a dark blue tie, black patent shoes and socks of the celebrated Leander pink.

ST. LOUIS INVENTORS TO UNITE

Founder of International Association Calls Meeting.

A. C. Clark of Seattle, Wash., who three years ago founded the International Association of Inventors, is organizing a St. Louis branch of the association. He will hold a first meeting tomorrow evening, in the auditorium of the Public Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets. Inventors are invited.

The organization has chapters in Seattle, Vancouver, B. C.; Portland, Ore.; Berkley, Cal.; San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver and Omaha. The association, as described by Clark, is "a clearing house for the inventor." Each chapter maintains a technical board, which reviews the inventions of members.

A Place in the Sun For the Classic Drama At the Garden Theater

Season Which Ends Tonight Has Shown That Serious Effort Was Made to Present Plays in Most Intelligent Manner.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE Goodman Players will close their present season at the Garden Theater tonight under favorable omens and amid the heartening discussions of plans for next season. It would be going a little too far to say that their efforts have provoked any cataclysmic demonstrations of popular approval. But while the air is not thick with hats being tossed aloft nor resonant with the brazen bray of the enchanted multitude, the attendance figures do indicate, in Mr. Flint Garrison's phrase, a "consistent growth" of public interest.

More than this could hardly be expected. Mr. Garrison is not trying to split the ears of the groundlings, nor does he hope to become the Midland Tex Rickard for a popularized and corrupted Shakspeare. His aim has been to present plays of high quality and undisputable interest in the most intelligent manner possible, believing, no doubt, that enough support would ultimately be attracted to justify his making the Garden Theater the home of a permanent repertory company.

The distinction between "repertory" and "stock" in this case would lie not only in the quality of the plays produced but in the casting and the general direction. Those who witnessed enough of this season's program at the Garden must have realized that Thomas Wood Stevens was making a serious working principle of the injunction that Hamlet laid upon the strolling players. Personalities, scenic investiture and the conventional time divisions have been subordinated to the idea that the play is, indeed, the thing.

Such an idea is not Elizabethan, nor Georgian nor particularly modern for that matter. It is simply good sense applied to the theater. Too often the modern high-brow theater has been distinguished by everything conceivable except good sense. In the case of "Romeo and Juliet" for instance, Shakspeare wrote a play that he intended according to his own words (see the prologue) to run for about two hours. Good sense, would dictate of course that the play should not be produced on a modern stage in that short a time, for certain allowances have to be made for the fact that the modern ear doesn't take in the Shakspearean idiom as rapidly as it does its own native speech. This necessitates a slower pace. But good sense should also suggest that to use modern naturalistic scenery in such a production would mean either that the play would have to be cut to the heart or drawn out to unbelievable lengths. In either case its natural rhythms would be utterly destroyed and one of the most exciting plays ever written would become once more the deadly museum piece with which school boys are customarily tortured.

St. Louis audiences can be thankful that Mr. Stevens and his associates preserved the excitement of Shakspeare no matter what else they found it necessary to do without.

IN going over their plans for next year Mr. Stevens and Mr. Garrison gave primary consideration to plays they considered suitable in tone and structure, to the peculiar nature of the Garden Theater. Such plays, of course, would have to be of a distinguished quality and at the same time they should harmonize with the gracious and intimate atmosphere of the place.

It was at first thought that nothing but the classic comedy would be entirely appropriate but the success of "Romeo and Juliet" caused them to modify their beliefs in favor of the romantic note, whether in comedy or tragedy. Neither comedy nor tragedy will be slighted, they hope, but if there is to be a recurring theme it will be romance. Naturally Mr. Stevens thinks of romance in a broad sense and while it ordinarily involves what is known as the "love interest" it might conceivably include any gallant thrust of the human spirit. In fact, love without a sense of its mysterious spiritual significance, is really as commonplace and as unromantic as roast beef and deserves about as much glorification. Prometheus defying the gods is as romantic a figure as Siegfried slaying the dragon. We are all partial to Romeo's plaints and Sir Tristan's magnificent laments, but what could be more truly romantic than Joan of Arc telling her judges that she preferred the stake to imprisonment.

WITH these thoughts in mind Mr. Stevens has compiled a tentative list of productions from which selections will be made for next season. At the present writing it includes:

"The Tower of Nesle," by Alexander Dumas.
"The Three Musketeers," Dumas.
"The Merry Wives of Windsor," Shakspeare.
"Hamlet," Shakspeare.
"Romeo and Juliet," Shakspeare.
"Hassan," Fletcher.
"Kismet."
"Androcles and the Lions," Shaw.
"Saint Joan," Shaw.

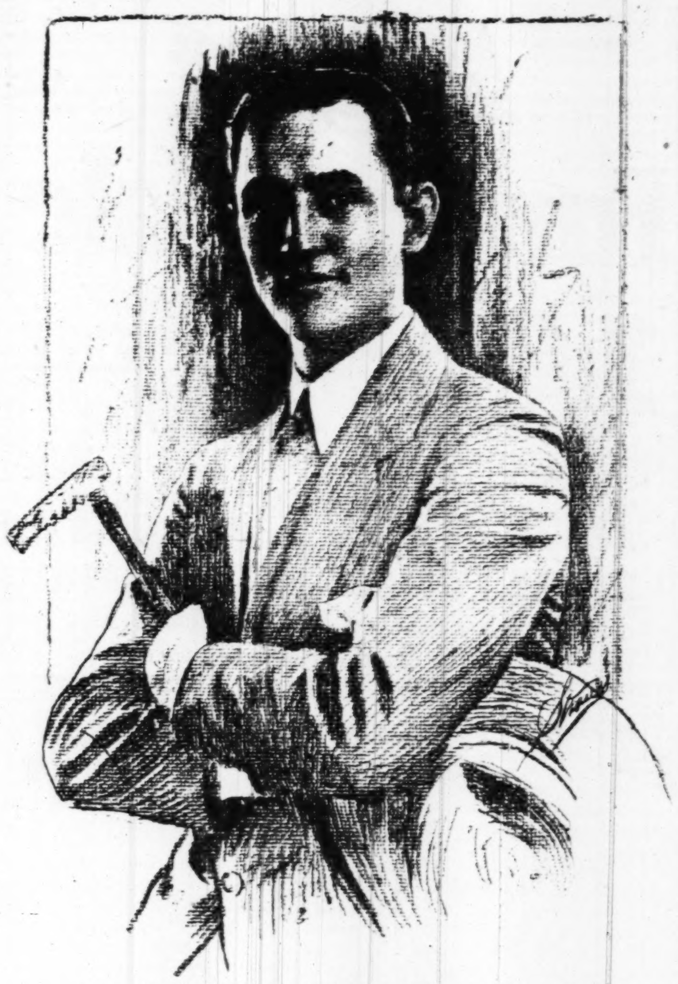
"Katinka" at Forest Park

FOR the ninth work of the 1927 season the Municipal Theater Association tomorrow night will revive Rudolf Friml's tuneful operetta "Katinka," which has not been seen in St. Louis since its previous colorful production on the same stage seven years ago.

A new comedian, Lou Powers, will be introduced to audiences in Forest Park. He takes the place in the cast of Robinson Newbold, who was released that he might enter the new George M. Cohan show "The Merry Malones," opening the new Erlanger Theater, New York, in September. Powers was formerly with the Atlanta Municipal Opera Co., patterened after St. Louis' leading civic organization. In the smaller organization he proved one of their outstanding favorites.

St. Louisans will remember "Katinka" as the most brilliant operetta of Rudolf Friml prior to his creation of stirring scores for "Rose Marie" and "The Vagabond King." Singularly enough the same organization that was responsible for the success of "Rose Marie" likewise brought forth "Katinka." For in addition to the tuneful score by Friml there are also the libretto by Otto Harbach, and the colorful production standards of Arthur Hammerstein, both of whom were leading figures in the presentation of "Rose Marie."

A similar parallel between "Rose Marie" and "Katinka" runs even into the Municipal Opera organization. For General Stage Director Charles Sinclair, who supervised the spectacular and memorable presentation of "Katinka" in 1920, likewise staged the production of "Rose Marie" this season, and is again in charge of the "Katinka" revival on an even more colorful scale than the previous offering.



Paul Kleman, Municipal Opera barytone in "Katinka."

Among the tuneful songs are such favorites as "Vienna," "Russian Wedding March," "Katinka," "One Who Will Understand," "In a Hurry," "Rackety Coo," "Stamboul," "Your Photo," "My Paradise," "I Can Tell by the Way You Dance, Dear," "I Want All the World to Know," and "I Want to Marry a Male Quartette."

Theatrical Calendar.

MUNICIPAL OPERA — The musical comedy "Katinka" starting tomorrow night.

AMBASSADOR.—Billie Dove in "The Stolen Bride" with Lloyd Hughes. On the stage Herbert Rawlinson in "Around the Town."

MISSOURI—Jack Mulhall and Alice Day in "See You In Jail," and on the stage Brooke Johns' farewell show entitled "Au Revoir, But Not Goodbye."

GETTING A START—By John Dunsmure

John Dunsmure, the basso of the Municipal Opera cast, has had a varied operatic career in Europe and America both in light opera and grand opera.

AS with most of them, my theatrical memory traces back most vividly to those days of the beginning—the days that are filled with hard knocks, lots of experience, and seemingly little profit. And while one toils hard and arduously, sometimes even painfully, they seem more joyful and happy in retrospect than the really more significant occurrences of later years.

I am reminded even more forcefully of my first days on the stage through being with Municipal Opera and observing the near 100 St. Louis boys and girls who are so easily securing the experience for which I worked so hard. Without leaving home they are securing the training and the insight into theatrical conditions which many young folk can't even buy.

Well do I remember how I first stepped on the stage with the Cleveland Minstrel Company. In love with the romance of the theater I determined on such a career, and before long I was billed with the company as "The Phenomenal Boy Basso." Be that as it may, I was Scotch enough to cache away a few extra dollars of the pay, and when I had enough, I realized I wasn't learning much about the stage with a minstrel show.

Accordingly, I decided to join a little dramatic company which was playing a rube drama called "A Country Merchant." I wanted experience, and I certainly got it. In fact, it came so fast I was dizzy absorbing it.

After all, I didn't have much to do. In the course of the evening I was only called upon to play the role of an old mail carrier with a white wig and goatee, sing two bass solos, sing four quartet numbers, ring the curtain up and down, act as assistant stage carpenter, property man and baggage man—all for the sum of $20 a week. All that I wish is that I could do those jobs again all in one night, provided I had the combined salaries attached to membership in each branch of the union I would represent.

Even Poohbah in "The Mikado" had a cinch compared to mine. But, of course, I was being paid in experience rather than in cash, a matter which even today I don't regret. And, of course, there was always something in addition to the above list of duties. Our manager had a penchant for after-pieces—and since we played many a new town, we were constantly rehearsing after pieces, a fact which was of material assistance to me in learning how to act.

But speaking of that old man's wig and goatee reminds me that it served its practical purposes. Between acts in the little village of Oldtown, Me., while out of my acting part into the role of company baggage man, I suddenly got into an altercation with a husky truck driver. And before I knew it, I, in my old man's make-up, and the truck driver were pummeling one another lustily.

In the midst of the fracas the village Constable came upon us. Immediately he grabbed my opponent by the collar, belaboring him with the stick and crying out, "How dare you hit that poor old man?" That was my exit cue. I hastily slipped into the theater while he departed to the calaboose with the unfortunate truck driver.

Shortly afterwards I joined the Francis Wilson Opera Company. There I had the good fortune to meet Clinton Elder, a leading tenor of the company, who took me under his wing, and advised me to study voice seriously, suggesting that I go to Europe.

Strangely enough, I came to St. Louis this summer only to find that Clinton Elder was here as a teacher of music. I thanked him

Pity the Poor Movie Theater Owner in These Days of Poor Pictures

How and Why the Stage Show Has Been Developed Until the Film Looks Like a Secondary Consideration.

By NIE.

THE smell of grease paint, chatter of chorus girls, the call boy, stage hands moving scenery swiftly and silently, male performers giving the tie a final adjustment, female performers glancing hurriedly in mirrors, musicians tuning up, the curtain—and the show is on.

We might have been paying a backstage visit to the Ziegfeld Follies, or any other musical comedy production. But, we were not. We were back stage in a "motion picture" theater. (The quotes are intentional.) Furthermore, it was a St. Louis motion picture theater.

What had become of the picture? Why all this tremendous activity on the stage? Couldn't we remember the day when a picture and orchestra comprised the entertainment of a motion picture theater? Yes, and even the day before there was just a piano instead of an orchestra. Curious, even bewildered, we called upon the Skouras Brothers who operate most of St. Louis' motion picture theaters. We found Spyros, president of the company, and Charles, who supervises all entertainment and shows.

We were given a glimpse of what constitutes the operation of a motion picture theater today. And in the new scheme of things the entertainment on the stage has become just as important (Charlie Skouras says more important) than the picture in the eyes of the theater owners. Spyros pointed out that it is a circumstance developed naturally by the tremendous growth of the industry coupled with the uncertainty of pictures.

"The theater owners have been forced to employ the stage in improving their entertainment," he explained, "because of the picture situation. The theater owner does not make the pictures. He must depend upon what the producing companies send him.

"I do not mean to infer that the pictures are growing weaker. Rather has the public's taste been cultivated to expect more and in addition because of the human equation it is impossible to make everyone a "Beau Geste," "The Big Parade," or even a "Variety." Some are fine, some fair, some poor, but because of the tremendous investment in theaters today we must run every week and accept the fine pictures with the inferior product.

"JUST as we must run every week, so must we show a profit every week. The natural result is the development of our own stage entertainment which will be consistent and bring us a certain steady patronage regardless of the merits of the film. And when those fine pictures are produced and shown, we reap the harvest, and at the same time do not suffer from inferior pictures.

"That is why Herbert Rawlinson and Brooke Johns were brought to St. Louis. We hoped to find personalities who would give a stage show that would attract people every week regardless of what picture we happened to have on the screen. Our theory was right. Brooke Johns has stabilized business at the Missouri. There is some fluctuation caused by the quality of the picture, but it is insignificant compared to the old days.

"Rawlinson has made a good start. We are confident the public will respond to the type of shows he's putting on at the Ambassador. On our stages we can guarantee real entertainment and we hope to convince the public of this so that the business will become stabilized."

THE cost of these movie stage shows adds tremendously to the overhead expense of operating a picture house. We can remember easily enough when John Drew, Nat Goodwin and James K. Hackett, all gone now but all great stars in their day, would take in less money in a week touring the country than a movie "presentation" costs today. They made their productions, paid their actors [illegible] railroad expenses, shared the intake with the thea[illegible]ey visited—and got rich.

Here are some of the personalities it takes to opera[illegible] a picture house, so called, in these modern times:

Robert Alton, formerly with Greenwich Village Follies. Teaches chorus routines and stages production numbers. Acts as production manager for Brooke Johns.

Marjorie Alton, also a former featured dancer in Greenwich Village Follies. Specializes in toe-dance routines for chorus and writes special music and lyrics for Brooke Johns.

What Is Going On Behind the Screens Out in Hollywood

By MARGARET NIEMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.

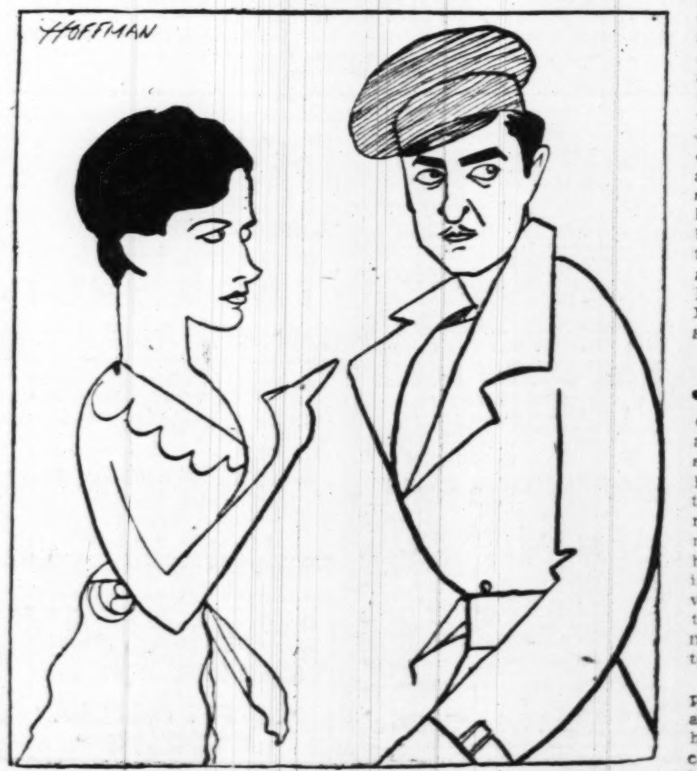
EVERY visitor to Southern California wants to see the wheels go 'round in the movies, but if it is as hard to get past the gate of heaven as it is that of a movie studio, few will make it. However, if assured that once inside it will be as interesting and the company as delightful, it will be well worth trying. This week has been an especially busy one, as there are numerous pictures now under way.

Esther Ralston, who as a stenographer is starring in "Heaven Help the Working Girl," I found seated in the middle of a large set reading the latest copy of a comic paper to two other girls in the cast, while the cameraman was making some closeups of Richard Arlen in an office scene. Arlen plays a breezy young salesmanager. At one side two men were playing the piano and on the other a poker game was going on. Doris Hill, as pretty a red-haired telephone operator as any man would want in his office—and much prettier than any wife would—was watching the game with interest. Unfortunately, Miss Hill will have to wear spectacles in her part as Miss Ralston's chum but maybe it's to fool the wives!

MISS RALSTON, by the way, is even more attractive off the screen than on, which is saying much. Her blond hair, perfect teeth, and wide-set gray eyes would delight anyone, but it's her naturalness of manner and humor that holds one. She told me of a recent vacation spent at a nearby beach hotel. After a couple of months of hard work she was greatly enjoying a little rest and quiet and her daily dips in the ocean. One morning she heard a great commotion, and going to the beach found it literally swarming with cameras and movie people—it was Bebe Daniels and Miss Ederle making a scene for "Swim, Girl, Swim." As a joke she immediately registered a complaint to the hotel management against "These movie people" being allowed to disturb the quiet of the hotel guests.

THE principals of the "Beau Sabreur" company have returned from location and are occupied with some interiors of desert life. Gary Cooper, handsome in a medal bedecked uniform I found seated cross-legged on a huge cushion partaking of a feast of roast fowl, fruits and other delicacies in a room gorgeous with silken draperies, priceless rugs and jeweled brass ware. Noah Beery, resplendent with jewels and a finger ring with a set as big as a silver dollar, was sitting outside the set talking with Evelyn Brent and Joan Standing who have leading feminine roles in the picture. Mr. Beery is not a bit "villainous" to meet, quite to the contrary, he's most agreeable.

IF anyone imagines film stars don't work hard they should have caught a glimpse of Pola Negri a few days ago. It was a frightfully hot day, and the set of the room in which Miss Negri was working was a small, meanly furnished one, and into it were crowded about the star, who was sitting on a hideous old oak bed with a patch quilt coverlet, about a dozen electricians, camera men, directors and assistants, not to mention several of the powerful lights which are like stoves. It was no wonder that when Pola came out she walked like one in a trance to a chair and sat exhausted for several minutes. But later she slipped a slim hand in mine and in her soft, hesitating English, "hoped I'd like her new picture." It would be almost impossible not to after talking to her for her charm is so great. The new picture is "Sun Kissed," an original by Roland V. Lee and is being directed by that same able young man.



Joan Crawford and John Gilbert in "Twelve Miles Out," at Loew's.

JUST off the set in the wings—the coolest spot in Hollywood, was Jean Hersholt asleep in a camp chair. It seemed a shame to awaken him. He had a splendid shock of long and curly iron grey hair, bushy eyebrows and mustache, and it was so perfect a make-up that even at such close range it was difficult to believe him when he said they were only in part his own. His hair is really very dark and it takes three-quarters of an hour to put on this makeup, and an equally long time to remove it.

Mr. Hersholt was dressed for his part in khaki trousers, grey shirt and felt slippers, and sitting on a high stool, having given me his camp chair. He spoke of his part in "Stella Dallas" and "Greed," but he says he likes "Old Heidelburg" soon to be released, better than either.

ADOLPHE MENJOU was slipping into a luxurious blue Renault with Arlette Marchal, who looked very chic in a lovely fur-trimmed coat. Shirley O'Hara, Mr. Menjou's leading woman in "A Gentleman From Paris," came along looking very dainty and sweet in a sheer chiffon frock of two shades of pink. Miss O'Hara having completed her part in the picture, was on her way to have some stills made for advertising purposes.

Emil Jannings, with a strange creature, part angel and part devil, tattooed on his chest, was just leaving "Harmony Row," a street in the slums of London. This mean, narrow, dirty street, with its uneven cobblestone pavement and dilapidated old houses and shops, is a splendid reproduction of the Soho district. A bridge game, a real one, was going on outside one of the old timbered houses while the players awaited a call from Mauritz Stiller, the director. Mr. Jannings' picture is tentatively called "Hitting for Heaven."

Colleen Moore, First National star, and John McCormick, her husband, who will supervise her forthcoming productions, left here last week for New York, and will sail for Florida for a several weeks' rest. Miss Moore has purchased a 70-foot cruising yacht, which bert. Arranges all music for Brooke Johns' shows and assists in production and staging.

Carl Hohengarten, musical arranger for Rawlinson.

Charles Dahl, in charge of scenery. Designs and installs new settings each week. Each piece of scenery is built in the theater's studios.

Margaret Breen, designs and makes all costumes worn by chorus girls at both the Missouri and Ambassador.

Musical Copying Department. Four girls are employed in this department to copy musical parts for the different instruments after the numbers have been arranged.

An idea of the total expense of staging a show at either the Missouri or Ambassador can be approximated from the following table:

Weekly cost of talent (specialty acts)	$3000.00
Cost of chorus	640.00
Music and arrangements	300.00
Scenery	500.00
Costumes	400.00
Production staff overhead	450.00
Musicians	750.00
Stage crew	602.50
Total	$6642.50

Thus the motion picture theater of today spends this sum each week on its stage show, exceeding, perhaps, the average cost of the pictures.

The Skouras boys have progressed since the old times but with some $6000 expense on the stage each week we wonder if both Spyros and Charlie do not long for the days of John Bunny and Flora Finch, when a picture was a picture and a motion picture theater was a motion picture theater.

GETTING A START ON THE OPERA STAGE

in my youth and I thanked him again this summer for his advice.

For I did go to Italy and took up my studies with Guglio Morretti. I studied there for some time, and appeared in grand opera—in theory for the money, but, judging from what I received, for the experience again. For the grand opera singers in Europe are poorly paid, and it needed only an offer from this country to bring me back home.

The opportunity came with the Bostonians, the famous old light opera company. I toured with them for some time, performing "Robin Hood" and "Serenade." After that theatrical work became routine—the same old story—engagement after engagement.

But while I was trouping about as a youngster not knowing how far I could go or whether I could ever do anything on the stage, and where hundreds of inexperienced stage struck folks go to New York and inevitably find discouragement through inability to land, St. Louisans are able to find out their prospects at home.

From their work in the Municipal Opera chorus they can learn just what chance there is to succeed. And many St. Louis young men and women who have dreamed but who have not had the vital bit of talent to lift them above the chorus, have, no doubt, stayed at home and not faced the galling disappointment of New York. ut some of them, getting their training here, have made good in the Metropolis like Berenice Eisman, who started in this chorus and who is now on the Orpheum Circuit.

she has renamed Cojo, Co standing for Colleen and Jo for John, on which the trip to Florida will be made. They plan to return to Hollywood late in August, when production will be started immediately on Miss Moore's next picture, "Synthetic Sin," an adaptation of the stage play by Frederic and Fanny Hatton. Following "Synthetic Sin," Miss Moore will appear in the George Fitzmaurice special "Lilac Time" from the play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin.

Sam E. Rork and his staff are marking time these days, almost hourly expecting word from Will Rogers' physicians that he is fully recovered from his operation and ready to go to work in the movies.

Rork is to make "A Texas Steer," with Rogers as the star, and it is to be a special feature for First National release. It was originally planned to go in production about August 1, but early in July, Rogers was forced to undergo an operation for gallstones.

As soon as the physicians give the word, Rork, with Rogers, will take the company, in three or four special cars attached to a transcontinental train, to Washington, D. C., where for two weeks exteriors will be made. On the return trip the company will be on a Texas ranch for several weeks for exteriors, then back to the Hollywood studios for interiors.

Buster Keaton recently started his new United Artists comedy, "Steamboat Bill," in the presence of one of the largest throngs ever assembled to watch a motion picture company in action, acording to advices from Sacramento, where the frozen-faced star and his entire organization are on location.

The Keaton company has moved bag and baggage to a made-to-order town across the river from the California capital and for the next few months will live in the picturesque community. Steamboats and other craft which figure in the story of "Steamboat Bill" are moored along the specially constructed levee. Ernest Torrence is playing his first straight comedy role in "Steamboat Bill." Marlon Byron, who was practically unknown until Keaton gave her her chance, has the chief feminine part in the comedy. Other members of the supporting cast include Tom McGuire and Tom Lewis, of Ziegfeld Follies fame. Selection of Miss Byron, who has played only a couple of bits in pictures since she came to Hollywood from Dayton, Ohio, a few months ago, came as a distinct surprise to film circles.

Gloria Swanson is making rapid progress in the production of her new screen vehicle, "Sadie Thompson." The picture will be Miss Swanson's second offering as an independent producer. Raoul Walsh, in addition to his selection as the director of "Sadie Thompson," has been definitely cast in the role of "Sergeant O'Hara," of the Marines. Walsh was finally induced by Miss Swanson to play the part, after screen tests of more than a score of available leading men had failed to reveal a likely candidate. Thus he receives three-fold credit as director, actor and scenarist, having also prepared the script. Lionel Barrymore will be seen as the domineering "Alfred Davidson," who makes the effort to reconstruct Sadie Thompson's life more nearly in keeping with his own ideas. The picture will rot be released until fall.

"Joan of Arc," Thomas Wood Stevens.

"Cyrano," Rostand.

"The Beggars Opera," Gay.

It will be seen from above that even a romantic theater may contain a satisfactory variety.

The inclusion of "Hassan" and "Kismet" arose from Mr. Stevens' belief that the full possibilities of the Garden Theater as a background for stunning color and costume effects had not been fully realized. Hassan is an Oriental tale, rich in humor and plot complications which was successful in London, but failed in New York due to wooden direction. Kismet is the familiar melo-spectacle with which Otis Skinner's name was so long associated.

A production of the "Beggars Opera" would also mean a departure into the field o music. This would necessitate bringing in additional players for the singing parts. "The Beggars Opera," though, is really less an opera than a play interspersed with songs and with a few changes in personnel could easily be put on by the present company.

Present plans call for only a six weeks' season next year, the change being reluctantly made out of fear that the spring of 1927 will be as cold as this year's. Since the Fashion Show is a fixed seasonal event, a later start next year will necessarily mean a shorter season, though there is a possibility that the season will be resumed for one or two weeks after the Fashion Show.

A NOTED BERLIN CAFE BROKE

Borchardt's Once Dining Place of Kings and Princes.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 30.—Borchardt's, Berlin's celebrated caterer, has gone into bankruptcy. After 70 years of fame as the restaurant for epicures and as caterer to every German court, the establishment, with its fancy grocery, has fallen a victim to general impoverishment.

Since a new clientele among the newly rich was not forthcoming, because of the increasing demand since the war for terpsichorean and musical pleasures, this mecca for so many noted gourmets has at last been forced to close its doors. Kangaroo tails, Indian swallow's nests, sharks' fins, live trout from the Russian Newa, the regular stock-in-trade of Borchardt's, will be things of the past. The former Crown Prince and a number of former ruling Princes, as well as many distinguished foreign visitors were always to be found at Borchardt's. One of the best customers before the war was Czar Nicholas II of Russia. Another customer was the Turkish Sultan. King Edward VII of England never failed to eat at Borchardt's when sojourning in Berlin.

WAGNER FILM BEING PREPARED

Historians Collaborated in Writing the Scenario.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 30.—A film entitled "Richard Wagner and 50 Years of Bayreuth," is being prepared simultaneously at Leipsig, Bayreuth and Munich under the management of Film Director Firmans. It will be brought out this year. The foremost Wagner historians have collaborated in the writing of the scenario, which also calls for the inclusion of the opera performances at the coming Bayreuth festival.

For the production and promulgation of the film a special syndicate has been formed comprising Siegfried Wagner, prominent musical professors and Wagner biographers from all parts of Germany, the director of the Leipsig Conservatory, Prof. Max Paur and many notables of Leipzig, Bayreuth and Munich.

FRANCE PLANS LEGION FETE

Government Sets Sept. 19 as Holiday in Honor of Guests.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, France, July 30.—France will observe a public holiday, Sept. 19, in honor of American Legion members here for their Paris convention. The holiday has been decreed by the Government. Despite the fact that it is now expected that attendance will be far less than the 30,000 originally anticipated, the Government is planning an elaborate entertainment for those who do come.

There will be an official banquet for 1000 delegates, a gala ball, fireworks, special illuminations and official receptions. Approximately $150,000 has been appropriated for the Government's share in the program.

Louisville Service Improved.

The time of other trains to southern points has been shortened.

TOURIST SHORTAGE IN PARIS

And Hotel Keepers Fear Few Legionaires Will Attend Convention.

PARIS, July 30.—Paris hotel keepers, already worried by a shortage in the number of American tourists this summer, are considerably troubled over dispatches that the number of delegates to the American Legion convention in September will not reach half the anticipated 30,000.

It is estimated that hotel keepers, expecting a rush this year, provided at least 6000 more rooms than last year. They say that so far the figure has been 30 per cent under the figure for the same period in 1926.

CITY LAW ON STABLES HELD TO BE INVALID

Zoning Law, However, Still Restricts Establishment of Such Buildings in Future.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—A St. Louis ordinance governing the issuance of permits by the Board of Public Service for stables, quarries, tanneries, slaughter houses and similar establishments, was held invalid today by Division No. 1 of the Supreme Court, because in effect it was a delegation of legislative power to the Board and prescribed no tests nor standards for issuance of permits.

The decision affirmed the action of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction in dismissing a complaint aganist the Polar Wave Ice & Fuel Co. of St. Louis, for maintaining a stable for horses at 6183-7 Delmar boulevard, without a permit from the Board. The company had been found guilty of the charge in Police Court and obtained a reversal on appeal to the Court of Criminal Corrections. The City appealed to the Supreme Court.

Zoning Law Valid.

While the ruling today holds the ordinance invalid, the decision will not enable the establishment of additional establishments in St. Louis of the class covered by the ordinance. The St. Louis zoning ordinance recently was held valid by the Supreme Court and would apply to any new establishment.

The company's attorneys contended the ordinance delegated legislative authority to the Board, exceeded the charter powers, and prescribed no qualifications, tests nor standards for granting of the permits.

Commissoner James D. Lindsay, who wrote the opinion, held that while the business involved was a lawful one, and subject to the exercise of the police power of the city, there were restrictions upon the exercise of that power.

Fixed Standard Required.

"It must be exercised reasonably and with due regard to certainty and uniformity of application, according to some proper standard fixed to that end by legislative authority," Commissioner Lindsay wrote. "By the ordinance under consideration, the defendant, and others falling within the class defined, must have a permit. But, whether such a one may or may not have such permit, is made to rest in the discretion of the Board, uncontrolled, and unmeasured by reference to any test or standard provided by the ordinance. In failure of that, it lacked validity."

Commissioner Lindsay stated the ordinance did not require the application for a permit to contain any statement of qualifications to be inquired into by the Board, or upon which the Board should exercise its discretion in view of any evidence offered.

The ordinance, number 30013, governed the issuance of permits for quarries, kilns, tanneries, garages, slaughter houses, and soap, glue, vitriol, and candle factories, and prescribed certain conditions as to the distance these establishments must be from residences and buildings.

A Beauty Queen!

Dazzling Miss Elsie Swanson, 1329 79th St., Brooklyn, N. Y., is a winner of beauty contests and the inspiration of many artists! As a matter of course—and of wisdom—she cherishes her exquisite complexion with Black and White Cold Cream. She says: "Massage with this soft, velvety cream is as much a part of my daily routine as eating or sleeping—and I'm always going to keep it up. It smooths out tired lines before they have a chance to become wrinkles, prevents drying or chapping after exposure to the sun and wind, and keeps my skin always in the pink of condition."

This rich, nourishing cream furnishes just the right oils to stimulate the glands and keep the tissues firm, preventing wrinkles, crow's feet and sagging, flabby flesh. 80,000 dealers everywhere have the generous 50c and 25c jars.

If your dealer doesn't have the Black and White Beauty Creations you want, send his name to Plough, Dept. 121, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive FREE, a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

HORNSBY BATS IN FIVE RUNS, AND GIANTS BEAT CARDS, 13-2

Mexico's Doubles Team Defeats Japanese in Cup Match

BOB KINSEY AND BUTLIN WIN THREE OUT OF FIVE SETS FROM HARADA AND SHIMIZU

By Davison Obear.

Mexico won the third match of the Davis Cup series from Japan on the Triple A courts yesterday when Robert G. Kinsey, an American, and Claude Butlin, an Englishman, representing Mexico, defeated Zenzo Shimizu and Takeichi Harada in a thrilling five-set doubles match. The score was 7—5, 6—2, 2—6, 3—6, 6—3.

Despite the defeat, however, Japan leads Mexico in the contest, which is the American Zone semifinal, two matches to one, having won both singles matches played Friday. The winning team will meet Canada in the zone final.

The remaining two singles matches will be played today.

Play in Doubles Brilliant.

The doubles match yesterday brought out some of the best tennis ever seen on a St. Louis court. There were flashes of individual brilliancy which met favor with the gallery, which was larger than on Friday.

In the first set, Kinsey and Butlin exhibited splendid team work. The Japanese players forced the score to 3-all, but were soon left behind by their opponents. Net play was one of the main factors in the victory for Mexico in this set.

The second set was somewhat similar to the first, although Shimizu and Harada appeared to show more fight. Kinsey and Butlin almost camped at the net during this set, and to good advantage. Kinsey's short chops were effective, while Butlin found a number of openings in the Japanese players' court.

Japanese Improve.

At the start of the third set Shimizu and Harada put more force on the ball; they also realized that they must win this set to keep in the running. Play was close toward the end of the set and the better placements of the Japanese enabled them to win it.

Following the 10-minute rest, Shimizu and Harada started the fourth set, employing the same fast driving tactics as in the third set. They found Kinsey and Butlin somewhat tired and erratic and quickly won the set.

The fifth and deciding set was marked by fast play. Kinsey and Butlin got out of their slump and opened strong. The Mexico players played steadily, and in the pinches were very accurate. Harada was brilliant in this set, sending over many fast shots, but Shimizu slowed up somewhat. The score went to three-all in this set, but after that Mexico's players led all the way.

Tilden, Wiener Take Illinois Doubles Crown

Defeat Hennessey and Williams at Chicago, 9-7, 6-0, 6-4.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—"Big Bill" Tilden and his protege "Sandy" Wiener of Philadelphia, avenged their defeat a week ago in the National Clay Court Championships at Detroit by defeating their conquerors in straight sets today to capture the Illinois doubles title. Tilden and his pupil beat John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Luke Williams of Chicago, 9—7, 6—0, 6—4. The victory was Tilden's almost single handed. His terrific speed and deadly accuracy made Hennessey and Williams commit errors repeatedly. He covered the entire court during most of the match.

Tomorrow Tilden and Hennessey meet in the finals of the men's singles. Tilden had a terrific battle to turn back Wray Brown of St. Louis in the semifinals Friday. Brown, the Missouri Valley champion, won the first and third sets but Tilden brought out one of his spectacular rallies to pull through. Hennessey had a comparatively easy time in his semifinal match against A. H. Chapin Jr., of Hyannis, Mass., last year's champion. Hennessey won 6—1, 6—4, 6—0.

Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr. of Hyannis, Mass., The former Charlotte Hosmer won her second straight title in the women's singles by defeating Miss Clara Zinke of Cincinnati, 7—5, 6—1, for the Illinois championship.

Welsh, Reported Penniless, Left $128,000 Estate

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.

THE funeral of Freddie Welsh, former light-weight champion of the world, today was made the occasion of an announcement by his brother, Arthur Stanley Thomas of Summit, N. J., that the pugilist was well-to-do and did not die in poverty, as has been believed. Thomas said his brother, whose real name was Frederick Hall Thomas, owned property in Vernon, Cal., for which he had refused an offer of $83,000 three weeks ago, and that he also had real estate on Long Island worth $45,000.

Welsh, who was 41 years old was found dead in his hotel room on Thursday. His widow, from whom he had been separated, said he had died "without a cent."

WIGHTMAN CUP TEAM ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 30.—Britain will pin her hopes of victory on a youthful but also a well equipped team of women tennis players in the Wightman cup matches with America at Forest Hills, Aug. 12 and 13. With the exception of Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, who is due Monday, the members of the British team reached New York City today after an exhibition tour in Canada, and immediately started practice for the international team matches on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club.

SHERDEL TO PITCH TODAY

Fans Cheer Schuble on Each Trip to Bat—Youngster, Slightly Nervous, Has a Bad Day—Hornsby in Charge of New York Team.

REINHART and McGraw having been used up yesterday, Bill Sherdel will probably face the Giants this afternoon in the second game of the series. Virgil Barnes is due for New York.

John McGraw is touring the minor leagues looking over several young players out on option. Rogers Hornsby is managing the Giants during McGraw's absence.

Jackson doubled in the second inning, but tried for third on a short passed ball and was nailed by Schulte's good throw.

About 12,000 persons paid to see the opener with the Giants and several companies of student soldiers from Jefferson Barracks were guests of the Cardinals.

Fans Cheer Schuble.

Heine Schuble had another bad day, but the fans cheered him each time he went to bat. The kid is a bit nervous before the home fans. He has the mechanical ability, but he needs experience and it is a question whether it is good for the pennant chances to give him the experience at this particular time.

After Jackson singled in the fourth, Harper hit to Bottomley and both runners were safe when Schuble missed Bottomley's throw. Heine got the error, though to some observers it appeared that Jim's throw was not too good. Schuble was trying to watch the base and the runner and the throw all at the same time.

Schulte drew an error in the third inning that might have been charged to Schuble. On Hornsby's double to right center, Heine relayed the ball to the plate and his throw was low, though straight at Schulte.

Harper's Brilliant Catch.

Two clever plays stopped the Cardinals in the sixth. Harper caught Bottomley's hot liner at his shoetops and Hornsby worked fast to throw out Southworth on a grounder that caromed off Fitzsimmons' glove.

In the seventh Toporcer hit to Terry and was out, Fitzsimmons covering first. Toporcer made a slide that did not appear to be necessary. When his spikes scraped Fitzsimmons' heel, the pitcher kicked at George, which also was unnecessary.

Heine Mueller was called out on two close plays and threw dirt at umpires twice. McLaughlin got a shower in the fourth when Heinie was nailed trying for third on Hornsby's single and in the ninth Klem was the recipient when Heine was out at the plate trying to score from second on Ott's single. Heine always has the dirt ready.

Hornsby's three hits in four times at bat enabled him to reduce Frisch's advantage in the batting race. Frisch made a single in four chances. One of Hornsby's hits was a double. Hornsby drove in five runs.

Schuble struck out three times and walked once. In the fourth Schulte was given an intentional pass, filling the bases, and Fitzsimmons struck out Heine. In the sixth, with two down and one out, Schulte drew an unintentional pass and Heine again fanned.

The Giants performed more smoothly in the field and appeared to be more at ease than during their last visit here. Perhaps it is a relief to do a bit of thinking for themselves, instead of having McGraw do it all for them. Hornsby believes in putting his men "on their own," and the success of the Cardinals under his leadership proved that he had a pretty fair idea of how to run a club.

Charles Flint Rhem, the Cardinals' pitcher, who announced, after being fined $2000 for breaking training rules that he would quit the club and go home, was still registered at his hotel here last evening.

President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals said there had been no further conference with the pitcher and that the club would stand pat on the fine.

CHAMPIONS PLAY RAGGEDLY; REINHART AND M'GRAW POUNDED FOR 16 SAFETIES

By J. Roy Stockton.

There was too much Rogers Hornsby at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and the Cardinals, who gained a world championship under the same Hornsby's leadership, were unable to cope with the Giants under his direction and bowed in defeat, 13 to 2.

Hornsby was at his best. He hit a double with the bases filled in the third inning, driving in two runs; he singled in the fourth to send another run over the plate, and in the eighth he contributed another single, driving in two more runs.

In the field he was as brilliant as at the bat. He had eight chances and handled them all perfectly, and it was his great throwing arm that enabled him to complete two double plays started by Travis Jackson.

Hornsby was not the only Giant to shine. Fred Fitzsimmons pitched a masterful game, holding the champions to seven hits and the entire Giant team played brilliantly in the field, going through the nine innings without anything that looked like an error.

Cards Play Raggedly.

In striking contrast was the fielding of the Cardinals and it was largely due to the ragged defense that the Giants were able to step out to an early lead. There were five St. Louis errors and each was costly. Heine Schuble, the new shortstop from Danville, made a wild throw, dropped a thrown ball and missed a grounder; Jim Bottomley made a wild throw and Johnnie Schulte missed a throw to the plate.

The victory enabled the Giants to gain ground in the pennant race on all the teams ahead, with the Pirates losing to Boston and the Phillies handing the Cubs a beating.

Arthur Reinhart, who started the game for the Cardinals, stayed on even terms with Fitzsimmons for two innings and retired the first two batters in the third and would have turned the enemy back in order had it not been for the weak defense. With two down, Reese sent a grounder to Schuble and the youngster, in his eagerness, hurried the throw and pegged low to first. The ball skipped past Bottomley and Reese reached second.

Then the Worst Happened.

Trouble begets trouble and Reinhart lost his control and walked Mann and Ott, an unfortunate thing to do, with Rogers Hornsby next in the batting order. Rogers didn't waste any time. He waited until he saw that Reinhart was not going to walk him and then he picked out a good one and slammed a double to right center. Reese and Mann scampered over the plate and Ott also dashed for home. Schuble took the relay from the outfield and a perfect throw would have nailed Ott at the plate by ten feet, but again Schuble was too eager and again his throw was bad. The throw was straight, but it was low and Schulte missed connections. Ott, of course, was safe and Hornsby reached third on the error.

It was a toss-up as to who deserved the boot, but as Schulte didn't have any, while Schuble had quite a collection in the last few days, the error was charged to the catcher.

Those three runs would have been enough for the hard-working Fitzsimmons, but the Giants soon added to their total and again the porous Cardinal defense aided them. Jackson led off with a single to left. Harper grounded to Bottomley and Jackson was safe at second when Schuble missed connections with Jim's throw. Taylor bunted down the third base line and Jackson beat Reinhart's throw to third. Reinhart probably would have had no more luck trying for the runner at first, so Taylor was credited with a single. That filled the bases and after Fitzsimmons had flied out, a pass to Reese forced Jackson over the plate and Reinhart out of the game, McGraw going to the hill.

Heine Mueller batted for Mann and grounded to Bottomley and Harper scored when Jim's throw home pulled Schulte off the plate. Ott's sacrifice fly scored Taylor and Hornsby singled to center, scoring Reese with the fourth run of the inning, putting the Giants seven up.

The Giants went scoreless in the fifth and sixth, but again found the range in the seventh and added six more runs to their total in the last three frames. Ott doubled to start the seventh. Hornsby sacrificed and Ott scored on Jackson's sacrifice fly.

Hornsby Hits Again.

In the eighth, Fitzsimmons singled with one out. Reese was safe when Schuble missed his grounder and Mueller popped a single to center, filling the bases. After Ott

Cards in Same Relative Position As One Year Ago

THE many accidents and misfortunes that have befallen the Cardinals this season have failed to check the team in its fight for a second successive National League pennant, for the world champions are 27 points higher in standing than on the same date a year ago.

Also, the team is in exactly the same relative position in the race, being close enough to the leader to overcome the difference in three days' play.

The three leaders today have the following marks:

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pirates	57	38	.600
Cubs	56	39	.589
Cardinals	53	41	.573

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pirates	54	40	.574
Reds	56	43	.566
Cardinals	53	44	.546

The Cardinals have 58 more games to play, against 59 for the Pirates, and a year ago had only 57 games remaining, while Pittsburg still had 60 on its schedule.

BRAVES DEFEAT PIRATES, 3 TO 2 AND CUBS LOSE TO PHILLIES, 5-3

Meadows Weakens in Tenth Inning, Blake Outpitched by Ulrich

Hits by Bancroft, High and Walsh Drive in Winning Run for Boston—Cooney's Fielding Features Phils' Victory Over Chicago.

Bob O'Farrell's Cardinals overlooked an opportunity to make real progress in the National League pennant race yesterday, failing to win, while their two chief rivals, the Pittsburg Pirates and the Chicago Cubs, were losing. New York, alone, of the pennant contenders, improved its standing. Pittsburg lost to Boston in 10 innings and Chicago was beaten by Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 30.—Boston came from behind to defeat Pittsburg 3 to 2 today in ten innings. Meadows weakened with two out in the tenth and singles by Bancroft and High and Welsh's double scored the winning run. The Pirates held a one-run lead until the eighth when a wild throw by Meadows allowed the Braves to score the tying run.

Genewich relieved Greenfield in the eighth and the Pirates were unable to get a man to first base in the last three innings.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Philadelphia hit opportunely behind Chicago's errors and Blake's wildness to defeat Chicago 5 to 3 in the first game of the series. Despite their defeat, the Cubs lost no ground in the pennant race as the Pirates also were defeated by Boston. Ulrich kept Chicago's hits well scattered and was given sparkling support by Cooney.

Bicycle Riders Compete Today For Championship

City Titles in Junior and Senior Classes to Be Decided at Fairground.

Bicycle riders will compete at Fairgrounds today in races to decide the champions of the city in senior and junior classes. About 25 riders have entered in the two classes.

The juniors will race first, beginning at 8 o'clock this morning. In this class there will be a quarter-mile sprint, half-mile sprint, mile race unpaced and an endurance race of two miles.

After the completion of the junior events the senior entrants will compete in a sprint of one-third mile, a mile sprint, unpaced race at 5 miles and an endurance test of 10 miles.

In the unpaced race each rider will ride the distance by himself, the winner being decided by lowest time consumed. In the other races, all riders start from the mark at the same time.

The champion in each class will be decided on a point basis, the rider scoring the greatest number of points winning. The victor in each event will be awarded five points, second three points, third two points and fourth one point.

Those six riders scoring the greatest number of points will be eligible to compete in the eliminations for the national championships to be held two weeks from today at Fairgrounds, the winner to go to Louisville, Ky., for the national championships which will be held there Sept. 5 to 10, inclusive.

McGraw retired the first two batters in the ninth, but Taylor then beat out a grounder to Schulte, Fitzsimmons singled to left and Reese singled past Torporcer, scoring Taylor. Mueller doubled to right, scoring Fitzsimmons, and Ott singled, scoring Reese.

Holm's double and Torporcer's single gave the Cardinals their first run in the fifth and in the seventh McGraw hit into the right field pavilion for the circuit for the second tally.

Gehrig Takes Lead Over Ruth In Home Run Race

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.

LOU GEHRIG displaced Babe Ruth as home-run leader of the majors today by rapping out a pair of four-baggers, No. 34 and No. 35, off Pitcher Brown in the first game of the Yankees' twin session with the Indians. The Bambino was on base by virtue of a free pass when Gehrig made his initial smash in the fifth inning. None was on base at the time of the second blow in the eighth.

Ruth lost more ground, since at this corresponding period in his record season he had connected for 42 homers, against 34 to his credit to date.

Senor Mestre Refuses to Discuss Politics but Admits There Will Be a Battle When Unda Meets Ohta Today.

CLAUDE M. BUTLIN, 50-year-old Englishman, showed on the court yesterday afternoon why he is the holder of some 500 cups and medals in 15 or more different branches of athletics. Playing with Bob Kinsey against Harada and Shimizu, Claude did a calm and collected job of keeping the Japanese from carrying off the series, ably assisted, of course, by Kinsey.

The appearance of Ted Drewes on the courts in an exhibition match was a reminder that one of the most interesting of all national tennis tournaments will start on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park, Aug. 8. The event is the National Municipal tournament, which no one is eligible to enter unless he has won a singles or doubles championship on the public park courts of his home city.

Drewes has won the public parks championship of St. Louis for six years in succession, and he has won the national public parks championship for the last three years in succession.

Another Language in Use.

FOUR languages are being spoken at the Triple A club. They are Japanese, Mexican, English and Davis cup. No one seems to know just who invented the Davis Cup language, and since Dwight Davis, donor of the cup, is not here to be interviewed on the subject, there seems to be no way of finding out why, for instance, a Davis cup match between two nations is known as a "Tied." Or of finding out some other things. For what it is worth we quote a note which is printed at the bottom of the Davis cup rules in year book of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Verbatim, capital letters and all, it reads "Note: In the above regulations the competition between one nation and another is regarded as a 'tie,' singles and doubles are regarded as separate contests; and the best of five advantage sets is regarded as a 'match.' The players in singles and doubles are regarded as separate 'teams'; and the players in the combined contest as a 'side.'"

Senor Mestre a Diplomat.

SENOR EDUARDO MESTRE, the somewhat mysterious president of the Mexican Tennis Association, and "Father of Mexican tennis," who has steadfastly refused to talk with reporters since his arrival here, on the ground that he might say something in a strange tongue which would be misunderstood, yesterday admitted that he knows some English and consented to exercise it with the understanding that the conversation should be confined strictly to tennis and that Mexican politics should not be mentioned. "When Unda meets Ohta tomorrow," he said, "there is going to be a real tennis match. It is going to be one fighter against another fighter, and I predict you will see one of the greatest tennis battles that ever has been played on St. Louis courts."

H. G. Brouster, treasurer of the local Davis Cup Committee, announced that the receipts for Friday and yesterday were sufficient to meet the general expenses incurred in staging the series between Japan and Mexico, and with favorable weather and a capacity crowd today, the committee will be able to provide a good portion towards the traveling expenses of the two teams.

The spectators were for the matches conducted themselves in a splendid manner. Dr. E. M. Carson, who umpired the singles match on Friday between Kinsey of Mexico and Ohta of Japan, remarked that the gallery behaved better than in the national clay court matches here in 1924 and 1925.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS HERE ON AUGUST 22

The coming week promises to be a busy one in local bowling circles for, with the 1927-28 bowling league season due to begin Aug. 22, several meetings are scheduled for different leagues who will put the final touch to their reorganization plans for the approaching campaign. At the Rogers Recreation alleys the Recreation Ladies Matinee league will hold a meeting Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 2, at 2 o'clock.

On Thursday work will begin on organizing the Greater St. Louis Industrial bowling league, which will be composed of teams whose members must be bona fide employes of the firm under whose name they are bowling. The meeting will be at 8 o'clock. The Recreation handicap league will reorganize at a meeting Friday night at 8 o'clock, when the personnel of the league will be decided. LOUGHRAN MAY WREST CROWN FROM M'TIGUE

Light Heavyweight Champion Who Gained Title When Delaney Retired Faces Hard Fight Aug. 11

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

While all the world is wrestling with the question "Can Dempsey beat Tunney next September?" two interesting pugilistic situations will have to be unraveled in advance of the title fight.

On Aug. 11 Mike McTigue, again champion of the lightheavyweight world this time by default, will defend his crown against Tommy Loughran at Yankee Field. Later in the month Jack Delaney, who outgrew his lightheavyweight crown and voluntarily surrendered it to McTigue, will battle the conqueror of Harry Wills, Paulino Uscudun.

Mike, like old wine, appears to improve with years. In his thirty-sixth campaign he is a better fighter and probably will make a better champion then he did four years ago when first he won the title from that half-demented Senegambian, Battling Siki.

Mike was a "horrible example," as champion the first time. He was perhaps the most uninteresting battler of all those who ever won their way to the top or near it. He fought probably the world's worst "ho, hum" fight, when he met Jeff Smith, another fighter of the "safety first stripe."

King of Safety-First Artists.

In those days Mike fought for prevention first and then for results, if coming. A glove-grabber and safety-first artist, he made a dismal failure of his first tenure of office. Men were delighted when Paul Berlenbach defeated him for the championship, in 1925, and tickled green when Jack Delaney slapped him over for a knockout and thereby kept him from regaining the title.

Mike was an unbearable ring bore, in those days. But today, it is different. The light dawned upon Mike after he bit the rosin in that only knockout he ever suffered. He decided that his ways were bad and must be altered. So Mike went back to the plan of his earlier days, which was to win by knocking the other fellow dead. Mike's record contains 57 knockouts out of 123 fights, by the way.

The only reason Mike altered his style originally was that he broke his hand and had to "baby" it. Protecting his hand made a rotten fighter out of a good one. But Mike now has found that his hand is O. K. So he's shooting for all he's worth.

In Tommy Loughran, Mike will be facing a very canny young man, clever and fast, but lacking a flattening punch. Mike will find it hard to hit Tommy solidly in 15 rounds; on the other hand Tommy will find Mike not only hard to hit, but a dangerous man to take liberties with.

Mike fought Jack Sharkey in the eliminations of last winter and he made Dempsey's recent foe appear tame. He socked Jack cleanly with right handers several times, but Jack was too young and big and refused to tumble. Mike lost the fight in 13 rounds, but many would have given him the decision at the end of the tenth. A badly bleeding mouth caused by a piece of broken bridgework, compelled him to retire.

Mike and Tommy will furnish a very decent combat and it is a toss up whether McTigue or Loughran has the better chance to win. Loughran being the younger may take Mike's new-found title away from him.

As for the Uscudun-Delaney fight, Paulino is destined to stop many a blow before he finally admits the defeat we think will come to him. Delaney will be conceding about eight pounds to a man who has proved that he can take some savage punishment.

Delaney Too Clever for Paulino.

But Delaney is a clever boxer and a sharpshooter. If he doesn't bring down Uscudun at some stage of the game it will be because the Spaniard has an iron jaw.

Uscudun, against Wills, looked like a joke fighter. He was a poor marksman and knocked his foe out with a semi-accidental punch. Uscudun will not hit a foe like Delaney at all with that overhand right.

Uscudun beat a venerable old relic in Harry Wills. He was so decadent that many thought the bout was a "frame up."

As a matter of fact, Wills had lost his functioning so badly that he acted as though paralyzed, being unable to let go his punches or to get out of the way of the enemy blows.

Uscudun doesn't appear to have much chance to beat Delaney in 15 rounds.

SIX OAR AND FOUR OAR ROWING RACES TODAY AT BADEN CLUB

The Baden Rowing Club will hold its annual opening this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A six-oared barge race of one mile down stream with Baden, Central, Century, North End and St. Louis crews competing, will be the first event.

Babe Ruth's All-America Team Contest Will Begin Tomorrow

The Post-Dispatch Will Give Prizes of $100, $50 and $25 to Contestants Whose Selections and Letters Receive First, Second and Third Awards of Committee.

THE Post-Dispatch's "Babe Ruth All-America Contest" will open tomorrow.

The task of each entrant will be to select an all-star team of ten players (two pitchers and eight men for the other positions) which will most closely agree with one which Babe Ruth will choose. Ruth will be advised by leading baseball writers in the major league cities so that his team will be a truly representative all-America one.

Readers entering the contest will be required to send with their entries an explanation of their selections which must not exceed 200 words, the excellence of which will figure in the awards of the judging committee.

Only ONE team may be submitted by each entrant. A contestant violating this rule will thereby disqualify himself.

The reader submitting the winning entry will receive $100 and a baseball and bat autographed by Babe Ruth. Trophies of $50 and $25 will be awarded to second and third places, respectively.

The contest will close at midnight Aug. 31 and the winners will be announced a week later.

The judges, who will be men prominent in local sport circles, will be chosen in a few days.

Complete rules will be published in tomorrow's editions.

THE Red Sox won a game of ball
At last from Howley's minions;
Which proves they cannot lose 'em all,
Despite reverse opinions.
And if those Sox can turn the trick
On Howley's Hankeypankies,
We know some time the Browns will lick
Those bloomin' New York Yankees.

While we may be considered dumb
In making this prediction,
Some day the Browns will overcome
That Yankee-complex friction.
Although a long time overdue
To beat them in a tussle,
Babe Ruth may break a leg or two,
Or Gehrig strain a muscle.

R. Jones, next year will not defend
His British open title;
His energies he will expend
On matches quite as vital.
He won it two times in a row,
And is content to waive it,
And let some native am., or pro.,
From England's clutches save it.

It looks as though Chicago is going to get the big fight. The Marine ought to feel right at home on Soldier's Field.

While Dempsey's fighting has been confined solely to the 24-foot ring he is fairly familiar with the ropes.

Doeg In Final Of Metropolitan Tennis Tourney

Defeats Dr. King, Tenth Ranking Player of U. S., in Semifinal Round.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—John Doeg's devastating serve had today off, but in its place was a sharp-shooting placement game that carried him to victory over the tenth best player in the country, Dr. George King of New York, in the semifinals of the Metropolitan Turf Court tennis championship.

The 18-year-old Californian's triumph at 5—7, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2, carried him to the final ronnd and striking distance of his third straight title in his sensational invasion of the East. Tomorrow he meets Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., internationalist partner of Big Bill Tilden, in the hope of adding this crown to the Rhode Island State coronet and the Longwood bowl.

A triple threat who can serve, smash or split a hair at 30 feet, Doeg fell back on marksmanship and strategy when his service suffered a temporary lapse in force and consistency.

Rallying at the net, in the face of the veteran's stinging drives, Doeg shot his overhead returns to one corner while looking at the other. He won on the baseball principle of "hitting 'em where they ain't."

Doeg scored 39 placements to King's 24, outguessing his experienced rival and taking point after point on sharp cross-court smashes at the net.

King tried lobbing over the big lad's head, but gave it up when Doeg brought them down unerringly from all altitudes.

Despite his victory, it was evident Doeg was not at his peak at this point in his arduous Eastern campaign. He made many errors and covered no more court than was necessary.

The other finalist combination is Louis Thalheimer and Wilmer Allison of Texas. They gained the honor of beating Alan Herrington and Ralph McElvenny, Stanford University team, 6—3, 6—4, 6—8, 6—3.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., July 30.—Everything must come to an end, even the road losing streak of the Browns, as they proved today by overwhelming the Red Sox 9 to 2 in the second game of the doubleheader at Fenway Park, after the Bostonese had rudly snatched a 5 to 4 10-inning victory in the opener. The Browns had lost five in a row to the Yanks in New York and two here when they insurrected so vigorously.

According to all the rules of the game, the two games today ought to have been St. Louis victories, because the Browns, behind what looked like the invincible pitching of Milton Gaston in the opener, had a 4 to 0 lead up until the sixth. But Gaston weakened and the Sox made two runs in the sixth, slipped in two more to tie in the last of the ninth, when Wally Shaner tripled off the left field wall, with two on and two out and won out spectacularly in the last of the tenth with none out when pinch hitter Hofmann doubled, Johnny Tobin beat out a bunt and Jack Rothrock slapped a single to right center.

Vangilder Hurls in Form.

Elam Vangilder had the Bostonese just where he wanted them in the second game. They did not score until the last of the ninth, when it actually looked as if the Browns were feeling so good about winning a game that they were charitable toward the home town entry. In this game the Sox played a sloppy fielding game in the infield and Fred Wingfield being given a last chance by Carrigan in the box was generally ineffective.

The Browns hit hard in each game, particularly the twilight half of the program. Vangilder had so much on the ball that the Sox were forever hoisting it in the air or hitting on top of it and driving into the ground. Few line hits were made off his delivery and after the Browns had five runs, the Sox made seven of their 9 hits.

Shaner Gets Boston's First Hit.

Until the fifth of the opener, the Sox did not make a hit. Then Shaner tucked one in which did not mean anything in the run way. Bennett singled in the first and scored on Sisler's double. In the second Gerber singled and rode home on Gaston's double. A pass, a Sisler single and Miller's double gave the Browns their third run.

They kept it up in the fourth and made one on O'Neill's single, Gerber's bunt and O'Rourke's double, off the relieving Welzer, who replaced Russell after Gerber's bunt.

That was all for the Browns. A pass to Welzer in the sixth, Rothrock's double, an infield out and Flagstead's single to left after two were out and after O'Neill had dropped Flaggy's easy foul, gave the Sox two runs.

Boston Ties Score.

Infield singles by Myer and Flagstead, a Regan bunt and Shaners crashing triple against the left field fence gave the Sox two more and tied the game at four all in the last of the ninth.

Then came the last of the tenth. Hoffmann started with a double to right center. Gaston was losing his stuff. Johnny Tobin batted for Slim Harriss, the third and winning Boston pitcher of the pastime. Johnny bunted safely toward third and Rogell, running for Hofmann went to third and then raced home with the winning run, when Rothrock reached out and slapped a single to right center. Sox 5, Browns 4.

Wingfield No Puzzle.

Vangilder had the Sox by the neck in the second game. Wingfield was soft for the Browns. In the first inning O'Rourke walked, went to third on Bennett's single to right and scored as Sisler blazed into a double play.

O'Rourke and Bennett got themselves base hits to start the third. Then Sisler bunted toward third. Wingfield pounced on the ball and started to throw to third, saw that Rollings was not there, tried to halt the peg, but the ball broke from his hand and rolled to the stand. O'Rourke scored and Bennett went to third, Sisler taking second on the play. Then successive long sacrifice flies to Carlyle in right let Bennett and Sisler score. A base on balls, a bunt, a sacrifice fly and an error by Rollings in the fourth gave the Browns their fifth run, their last off Wingfield, because that was his last frame.

Three infield singles off Hal "Lefty" Wiltse in the seventh by Bennett, Williams and Miller together with a steal of second by Bennett let the Missourians get another, their sixth run.

Tobin Hits Double.

Three more runs scored for the St. Louis cause in the ninth when with two out, Sisler and Williams singled, Miller doubled and Adams singled. In the last half of the frame, the Sox made two complimentary runs for which they received mock cheers, when Johnny Tobin, in there again as a pinch hitter, doubled and scored on Rothrock's flukey two bagger in back of third base, with Tarbert's single sending in Rothrock. So it ended, Browns 9, Sox 2.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Babe vs Lou.

RUTH and Gehrig may be neck-and-neck for the home run leadership of baseball but there the equality ends. Gehrig has far and away the better of it, in driving in runs, the real test of team value. In this respect Gehrig leads Ruth by over 30 runs, with 128 to 96.

Counting the runs they themselves have scored and including the runs they have driven home, Babe and Lou have accounted for a total of 432 tallies!

Estimating the average winning victory at 7 runs—which is two more than the usual estimate—this would alone account for 62 victories!

THEIR showing on the road indicates that the Browns were routed in six successive games. Indicating they ought to be rerouted if they are ever to be headed for a pennant.

A Suggestion.

THE summary at the end of a big league box contains much useful information, but it lacks one real essential; the "runs driven in."

This information, kept up daily, would enable the fans and the club as well to determine who is who, in baseball scoring power.

The .400 hitters who are driving in a few runs, and the .290 hitters who are punching out hits with men on, would then get full credit for performance.

As it stands now only the official averages at the close of the season, give the public this information.

Guessing the Winner.

PICKING the winner before a fight is not much more difficult than naming him after it's over. Unless a battle is extremely one-sided or ends in a knockout, any old fighter is likely to be named the winner.

One of the interesting laughs along this line is found in the analysis of the round-by-round scoring of the two judges and the referee of the late Dempsey-Sharkey fight, which we reprint for inspection:

	O'Sullivan (Referee)	Mathison	Flynn
1.—	Even	Sharkey	Even
2.—	Even	Dempsey	Even.
3.—	Dempsey	Dempsey	Sharkey
4.—	Dempsey	Even	Sharkey
5.—	Sharkey	Sharkey	Dempsey
6.—	Even	Dempsey	Sharkey
7.—	Dempsey	Dempsey	Dempsey

This shows that the three officials (excepting for the knockout session) agreed on the rounds as follows:

Unanimous—None.
Two concur—Four.
All differ—Two.

Whaddaya Mean "Even?"

ONE of the amazing things about the affair was the fact that two of three officials decided that the opening round was "even," notwithstanding Dempsey was so badly punished that ringsiders wondered what was holding him up. He was groggy and it appeared that another punch would send him to the floor.

Charles Mathison, who voted Sharkey, is a veteran of 25 years' experience and is the commission's most dependable judge.

That a referee could boot one so badly indicates that fighters may sometimes be justified in complaints that they "got the worst of the decision."

No Remedy.

THAT is because of two things: First—Half a dozen persons may observe the same happening and, without prejudice, honestly report the occurrence differently.

Second—It has been found impossible to standardize the scoring of boxing bouts.

The last mentioned condition is the principal cause of the difference of opinion. Blows can not be weighed or counted. How badly a man has been hurt cannot always be gauged with the eye. The value to be placed on aggressiveness and even its exact definition, is problematical. What credit should be given for defensive boxing, and what penalty assessed for petty fouling have never been determined. Reduction of scoring to a mathematical basis has been more or less a joke; while the system of loosely keeping tab on a, battle by rounds is extremely faulty.

Fighting, Not Boxing

THE SITUATION results from the endeavor to reduce what was once a fighting game to the basis of boxing. In the old days there was always a finish to every fight.

About the only way to relieve the situation is to have no-decision contests, or else call every fight that ends with both men on their feet a draw.

The history of the ring and even of the late Dempsey fight in its first round, shows that because a man appears to be almost out and badly knocked around, it does not follow that he cannot come back and win.

To say that a man on his feet at the end of the tenth round of a ten-round bout is whipped, is merely to guess that he will not come back in the next round (if there be one) and defeat the other guy.

But decisions on a FIGHT basis form one of the anomalies of the present day BOXING game.

The way out of it is not yet; for no-decisions are just a cloak to hide stalling; and draw verdicts are almost as unsatisfactory as the bad decisions sometimes rendered.

Six St. Louisans Enter National Amateur Meet

By Gerald Holland

At least six St. Louisans will enfor the National Amateur Golf taurnament at the Minikahda Club in Minneapolis next month. Dick Bockenkamp is as yet undecided but the following already have declared their intention of making the trip: Eddie Held, Jimmy Manion, Clarence Wolff, Elliott Whitbred, Lawson Watts and Everett Brooks.

The qualifying round will be held Aug. 22 and 36 holes will be played each day thereafter until the final round, Saturday, Aug. 27. George von Elm is the defending champion. He succeeded Bobby Jones, who held the title in 1924 and 1925.

Most Active Golfer.

Eddie Held has been the most active St. Louis golfer in tournaments this season. He was defeated in the semifinals of the St. Louis district tournament by Clarence Wolff. He entered the National Open nad came out with a total score of 317. While defending his own title. Held was eliminated in the trans-Mississippi tournament by James C. Ward of Kansas City.

Eddie was the defeated finalist in the recent Western Amateur and next month will be his fifth tournament in less than three months.

Inter-Club Matches.

An interesting suggestion that would serve to stimulate interest in the game locally has been offered by Bill Shrader, starter of district tournaments. The plan is to arrange a series of inter-club matches between teams of 10 men each.

The first step would be the designation of a captain at each club who would in turn select and rank, after observing the game of each, nine other golfers. Captains of competing teams would exchange ranking lists at the first tee and the No. 1 on the first list would play No. 1 on the second, No. 2 play No. 2, etc.

The system of ranking suggested is interesting and compares to the batting order of a baseball team which is altered as one player or more falls off in his hitting. If a member of a club golf team who usually plays No. 3, for instance, is a bit off his game on one occasion he might be shifted by the captain to No. 7, or lower, where he would be paired with a less difficult opponent.

Shrader believes that the Forest Park Golf Club should also be represented, thereby affording public links players an opportunity to play other courses of the district and at the same time improve their game by competition.

Each team should be credited with one point for every individual victory. No match would be permitted to go farther than 18 holes. If two opponents are "all square" at No. 18, each team would be credited with half a point.

Two Hole-in-Ones.

Two Forest Park golfers made the coveted hole-in-one last week. J. W. Holloway turned the trick on the 230 yard-No. 10 hole of the 18 hole course, a par 3. A. N. Christensen duplicated his feat on the short No. 6 also of the 18 hole course. No. 6 is 172 yards and par 3.

Leave for Cleveland.

The last two members of the Forest Park golf team, Dr. I. R. Davis and Fred Schambach, left last night for Cleveland to compete in the National Public Links tournament which opens Tuesday. Togo Hamamato, Coleman and Clarke Morse, and Lou Schambach left early in the week. Secretary Robert Jordan of the Forest Park Golf Club accompanied Dr. Davis and Schambach last night.

Fred Schamback, Clarke Morse, Dr. I. R. Davis and Togo Hamamato comprise the local team which will try for the Warren G. Harding cup. The team trophy will be awarded for the low total score of the four-man teams in the qualifying round.

126 Holes in 12 Hours.

Those who puff after 36 holes should be interested in the feat of James A. McLaughlin, 35-year-old Harvard law professor, who bet that he could play 126 holes in 12 hours without extending himself. He started on the Oakley Country Club course in Watertown, Mass., at 4:24 a. m. He finished not only the prescribed seven rounds but four holes additional exactly 11 hours 21 minutes later. He showed no apparent fatigue and, moreover, averaged a fraction less than 82 stokers for each round. Dispatches have it that "strong men and duffers were awed."

Revolver Club Scores.

The Call - of the - Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

Birds Suffer From Flood.

THE question comes up repeatedly as to the loss of game of all kinds in the flooded districts of the Southern states, and until recently no authentic information was obtainable.

Different organizations, such as the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, American Game Protective Association and various chapters of the Izaak Walton League, have gone to considerable trouble and expense to estimate the actual loss, and even at this late day it is impossible to say with any accuracy the extent of the loss, though enough information has been obtained to say that in many of the flooded sections the game has practically been exterminated.

Ground-nesting birds, rabbits and even the muskrat were unable to save themselves in many sections.

The floods came at a very unfortunate time, as it was during the nesting and hatching season, and many quail and turkey, being unable to make long flights, were drowned, while those able to reach the levees and railroad embankments ran the chance of starving or being knocked over by refugees sadly in need of food. Rabbits were practically exterminated in all flooded areas, and deer suffered to an alarming extent.

Individual sportsmen, game wardens, planters and sportsmen's organizations did splendid work in saving deer and other game by scattering food on high ground where game had taken refuge, and in many cases removing birds and animals to refuges where food was to be found.

Taking such estimates as we have, it is safe to say that the loss will reach 50 per cent.

Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana have long been the mecca for sportsmen from the Eastern and Central states, but it will be many years before game will be restored to the point where it will be worth while to make a trip to any of these states.

It is to be hoped that during the next year shooting of all kinds will be prohibited in all sections that were flooded, so that the few birds and animals remaining may have time to get readjusted and a chance to propagate.

A Game Haunt.

A SHORT time since I took advantage of an opportunity to go over part of the 8000-acre property of the Huzzah Country Club, located in Crawford County, and found this tract of land to be an ideal one for the purpose of conserving and propagating game, especially pheasants and wild turkey, for much of the land is still in its natural state, while there is enough land under cultivation to afford good quail shooting in season.

In addition to the game already on the property, the members of the club have released 20 pair of quail, 500 pheasants and 200 wild turkey, and it is the intention to release a number of guinea fowl on land adjacent to the cultivated sections.

The guinea fowl has only lately come into prominence to any extent in this country as a game bird, and only a few privately owned shooting preserves have recognized the fact that in the near future the guinea is going to be worth while, and amount to something in the shooting world.

Heretofore most of us have looked on this bird as a domesticated barn yard fowl more or less of a nuisance with his noisy "Pot-rack"-pot-rack," kept around by the farmer as a protection against the raids of the hawks, for this bird of the jungle is quite a fighter.

Tips for the Camper.

SCOUR all pots and pans immediately after emptying contents, before they cool off, as they clean better and easier. Use sand and water; its far better than soap.

Most of the automobile campers of today carry a portable gasoline stove with them, which is almost a necessity on account of the scarcity of fuel along the highways and as a matter of convenience, but there are still a few of us who want to get away from the beaten track, closer to the wild than it is possible to go with an automobile, and for the benefit of the hiker or pack-horse camper, a few "dont's" may help some.

Don't allow a loaded gun to be in camp.

Don't carry all the matches in one container; each man should have a water proof match box with him at all times.

Don't, at any time lose your temper; it does not help one bit and makes the other members of the party very uncomfortable.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU TO TURN PROFESSIONAL

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—Duke Kahanamoku will turn professional next Monday night when he will appear in an act at a local theater featuring himself as the greatest swimming champion of all time.

The Hawaiian swimmer, who is 37 years old, said he regrets the surrender of his amateur standing but feels his long record and the opportunities for a good income on the stage warrant the step.

After surrendering his amateur status, he is planning to return to Honolulu to make exhibition swims in the national men's outdoor championships the latter part of August.

BEATS COPIAPO GOING AWAY BY HALF A LENGTH

Salmon Colt Stages Comeback to Win Feature Closing Day of Meeting; David Bone Takes Wakefield Handicap.

By G. F. T. Ryall.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Walter J. Salmon's Black Panther, which disappointed his backers Wednesday, came back and won the Mt. Kisco Stake for 3-year olds and upward at one mile and seventy yards, feature of closing day of the Metropolitan racing season at Empire City track this afternoon.

Black Panther ran a decidedly different race than he did the last time he appeared under colors. He carried 109 pounds, five overweight, because Barnes could not do 104, but Barnes gave him one of those good Maiden rides, which made all the difference in the world. The son of Black Toney—Greenery won going away from Copiapo, the favorite, by half a length and earned $3620 for his owner.

Weiner Assisted.

Backers of Black Panther can, in a measure, thank Weiner, who rode Mote, for the Salmon colt's victory. Mote, which has been showing to better advantage in sprints, went to the front at the break and took Copiapo along fast while Ingrid was well back in third place. Barnes did not make a move on Black Panther until more than half way around the stretch turn, and even at that point it looked as though Mote might last, for Copiapo was under the whip Here Barnes brought up the Salmon colt fast on the outside and he hooked up with Copiapo inside the furlong pole. The two fought it out from there but the Panama champion was leg weary chasing the pace and had little left. Ingrid, which had two hard races within the week, chased the leaders gamely. She was a bit sore in the paddock and looked jaded going to the post Mote stopped to nothing in the last furlong. The time for the mile and seventy yards was 1:45. The fraction time being :25 2-5, :49 3-5; 1:14 3-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:45.

One Hour Easily Beaten.

A. Charles Schwartz hoped to have a quick return on his investment on One Hour, the filly he purchased a few days ago from Joshua Cosden, but the daughter of Snob II-Daylight Saving was beaten easily by David Bone from the Belair Stud in the nineteenth running of the Wakefield Handicap, for two-year-olds, at five and a half furlongs, which was the secondary feature of the card.

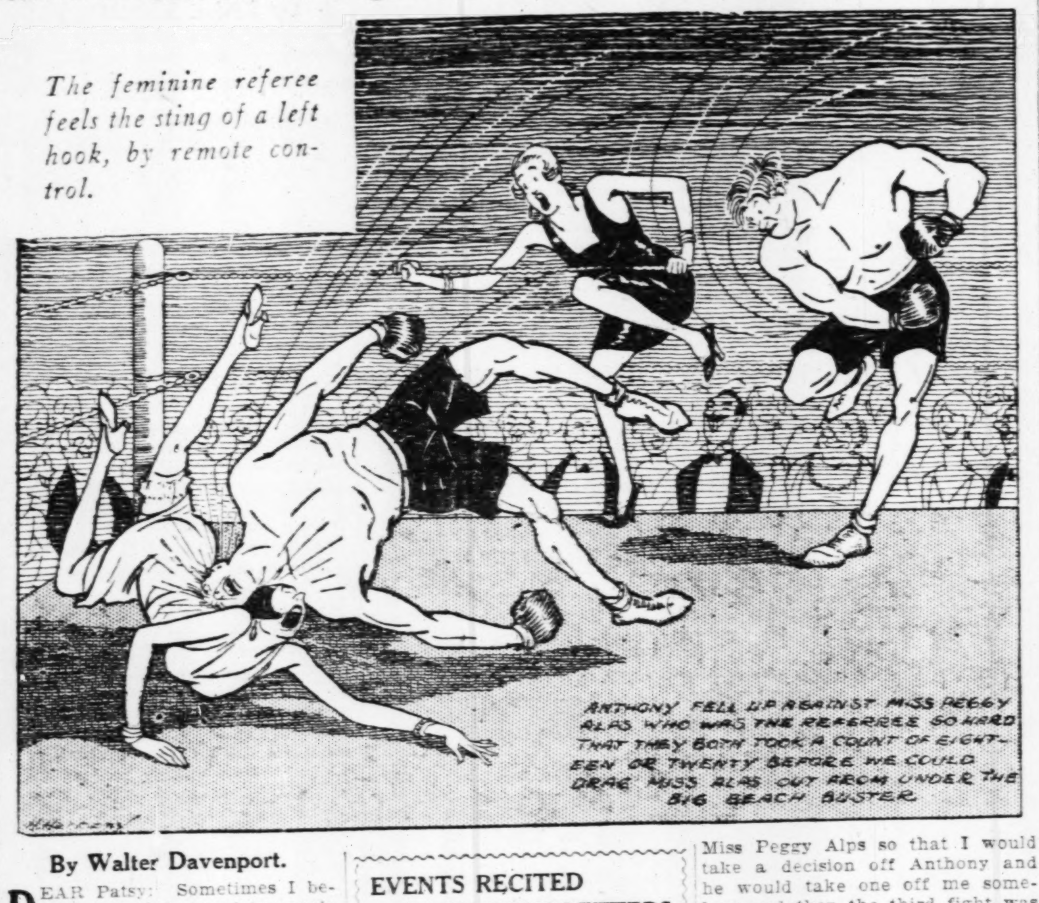
Frisbie Knocks Out Big Anthony

But "Crooked" Purse Goes to Charity

No. 17—A Fighter's Letter to His Manager



The feminine referee feels the sting of a left hook, by remote control.

ANTHONY FELL UP AGAINST MISS PEGGY ALPS WHO WAS THE REFERREE SO HARD THAT THEY BOTH TOOK A COUNT OF EIGHTEEN OR TWENTY BEFORE WE COULD DRAG MISS ALPS OUT FROM UNDER THE BIG BEACH BUSTER.

By Walter Davenport.

EVENTS RECITED IN PREVIOUS LETTERS

HARVEY (K. O.) FRISBIE, 18-year-old chauffeur, joins the boxing stable of Patsy O'Brien, a hard-boiled fight manager. Frisbie craves action with a head-liner but after watching Harvey polish off against several tough second-raters, O'Brien secures the boy a summer job as life saver at ultra fashionable Belgravia Beach. Mrs. Blish, who owns half the beach, is crazy about fighters and wants one to add tone to her swimming domain. Mrs. O. N. T. Sledge, Mrs. Blish's sister, is also pug-struck, but owing to a terrific squabble with her sister has ended diplomatic relations with the Blishes, taken over the other half of the beach as her territory, and engaged Angry Anthony, another canvas kisser, for a life saver. Shortly after Harvey's arrival, he agrees to enter a framed fight agreement with Angry Anthony, whereby two battles are to be fixed to stimulate betting on the third. Two fights have already been held, Frisbie winning the first, and Anthony the second as per agreement.

DEAR Patsy: Sometimes I begin to think that society people are not ladies and gentlemen after all, but a bunch of pretty tough babies because as far as I can see something has been slipped over up here at Belgravia Beach and while I am not saying anything about that, still in all it looks crooked to me.

Last night I knocked this Big Anthony, the beach guard, still in less than two rounds, and the only reason I carried him that long was that Gene Tunney was in the crowd, surrounded by a lot of society buds who always want to be amused, so are always inviting Gene Tunney and Mike McTigue to parties.

Before the fight, which was supposed to be for the benefit of retired polo ponies, Tunney was introduced from the ring by Miss Peggy Alps, the big society bud, who is very fond of retired polo ponies and was running the fight off for them.

"Let Mr. Tunney referee the fight," I said. "There will not be much for him to do except count up to 10 and anybody can do that."

"No," Tunney said, "when I go to a show like this I want to sit down where it is comfortable, so I can laugh with the rest of the people. Go ahead now and try to keep yourselves inside the ring, because there are a lot of ladies and gentlemen out here who would not want to be spoiled by having your boys falling on them."

"Listen, Mr. Tunney," I said, "I do not know yet how far I am going to knock this bozo here, but I will bet you my end of the purse that I can knock you 10 foot further."

"Well, that is news to me," said Tunney. "I did not know they give purses to boys like you. I thought you got paid by the week like any other night watchman."

"Try burying your clothes," I said, "if they belong to you."

Referee Also Gets Knocked Out

THAT cut him because it was a crack at his tuxedo suit he had on and I was trying to tell him maybe it was a hired suit or Mike McTigue's.

He tried to laugh it off but you could see it had him licked because he is very jealous of Mike McTigue in society life and he left the ring saying not to start the fight until he got to his seat because it was liable to be funnier than the Marx Brothers and Clark and McCullough.

With that the bell rang for the first round and just to see what would happen I bent a left hook around Anthony's chin and he fell up against Miss Peggy Alps who was the referee so hard that they both took a count of 18 or 20 before we could drag Miss Alps out from under the big beach buster so she could begin to count. She was so groggy she could not count more than five without getting balled up so we had to drag her over to a corner and give her some smelling salts and by the time she was able to count 10 the round was over and Anthony was feeling almost himself again which how he come out for the second round.

I would have carried Anthony a whole round more but Miss Alpses brother, the hurdling half wit, come to my corner and said:

"Listen, Frisbie, next time you sock Anthony try knocking him away from my sister because I do not think she will be able to stand many more falls on her head. She has had so many now that her skull leaks. Try hitting him up in the air and maybe Tunney or somebody will catch him."

Anthony Takes a "Flyer."

HE WAS right because when the bell rang for the second round Miss Alps was still groggy.

"Listen Miss Alps," I said to her holding Big Anthony off with my left, "go on over to my corner and sit down because we ain't going to need any more refereeing tonight and in a minute anybody could count for a week for all the good it would do."

So she went over and sat down in my corner and I let her go with a right and the last I saw of Anthony he was sailing out toward where Tunney was sitting with the top rope around his neck and one of his shoes still in the ring.

Now comes the funny part. I was to get 50 grand for slapping Anthony stiff and it now looks I ought to be glad I am not arrested.

Maybe I told you that Belgravia Beach here where I am a life guard for the summer is not good friends with the beach below where Anthony was beach guard and these fights I been having with Anthony for charity were fixed by Miss Peggy Alps so that I would take a decision off Anthony and he would take one off me somehow and then the third fight was to be on the up and up with all kinds of money bet both ways because nobody up here is worth less than ten million dollars.

Miss Alps told me I would get half the winnings for my purse for handing Anthony a good pasting so our crowd could make a killing for the poor retired polo ponies and as it was for charity I said I would although I never made a practice of it.

A Promise Is Not a Promise.

AFTER I plastered Anthony last night I asked Miss Alps how about my fifty grand and she said:

"I have been thinking it all over and I feel very much ashamed of myself for asking you to do something dishonest even if it was for charity. So I decided that I would respect your wishes and not be responsible for people saying that you ever got a cent out of a frame-up. So I am not going to give you a cent of this crooked money, Mr. Frisbie, as much as I would like to because you are a young fellow with your way to make in the world and maybe you would never get over having it on your conscience that you took fifty thousand dollars out of a dirty frame-up.

"Besides," she said, "we only took $90,000 out of that bunch from the other beach and that will not be much more than enough to stake the retired polo ponies I am looking after because polo is getting so popular that ponies are being used up by the carload every day and it isn't only their backs and legs that give out on them but their minds, too, because if a polo pony wants even the short end of the breaks these days he's got to keep thinking all the time as well as running because the men do practically nothing but sit down on the ponies and sock the ball after the pony finds it for them. So I know you will be very glad to let it go at that for the ponies sake as well as your own."

Patsy if Miss Peggy Alps wasn't a big society bud whose old man is worth 50,000,000 if he's got a nickel, I would say there was something crooked about this.

K. O. FRISBIE.

Patsy Has Some Hope Left.

DEAR FRISBIE: No you didn't get gypped. All you did was play around for the daughter of old man Alps who own practically everything west of Buffalo and as far as I can hear she is so much like her old man that he is scared of her. He got half a dozen railroads like she got the jack she was ashamed to give you.

Well it won't be long now. In another month those society people I farmed you out to for the summer will be thinking about Europe or something hard like that and you will be back training for the indoor fight season with nothing to worry about because you will be under the trained eye of your honest manager.

PATSY O'BRIEN.

DOWN the STRETCH

Laufjunge Entered.

THE GERMAN bred colt, Laufjunge, owned by Count Wolf von Heldorf, will make his first public appearance in this country tomorrow at Saratoga in the Inaugural Handicap, at seven furlongs. Laufjunge is under an impost of 116 pounds and will contest the race with Pompey, What'll I Do and a few other crack sprinters.

An ordinary field of 2-year olds will match strides in the Flash Stakes at Saratoga tomorrow. Many of the good juveniles are not ready for competition and are being prepared for the rich stakes later on in the season. Dice, rated as the best youngster in the country, Diavolo, Tuskegee, Ariel, Mowlee and Groucher are absentees from the field in the Flash Stakes. The best horses in the race are Archduchess, a filly, Scotch and Soda, High Game, Happy Time and Nassak.

Peanuts in Saratoga.

ROBERT L. GERRY'S Peanuts and William Jeffords' Mars will meet in the Saratoga Handicap tomorrow. Peanuts, winner of the Brookdale and Brooklyn Handicaps is at the top of his form and needs only a purse of $10,000 to enable him to pass the $100,000 winnings mark. The other starters are Black Maria, Dangerous, Light Carbine, Sanford, Display and Buddy Bauer.

One of the largest fields of horses ever to face the barrier in New York will probably go to the post in the sixth race at Saratoga tomorrow. Thirty-four 2-year olds were named overnight for the event, which is framed for maiden 2-year olds, at five and one-half furlongs. Many of the racers entered are making their first start. A few are named for the Flash Stakes and may be withdrawn from the sixth race in favor of the Flash.

Widener Horses Work.

ALL the 3-year olds in the Joseph E. Widener stable were out on the track at Saratoga yesterday morning. Osmand, third in the 1927 Fairmount Derby, Chance Shot, Kiev, Laddie and Royal Play were sent through the training paces by Pete Coyne. Haste, winner of the 1926 Fairmount Derby, was the only Widener 4-year-old to work out yesterday. All the 3-year olds with the exception of Royal Play, which went a mile, worked three-eighths. Haste turned in the best trial of the Widener string. He worked three-eighths in :37.

Brunswick began well and, racing with most speed, saved ground, only lightly shaken up in stretch and was in hand at end. Sanction, also away well, raced in closest pursuit of leader, made a weak bid entering stretch, but, although not good enough, hung on well. Porto de Oro broke fast, but stumbled when making first stride, recovered quickly and raced well. Huon Pine, raced wide entering stretch, finished fast. Sobrose tired in final quarter. Chief Sabbatus raced into contention with a rush, but bled badly and was taken up.

*Field.

Jim Bridger, better than usual, raced strongly restrained to stretch where, after coming wide, easily passed Keepining Time and, continuing gamely, held him safe. Hiram, having ample racing room after moving up through the field in early part, came to outside in stretch and, finishing fast, was going best of all at end. Noble Wrack raced wide to stretch, where he saved ground and finished with a rush. Big Chief saved ground most of trip and finished well. Keeping Time tired badly after entering stretch. Lincoln Plaut began slowly. St. Matthews tired badly in last quarter.

$2 mutuels paid: Jim Bridger, win $7.42, place $3.60, show $2.68; Hiram, place $4.44, show $2.90; Noble Wrack, show $3.10.

Aregal, hustled into lead and saving ground, raced with comfortable lead to stretch, where he went wide and, swerving out near end, had to be ridden out to stall off Moses. The latter lost ground racing around some of his field on first two turns, followed pace under restraint to stretch, where he was taken up and sent to inside when leader began bearing out but could not better his position. Brumfield was prominent throughout and outstayed Donna Santa. The latter was tightly pocketed first two turns, began moving up entering stretch, then tired.

Latter, prominent from start, finished much the best. Red Grange had his best speed and held on gamely after losing lead. Chink finished with a rush. Rocky Cliff saved much ground but could not get to the leaders. Edna Glenn stumbled after outbreaking her field but soon recovered and after showing early speed tired in stretch. Ruane was outrun.

Greenock, going in best form and handling his weight well, showed fine speed from the start, raced gamely and won easing up. Toro began slowly, was lightly roused to keep up in first quarter, moved up fast at the stretch turn and after getting into second place, was also taken in hand. Henry Schneider, forced to race slightly wide and in tight quarters first half mile, moved up fast after entering stretch, but could not get to the leader and was timidly handled when Toro raced up on the outside. Sun Friar began slowly, raced well. May Cooper was done after a half mile. Others weer outrun.

TWO ELEV

TOWER CAMP RALLIES TO BEAT RETAIL BAKERS

Huttigs' and Century Electrics' Game Is Called on Account of 6 O'Clock Rule — Friedens Virtually Clinch Junior Evangelical Flag.

Two 11-inning games, both of which occurred in the Commercial League, furnished the high spots for play in the Municipal Baseball League yesterday afternoon. The league-leading Tower Camp nine won from the Retail Bakers in the eleventh, 5 to 2, and the Century Electrics and the Huttigs played eleven innings to a 6-6 tie. The latter game was called on account of the 6 o'clock rule.

Retail Bakers led Tower Camp until the ninth with a single run, when Hawley, the Retailers' pitcher, who had twirled shutout ball though the entire game, suddenly developed a sore arm. He allowed a run which tied the score before he retired from the game.

O'Rourke Goes to Mound.

O'Rourke took up the burden and was successful through the tenth inning. Tower Camp got to him for enough hits in the eleventh, however, to score four runs. The Retails tried to stage a winning rally in their half of the inning, but it netted only one run.

Mathews and Abkenier, pitchers for Huttigs and Century Electrics, respectively, went the entire distance for their clubs in their eleven inning battle. Abkenier struck out nine men to Mathews' five, but he walked seven while his opponent issued free transportation to only two players.

To insure a record-making day for the Commercial League, the American Centrals and the Sunshine Biscuits, in the third scheduled contest, went through nine innings without an outfielder of either team making a putout. The American Centrals won easily, 12 to 4. It was their first league victory of the season.

Rock Island defeated Triple A, 4 to 1, clinching the pennant in the Manufacturers' League. Had Triple A won there would still have existed a possibility that they could at least tied Rock Island.

Friedens About "In."

Friedens virtually clinched the flag in the Junior Evangelical League by defeating St. Peters. The leaders have two games to play but their opponents are down in the standings and are not expected to give serious trouble.

Weise and Smith, on the mound for the Engineers in the Missouri Pacific League, allowed only four hits to the leading Freight Accountants, resulting in a close 5 to 4 victory for their team. The Accountants already have won the pennant, and the result does not affect the final standings at the top of the division.

TWO ELEVEN-INNING GAMES FEATURE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE BASEBALL PLAY

Huttigs' and Century Electrics' Game Is Called on Account of 6 O'Clock Rule — Friedens Virtually Clinch Junior Evangelical Flag.

Two 11-inning games, both of which occurred in the Commercial League, furnished the high spots for play in the Municipal Baseball League yesterday afternoon. The league-leading Tower Camp nine won from the Retail Bakers in the eleventh, 5 to 2, and the Century Electrics and the Huttigs played eleven innings to a 6-6 tie. The latter game was called on account of the 6 o'clock rule.

Retail Bakers led Tower Camp until the ninth with a single run, when Hawley, the Retailers' pitcher, who had twirled shutout ball though the entire game, suddenly developed a sore arm. He allowed a run which tied the score before he retired from the game.

O'Rourke Goes to Mound.

O'Rourke took up the burden and was successful through the tenth inning. Tower Camp got to him for enough hits in the eleventh, however, to score four runs. The Retails tried to stage a winning rally in their half of the inning, but it netted only one run.

Mathews and Abkenier, pitchers for Huttigs and Century Electrics, respectively, went the entire distance for their clubs in their eleven inning battle. Abkenier struck out nine men to Mathews' five, but he walked seven while his opponent issued free transportation to only two players.

To insure a record-making day for the Commercial League, the American Centrals and the Sunshine Biscuits, in the third scheduled contest, went through nine innings without an outfielder of either team making a putout. The American Centrals won easily, 12 to 4. It was their first league victory of the season.

Rock Island defeated Triple A, 4 to 1, clinching the pennant in the Manufacturers' League. Had Triple A won there would still have existed a possibility that they could at least tied Rock Island.

Friedens About "In."

Friedens virtually clinched the flag in the Junior Evangelical League by defeating St. Peters. The leaders have two games to play but their opponents are down in the standings and are not expected to give serious trouble.

Weise and Smith, on the mound for the Engineers in the Missouri Pacific League, allowed only four hits to the leading Freight Accountants, resulting in a close 5 to 4 victory for their team. The Accountants already have won the pennant, and the result does not affect the final standings at the top of the division.

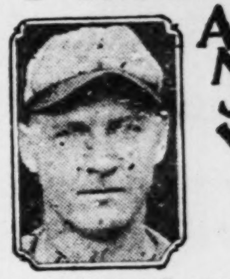
O'FARRELL'S ANSWERS



(1) Batted ball goes straight down and bounces on plate, rolling fair. What is it? (2) In trying to avoid what he thinks is a straight pitch, the batter is hit by the ball which is a drop curve and over the plate. What is ruling? W. C., Royalton, Ill.

(1) Fair ball.

(2) The umpire probably would call it a dead ball if the batter left his box and was in the strike zone when hit.

Runner on first goes to second but catcher refuses to make a play for him. Does he get credit for a stolen base? JACK HUNTER, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

He does unless it is the last half of the ninth innings with the home team far behind. Then the other side usually lets a single runner take bases at will and he gets no credit for these.

Triple Play in Ninth Saves Game For the Stars

Negro Team Wins From Chicago, 5-4—Wells Hits Homer With Three On.

A triple play in the ninth inning saved the St. Louis Stars from defeat in their game with the Chicago American Giants at the Stars' Park yesterday. St. Louis won 5 to 4.

Powell was on third and Marlarcher on first in the final frame when Foster hit to shortstop Wells, who tossed to J. Russell at second, forcing Marlacher. Russell shot the ball to Bobo on first, doubling the batter, and Bobo threw to catcher H. Williams who tagged Powell trying to score.

The locals collected four runs in the third inning when Wells hit a home run with the bases loaded. Bell and Stevens furnished the fielding features with single-handed catches.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon.

CHRISTOPHER-ZEIGLER WINS HARD ROADS BASEBALL TOURNEY

BENTON, Ill., July 30.—The Christopher-Zeigler Hard Road League club won first honors in the baseball tournament staged here for the past two days. Their final victory over Herrin, the second place winner, was achieved only after a hard conflict. Porritt, Carterville southpaw, had defeated Valier earlier in the day and then came back in the fourth inning of the final game and held Christopher-Zeigler helpless. The three runs scored off Burke, the Herrin starter, was sufficient, however, to cop the victory. Valier won third place by defeating the Christopher Independents in the consolation game.

Scores:

Herrin ....010 100 000—2 5 2

HARBOR POINT, Mich., July 30.—One of the most colorful events in the North this year was the opening party at the Harbor Point Casino last Saturday night. Several dinner parties at the Point culminated at the Casino, where the orchestra played until far into the night, the music drifting out over the waters of the bay to reach the ears of the people at Wequetonsing. Y

On this evening, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Meier gave a dinner party at the Harbor Point clubhouse in honor of their grandsons, Duncan Jr. and Henry. More than 35 friends of the Meiers attended the party, one of the most important social affairs given at the Point this year.

Mr. J. Frederick Schafly arrived at the Point yesterday to spend the remainder of the summer at his parents' cottage. He was accompanied by a guest, Mr. John G. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Woodward and two sons, Edgar and William, arrived at their cottage last Saturday. They will remain at the Point the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wessell Shapleigh and their son, A. W. Shapleigh Jr., and their daughter, Miss Suzanne, are among recent arrivals at the Harbor Point clubhouse.

Bates, young Chares Scudder, who shoots an even 80 on a 72 par course, Miss Isabelle Bond, Mr. Jackson Johnson, Mr. W. R. Compton, and Mr. Filley. Mr. Elias S. Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

Mrs. Joseph E. Widener gave the largest affair of the season Saturday night, when she entertained 148 guests at dinner with some 400 attending the dance which followed. Pink roses and blue delphinium were used for decorations, with hundreds of electric lights of rose hue arranged about the grounds and on the ocean side of the house.

MAINE COAST, July 30.—Nothing seems to excite such widespread interest at Bar Harbor as yachting. During the past week a number of visiting yachtsmen came up from Marblehead to take part in the racing. In the initial race, John S. Lawrence and his daughter, Miss Eloise Lawrence, won first honors for Marblehead. The Pulitzer boat, Elinor, sailed by Livingstone Davis, won fourth place.

Mrs. Loyal L. Leonard of St. Louis is visiting her sister-in-law, Miss Pamela Leonard, at the Mansion House, Poland Springs, Me.

NORTH SHORE, Mass., July 30.—The past week has been the most brilliant socially and athletically that the North Shore has seen in several years. The women's annual invitation tennis tournament has attracted America's leading players and Miss Helen Wills, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, Mrs. George Wightman, Miss Helen Jacobs and others are taking part in the tournament at the Essex County Club, Manchester. The presence of these players has also been the occasion for luncheons, dinners and dances at the villas and hotels along the Shore.

Del Monte's at Magnolia, has been a scene of gayety every evening this week, when large numbers came to dine and dance. Among those entertaining was Mrs. George Dobyne of St. Louis, who came with a party of twelve.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wallace of St. Louis, who are spending the summer with Mrs. S. M. Kennard, at her Magnolia cottage, were among those entertaining at dinner during the week.

Mrs. John Hays Hammond, who has been detained in Washington by illness, has arrived at her summer home in Gloucester. Her daughter, Miss Natalie Hammond, who remained in Washington with her mother, accompanied her.

Among those missed from the North Shore activities this summer is the family of the late Mrs. Francis Lane, of St. Louis, who for years maintained a summer home "Overledge" at Manchester, which is occupied this summer by a Boston family.

"Ingleglow," the Beverly Farms summer home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne of St. Louis, is one of the most delightful places along the Shore. Recently there has been laid on the terrace leading from the porch a cubana dance floor. This is of a marble-like substance, but not so hard as marble and makes a wonderful dancing surface.

Miss Ann Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wallace of St. Louis has returned from a visit with friends at Wath Hill, R. I. The Wallaces are entertaining a house party of young people, including Miss Martha Love and Hobart Cale of St. Louis. Considerable disappointment was caused when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," failed to pass over this resort on his trip from Boston to Portland. He had planned to circle over Rye Beach, but a heavy fog prevented him from flying any nearer than Portsmouth.

Gov. Huntley N. Spaulding, of New Hampshire, was host to the members of his military staff and their wives at his summer home, Willowbank cottage, adjoining the Farragut House. The program included a formal ball at the Farragut and golf on the Abenaqui links.

Mrs. John B. Shapleigh and her daughter, Miss Margaret Shapleigh, of St. Louis, are at Sawyer's

Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Kercheval are visiting at the home of Mrs. Kercheval's father, Mr. A. L. Shapleigh.

Rober Schlafly now holds the junior boys' tennis title at Harbor Point, having won his final match 6—4, 4—6, 8—6.

There has been talk on the verandas of the Harbor Point Golf Club of the approaching tournament. At this event the president of the club, Mr. Alfred L. Shapleigh, will award a cup to the winner. The tourney is spoken of as the "president's cup matches" and has been an annual event at the club for some time. The tournament will take place early in August after the completion of the "ringer" tournament, now going on.

WEQUETONSING, Mich., July 30.—Every cottage at Wequetonsing is open. The hotel is crowded and there are said to be more people at this resort than ever before in its history. Several old St. Louisans who have been pioneers at Wequetonsing say that St. Louis no longer is the best represented city at the colony. Hundreds of people from Louisville, Ky., and Cincinnati, O., have found Wequetonsing a most delectable spot. The old cottagers who sailed the Little Traverse Bay in the old days before the automobile still sling to the wooded frontage along the bay. The ol dfamiliar St. Louis boats continue to spread their canvas before the stiff wind, even though many of the younger families are absent from their former haunts.

St. Louisans are expected to play a major role in the three-day carnival which has been planned and announced. The affair will follow the annual regatta at Charlevoix and a similar event at Traverse City. The event is scheduled for Aug. 11, 12 and 13. It will be held in the picturesque bayou that separates Harbor Point from Wequetonsing and Roaring Brook. It is estimated that more than 50 sea craft owned by St. Louis people will take part in the races. According to William H. Barnett, there will be competition between all kinds and classes of sailing craft on Little Traverse Bay, outboard motorboat races, rowboat and canoe races, power-boat contests, including speedboats capable of 60 miles an hour; in fact, every kind of water craft race in the usual repertoire. There also will be swimming races, in which the young people from Harbor Point are expected to make a showing.

Mrs. Smith D. Galt is at her cottage.

ROARING BROOK, Mich., July 30.—Situated on a high, wooded bluff that meets the keen lake breeze from the "deep seas" beyond Little Traverse Bay, Roaring Brook is an ideal spot for those St. Louisans who seek the tranquillity and quietude of the North. At night the red beacon in the lighthouse at the end of Harbor Point marks out the resort across the bay. The roar of automobiles on the highway through the forest scarcely can be heard at the hotel. Many familiar St. Louis faces are seen on the walks along the bluff and in the parlors of the hotel. Several dinner parties have played their part in the summer activity record.

Mrs. R. C. Day recently gave a dinner party at the Roaring Brook hotel, which was attended by many St. Louisans from Roaring Brook and the several colonies that dot the shoreline of the bay.

The cottage of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McIntyre is one of the most spacious at the colony. It faces out over the lake and is the scene of many bridge parties and teas given by Mrs. McIntyre. Mrs. Langenberg is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre.

Mr. Chester Watkins is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Garrison at Roaring Brook.

At the hotel we find Mrs. Frederieck C. Bonsack and Mrs. Olive Niedringhaus Sharp.

BELVEDERE, MICH., July 30.—The attention of St. Louisans at Belvedere during the last week has been turned to the Northern Michigan open tennis tournament, which has been attracting spectators from all the resorts in this section of the State. Many of the St. Louis entries made noble showings, dying only in the semifinal rounds, as in the case of Mr. Austin Leland and Mr. Charles Fox. Two titles, however, were secured safely by two of the younger generation of St. Louisans here. Miss Freda Birge now holds the girls' championship singles title. In a semifinal match she wrested the victory from Miss Jane Finn of Cincinnati, O., in sets 6—3, 9—7. Mr. William Connett holds the boys' singles title, won in a fast match with Edward Rosenberg of Detroit. The final score was 6—2, 6—3.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Keys and their son arrived at the Belvedere Hotel last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker H. Woods and their daughter, Miss Helen Martha Woods, are at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Peters arrived at the Belvedere Hotel Monday.

After a pleasant stay at the W. N. Bemis cottage as the guest of Mrs. Bemis, Mrs. E. N. Beach now is at the hotel, where she will remain the rest of the summer.

One of the most attractive social events at the Belvedere colony this summer was the dinner party of Miss Ruth Curby at the Curby cottage Monday evening. A number of well known St. Louisans were the guests of Miss Curby, among them Mr. Allan Smith, Mr. Austin Leland, Mr. "Os" Cutter, who is with his family at Bay View, Mich., Mr. James Rarick, Mr. Jack Curby and Mr. Palmer Clarkson. The latter is the guest of Miss Curby, arriving late last week from St. Louis. The party was given in honor of Miss Mary Taft, who was one of a group of young ladies present at the dinner, and as the guest of Miss Virginia McVoy at the McVoy cottage. Others in the group were Miss Virginia McVoy, Miss Dorothy Moorehead of Chicago, Miss Elizabeth Clark, Miss Margaret Fergusen.

The luncheon of Miss Margaret Fergusen today at the beautiful Fergusen cottage was enjoyed by the usual group of St. Louis young people who are at the Belvedere colony.

The Belvedere casino is the background for the many social events of the colony. Here the young people go after dinner parties, to be joined by the many others of the younger set from all parts of the country who seek the summer pleasures of Belvedere.

Bridge parties and teas are the most popular diversion of the older people. Almost any afternoon will find a group of them congregated on the porches of the cottages along the bluff or in the sun parlors of the Belvedere Hotel. After luncheon, the Belvedere orchestra gives a short concert in the hotel lobby.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., July 30.—A halt in the social activities of many of the most prominent residents at Highland Park, came when Thomas Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mitchell, known to all the park folk as "Tommie," was nearly killed in an automobile accident half way between Grand Haven and Grand Rapids. With him were Millard Smith, a son of Mrs. Richard Hawes, and Jack Powers, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hugh Powers, and Francine Bull, all prominent St. Louis young people. Tommie still is in Hatten Hospital, where his parents spend all their days. Although in a serious condition he is expected to recover, but will be detained for some time. Millard Smith, whose ankle was broken in the accident, is on crutches with his foot in a cast. Jack Powers, who was cut on the head, is recovering and is able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hawes, who have occupied Slumber Hill cottage for July, have given it up and will return to St. Louis in a new Packard car made necessary by the almost complete wreck of their car in the accident. They will take Millard Smith with them.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, who have been occupying an apartment at the Oval, have returned to their home in St. Louis. They left this week but will stop in Chicago on the way. They have with them as their guest, Miss Henrietta Boyer of Georgia.

One of the biggest thrills to the resort section was the coming of the beautiful 140-foot cruiser, "Comoco," into port. It belongs to R. W. Judson, president of the Continental Motors Corporation of Detroit, who is well known to St. Louisans both here and in St. Louis. The boat is said to be the most beautiful on the Great Lakes and cost more than $300,000. It was launched July 1, and was brought to Spring Lake, where the Judsons have a beautiful estate. Miss Gertrude and Miss Ione Judson are graduates of Principia College in St. Louis. Mrs. Judson and her two sons have lived for a number of years during the winter there.

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Hyland of St. Louis and family are occupying the cottage, "Hyland," at the extreme south end of Highland Park. Dr. Hyland's brother, the Rev. Frank Hyland, has been in charge of St. Patrick's Parish here for several years. He spends much of his time with the Hyland family here. Due to the lack of car service at this end of the park, many of the St. Louis families living here will move to the north end of the resort or seek other summer quarters.

Mrs. Victor Decker and her son, Victor, who have been living at the "Oval," have left and returned to their home in St. Louis.

Among the other St. Louis families enjoying the pleasure of the beach and the accommodations of the Oval Apartments are Mrs. Arthur White and son Charles, Mrs. Andrew Cole Duncan and daughters, Jean and Anna, and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Rallinson Barroll.

A purse of $189 was given the firemen of the Grand Haven fire department by members of the Highland Park colony in appreciation of the work done by them in the recent fire which nearly swept the entire resort section last week. This purse was contributed to by all the St. Louis folk.

Registered at the Highland Park Hotel are the following from St. Louis: C. D. Tompkins, Miss Catherine Case, Miss Margaret Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kletzner and son, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lenz and son Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Lenz and Mrs. G. H. Hemker.

Owing to the accident to her son, Millard Smith, Mrs. Richard Hawes withdrew her invitations to a large breakfast which she had issued to a group of St. Louis people for Friday morning. The guests were to have included Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Van Cleave, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Van Cleave, Dr. and Mrs. John A. Graham, Mrs. Channon of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foristel.

One of the things to do here is the interesting bus ride to Muskegon, there boarding the large lake steamer, "Alabama," and riding to Grand Haven, a distance of 20 miles on the beautiful waters of Lake Michigan. This ride comes just at sunset and gives one a most gorgeous panorama of color reflected in the waters bordered by the shining dunes of the lake shore as the boat never is out of sight of land. Among the guests at Highland Park Hotel to make this trip were Mr. and Mrs. A. Markus and daughter Loraine, of St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Weber, St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Weber are enthusiastic members of the Spring Lake Country Club. Although they have visited the links at Muskegon and Holland, they find they in no way compare with this exceptionally beautiful course, located on the waters of the inland lake and situated on rolling ground with deep woods on all sides.

A number of the Park guests witnessed a diving exhibition given by Miss Elizabeth Phiel of Milwaukee, who is well known to the St. Louis crowd here.

EVERETT'S RESORT, EAGLE RIVER, Wis., July 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Kletzker and son arrived at the Everett Resort July 29 to spend a day or two.

Mr. A. Budde and Mr. J. N. Dazey of St. Louis are spending several days at the Everett Resort, having arrived here July 22.

Miss Joesphine Sommer of St. Louis is spending a few weeks at the summer home of Mrs. Henry S. Butler of 5534 Bartmer avenue, St. Louis. She is the guest of Mrs. Butler's daughter, Miss Jane Butler.

Mrs. B. Carroll of St. Louis is spending a few days at the Thurston summer home on Cranberry Lake. Mrs. Thurston was called away unexpectedly at news of illness of a relative in New York. Myles Thurston returned from Chicago, July 24 after spending a few days there.

A bridge party was held in the solarium at the Everett Resort July 26. Mrs. R. P. Atwood of 15 Southmoor, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burleigh of 53 Aberdeen place, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brewer of 71 Arundel place, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Handlan, Miss Jane Butler and Miss Josephine Sommer were the St. Louis guests.

Fred Atwood of 15 Southmoor, St. Louis, returned from a fishing trip in Canada on Monday night.

AUGUST SALE of COATS

COAT HEADQUARTERS greets the Winter Season, 1927-28, with the most impressive collection of Paris-approved Fur-Trimmed Coats in our history. This season the August Sale at Garland's is of utmost importance because it offers many exclusive modes of assured authenticity which will not be procurable later at such low prices as:

$58 and $88

Ability to successfully forecast the coming season's trend, demonstrated by Garland's through an unbroken succession of years, together with foresight in early purchasing of woolens and furs, enables us to present Coats in these two dominating groups which will later cost up to double!

Their exceedingly youthful, wrappy lines, characteristic of the new season, the new weaves in imported and domestic woolens for street or dress wear, the richness of their silk linings, the rare quality of their luxurious new fur trims, will impress you with the fact that Garland Coats ARE different and that the August Sale offers many good reasons for early choosing. Below we give a partial list of the selection.

Success of Woman
Not to Be Gaug
Trial, Says

Growing Spirit of Co-o Sexes Makes Bootles Ballot Totals, Write Committee Head of St en Voters, in Letter to

Editor Post-Dispatch:

WITH the approach of the anniversary of woman suffrage in these United States, the writers of political news, with a flourish of bold type, prepare to hand Milady the following birthday poser: "Well, old girl, you've had the vote now for seven long years! When are you going to stop doing nothing about it?"

Sometime a contentious soul will counter with a similar query regarding the men, who have had it for 20 times seven long years, but generally the question remains unanswered, as all rhetorical questions should, even when they are put by politicians.

But when one finds the brilliant and unorthodox Paul Y. Anderson joining the inquisitors, it is difficult to believe that even a dearth of political news would put him in the ranks of hack compilers. One feels impelled to reply with rigid sincerity.

In the Post-Dispatch of July 24 (Note: In an article printed on this page) Mr. Anderson attempts to evaluate the success of woman suffrage, although its effect on public affairs ought to be conceded as something which cannot be definitely determined at this time. Multiplying by two the voters of the country at a single stroke is one of the boldest steps which has been taken in the history of this or any other popular Government, and it is not to be measured after a trial of only seven years.

A Proposition to Meet.

Mr. Anderson surveys the present low estate of American politics, finds boss rule solidly entrenched, crime widespread, corruption and machine control the order of the day. Although in the very next sentence he repudiates the implication that these things are the result of woman suffrage, nevertheless the inference stands; and we must meet the proposition that granting the vote as a matter of simple justice is not thereby a justification in itself, but the wisdom of the change must be judged by the conditions he finds existing today. These he interprets in the light of "all the benefits which (we are told) would accrue."

It is necessary to admit that in the enthusiasm of any campaign, the leaders may exaggerate even in their own minds the beneficent results they hoped for. There probably were suffragists who believed and promised that "boss rule would be overthrown, corruption in office would disappear. . . ." And all the other Utopian pledges Mr. Anderson says were made.

A Difference in Leaders.

But it is important to observe a distinction between the wildly frantic type of woman who demanded the vote and stopped far short of fulfilling the thoughtlessly extravagant promises, and the sober conscientious leader who recognized the tremendous potentialities for good or evil of the newly enfranchised millions, and has tried with dogged persistence to promote the active participation of all women in government.

Here one may quote from a distinguished professor of political science, who is part of a large company of eminent citizens who have borne similar testimony: "Women have shown a greater sense of responsibility in the exercise of the suffrage than has been true of men. This has been manifested in the establishment of numerous schools of citizenship and institutes of politics as well as in regular courses of study of political questions in clubs and similar organizations. Success of Woman Suffrage Not to Be Gauged by 7-Year Trial, Says Missouri Leader

Growing Spirit of Co-operation Among the Sexes Makes Bootless the Segregation of Ballot Totals, Writes Mrs. Virgil Loeb, Committee Head of State League of Women Voters, in Letter to Editor.

Editor Post-Dispatch:

WITH the approach of the anniversary of woman suffrage in these United States, the writers of political news, with a flourish of bold type, prepare to hand Milady the following birthday poser: "Well, old girl, you've had the vote now for seven long years! A Proposition to Meet.

Mr. Anderson surveys the present low estate of American politics, finds boss rule solidly entrenched, crime widespread, corruption and machine control the order of the day. Although in the very next sentence he repudiates the implication that these things are the result of woman suffrage, nevertheless the inference stands; and we must meet the proposition that granting the vote as a matter of simple justice is not thereby a justification in itself, but the wisdom of the change must be judged by the conditions he finds existing today. And all the other Utopian pledges Mr. Anderson says were made.

A Difference in Leaders.

But it is important to observe a distinction between the wildly frantic type of woman who demanded the vote and stopped far short of fulfilling the thoughtlessly extravagant promises, and the sober conscientious leader who recognized the tremendous potentialities for good or evil of the newly enfranchised millions, and has tried with dogged persistence to promote the active participation of all women in government.

Here one may quote from a distinguished professor of political science, who is part of a large company of eminent citizens who have borne similar testimony: "Women have shown a greater sense of responsibility in the exercise of the suffrage than has been true of men. This has been manifested in the establishment of numerous schools of citizenship and institutes of politics as well as in regular courses of study of political questions in clubs and similar organizations. Women also have exhibited a far greater interest in legislation and the activities of public officials, and the latter have shown an increasing tendency to respect the opinions and policies advocated by women.

"After six years' experience of woman suffrage, my doubts regarding the success have been largely dissipated and I am convinced that it has contributed much of value to our political and social life."

Names Women in Office.

Mr. Anderson presents Frank R. Kent's statement to the effect that women as voters have not changed any political situation or altered the political complexion of any locality. (To isolate the factor of the "woman vote" is extremely difficult, and those leaders who have been concerned in making women an intelligent part of the electorate, have not as yet spent time in collecting scientifically accurate data on the points Mr. Kent has raised. However, notable examples of women serving successfully in appointive and elective offices comes to mind — among them, Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court; Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, Mayor of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming.

But why discuss seriously the effect of the votes of women upon the country when it is next to impossible to discover which votes were cast by women and which by men? Why not consider the problem of non-voting from the perspective of 10 to 20 years before equal suffrage and view the gradual decline of the use of the franchise before the precipitous drop of 1920 for which Mr. Anderson seems to hold the women responsible?

Voting Falls Off.

"Up to about 1890," the same Frank R. Kent remarks, "the average American's conception of political duty and his interest in government . . . left little room for criticism. Exactly what has happened to cause us to slide down the scale to the very bottom while the nations with which we formerly stood on a par maintain their standard in the face of the same sort of modern development, is hard to say. Nobody can be certain about the reasons. It is enough to know that the facts are true."

Walter Lippmann, in "The Causes of Political Indifference," emphasizes the dying out of fundamental difference between the parties.

"Anything which helps you to carry your State is the immortal principles of Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson . . ." he says. "The effect of these political disharmonies is to bewilder the electorate and to make the voters feel that politics is an elaborate game which has no serious and immediate consequences. The impression has gone out . . . that there is no use caring too much whether public officials are honest or whether elections are bought.

"The American political prospects call for an effort of thought which is distressing, and they open up issues for which political leaders, trained between 1890 and 1910, are not prepared. It is not surprising then, that our political leaders are greatly occupied in dampening interest, in obscuring issues, and in attempting to distract attention from the realities of American life."

Views Analysis of Figures.

In spite of the many indications that women received the vote at a time when increasing numbers of men were declining to exercise the right, in an analysis of the 1920 election figures Mr. Anderson as-

Mountainous Altitude Challenges Byrd on Flight Over Unexplored Ice Deserts Guarding South Pole

Blizzards Rage Over Miles of Desolation in Temperatures Lower Than Known in North—Wind Rises to Sudden High Velocity.

By BASIL GORDON RUDD,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WHEN Commander Richard E. Byrd and his party set out in September to conquer the South Polar regions, the expedition will be as thoroughly equipped for the attack as scientific skill and care can make it. Although it is a hazardous and daring adventure, it has no mark of being a spectacular stunt. It is the result of years of planning and research, fortified by courage and experience in polar flying, and backed by wealth.

As there has been no hurry in preparation, neither will there be haste in getting back from the South Pole. Byrd wants to find out all he can about the uncharted regions there. And to satisfy his curiosity he may require three years.

Among his equipment and supplies to be loaded on the Norwegian whaling steamship, the C. A. Larsen, will be a large three-engined Fokker monoplane and a smaller single-engined Fokker.

To Obtain Supplies in New Zealand Port

From Norfolk, Va., the party will sail to Lyttelton, New Zealand, according to present plans. In New Zealand fresh provisions and coal will be obtained before making the 2100-mile voyage on the steamer across the icy Antarctic to a landing place on the west of the Great Ice Barrier, named Ross Barrier after its discoverer.

The ocean trip through a sea of ice is full of peril. If the party is fortunate enough to reach Ross Barrier and land the equipment safely, general headquarters will be established there within 1000 miles of the Pole. With this main base established, the party will proceed to lay depots 100 miles apart and toward the Pole. These well provisioned depots will be used as service stations in case the planes are forced to land. They also will be used as sub-bases for exploration parties which will try to explore the surface with dogs and sledges. Byrd hopes to be able to use the small airplane to lay these bases and to reconnoiter.

Establishment of the general headquarters and the depots can scarcely be completed before the Antarctic summer will be gone and the sunless months of winter set in. The sun goes into hiding in April and remains there until late August. (It is winter in the southern hemisphere when it is summer in the northern.) Therefore it will be near the end of 1928 before Byrd's party may be expected to be ready to do much exploration work.

Will Be Thorough in All Preparations

The first year and part of the second may be required to complete the thorough preparations for the flights of the big three-engined Fokker monoplane. With suitable landing places surveyed and charted, and depots complete, the aviators will begin their task of flying over the vast spaces that have never been seen by man.

Roald Amundsen spent two months in reaching the South Pole from his base 870 miles away. Capt. Robert F. Scott trudged over the snow and ice nearly three months before he reached the goal from his base—traveling a distance of nearly 1000 miles. But that was in 1911 and 1912. And motors would not function in polar regions in those days.

If Commander Byrd can establish his base within 1000 miles of the Pole, and if weather and other conditions are favorable, he should fly to the Pole and back to his base in one day.

Blizzards, fog, terrific winds and unknown dangers await him who flies in the Antarctic. Previous explorers have collected information about some of the conditions of land and air there, but no one ever has tried to navigate South Polar air. For one thing, the altitude of the land at the South Pole is 10,500 feet, making the air rarefied and thus increasing the difficulties of landing. Temperatures are lower at the South Pole than at the North Pole. And although there are great areas of level looking surface, they are not always solid and smooth.

Plans to Explore Vast Unknown Area

Amundsen has seen both Poles, reaching the South Pole on foot and the North Pole by dirigible. Byrd was first to fly over the North Pole in an airplane, and with his wide experience of flying in the Arctic he expects to be first to fly over the South Pole. But his chief object in spending several years in the Antarctic is to explore what he can of the 2,000,000 square miles of unexplored area there.

Probably some persons will ask: "What is the use of these voyages of exploration? What good will they do?" Amundsen wrote in his book, "The South Pole," that people in 1912 asked him those questions.

Byrd has anticipated such questions. He knows that many will ask: "What is the value of this new expedition? What use will it serve?" In his characteristic way he has told of his hopes of finding the last unknown land, if it exists, so that a definite shape may be charted for the Antarctic. He seeks greater knowledge of magnetic variations, of ocean currents, of meteorological disturbances, of the earth itself and its history which geologists may unfold. All is not known about the South Polar regions, and it is Byrd's desire to increase scientific knowledge. It will be his purpose to inform us about vast land areas that are thought to exist. Flying over the Pole will be incidental.

Lure of Unknown Beckons to Poles

Why men venture on such perilous journeys is difficult to explain.

"These things must be felt to be understood," Byrd said after his flight to the North Pole in 1926. "There is no money to be made in polar exploration . . . I think the great driving motive in polar adventure, and the cause of the interest those at home take in it, are due to a deep-seated instinct in man. The lure of the unknown has always called him. To enter where no one has been before, to look upon territory where man has never set foot—these things exercise a powerful and irresistible influence upon the human mind . . .

"Why risk reputation, happiness, even life itself, merely to see what no other man has

How South Pole Looked To Amundsen and Scott

ROALD AMUNDSEN relates that he was awake several times during the night before reaching the South Pole and "had the same feeling that I can remember as a little boy on the night before Christmas. What should we see when we got there?"

Of the next day, he wrote: "We advanced in the same mechanical way as before, but could not descry anything but the endless flat plain ahead of us. At 3 in the afternoon the goal was reached."

Capt. Robert F. Scott, when within 200 miles of the pole, wrote: "The marches are terribly monotonous. . . . The plain seems to be flattening out." One hundred and fifty miles away he noted "obstacles arising. Last night we got among sastrugi—furrows formed in the snow by action of the wind. They increased in height this morning and now we are in the midst of a sea of fish-hook waves. It is terribly heavy in places and, to add to our troubles, every sastrugus is covered with a beard of sharp branching crystals. The vicissitudes of this work are bewildering."

With the pole 100 miles away, Scott reported that the plain looked very flat and was covered with sandy crystals of snow, forming a soft surface. Approaching nearer, he found sledding extremely hard work over the uncertain snow surface and bumpy ridges.

Geneva Parley Proves Stimulus To Building of Greater Navies By Five Leading World Powers

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.
Wartime Premier of England.

(Copyright, 1927.)

LONDON, July 30.

IF ever the naval conference at Geneva is put on canvas, it is only a cubist of the most daring school who could do it full justice. It is the most higgledy-piggledy affair that ever sat in that city of queer conferences. It must have made the blue waters of the Rhone bluer than ever to think that these intelligent, well-meaning nations should have come all that distance to quarrel over the best method of establishing good relations amongst themselves.

President Coolidge naturally was impatient of the futilities of the disarmament commission set up by the League of Nations. So it was decided to show these footling Europeans how business of that kind ought to and could be transacted. The British Government was inclined to take the same view. Japan also was dragged in. She could not very well stay out.

What has been the result? No one can quite explain. Every attempt to unravel the tangle baffles journalists, politicians and naval experts alike. The effort to understand what is going on has given Europe a headache. The comments of the European press therefore are fretful. The Continental nations never liked the conference and predicted failure for its deliberations. They are naturally in the "I-told-you-so" mood.

At the moment, there is one clear, outstanding result to this topsy-turvy conclave. Whether a nominal agreement is arrived at or not, this meeting will end in increasing the naval shipbuilding, not only in America, Britain and Japan, but in France and Italy as well.

America does not need light cruisers—Britain of the "far-flung Empire" cannot do without them. On the other hand, America says it must have 10,000-ton cruisers, armed with big guns. Britain thinks them a costly superfluity. So they suggest a compromise on the basis of equality. Let America build light cruisers it does not want and, in order to be equal to the U. S. A., Britain, on its part, will build heavy cruisers it does not need. And Japan will share the folly in the proportion of 3 to 5.

Equal Fools in Race.

America and Britain insist on being equal fools. Neither will yield the supremacy in folly to the other. They, however, stipulate that Japan must be satisfied with ranking as only three-fifths of a fool. It is not a question of security for any of these great nations, but of pride and prestige. It is the sort of thing that happened in the old days, when rival magnates filled their homes with useless retainers and their coach houses with useless vehicles, not because these expensive luxuries were wanted for service, but because the rival potentates felt that their position in the country did not permit them to maintain an equipage inferior to that of their neighbors.

Up to the time of writing this article, there seems no way out of this madness. Three of the greatest powers on earth have come together to a congress to negotiate a nightmare. Public opinion in this country does not understand it in the least. I understand there are some angry articles in the American press and the French press is sounding its shrill note. Britain finds itself being scolded on all hands for an offense its people have not consciously counseled, and Britain is completely bewildered.

No Plans Against U. S.

When Germany, with harbors just across the North Sea and a fortified base at Heligoland started building dreadnaughts, England was thoroughly alarmed. The panic of 1908 was a reality. It disturbed the sleep of Englishmen. But it never entered a single British head to build against America. War with America at any time or under any conditions is as inconceivable to the British mind as war with Jupiter. And Japan is such a long way off that its armaments never enter into any serious British apprehension.

The British mind therefore is perplexed by this unexpected rivalry which has been propelled by some mischief maker into the arena. It had accepted quite calmly the doctrine of complete naval equality with America. We all assumed, on this side of the Atlantic that the Washington Conference of 1921 had settled that principle once and for all. If the British Admiralty has, as suggested in certain quarters, circumnavigated its contract, then it has no support anywhere in British opinion.

A shipbuilding competition with America or Japan is the last thing the heavily burdened taxpayer on these islands would look for. And if it is discovered that this situation has been created by a backstairs endeavor on the part of British admirals to creep back into supremacy, the indignation of the American public will find a resounding echo on these shores.

All Parties Seek Economy.

The demand for economy in public expenditure is not a partisan cry. The supporters of the British Government are just as eager to obtain a reduction in the public burdens as the most hostile of its critics. Nothing is doing more harm to the administration among its well-to-do and most influential followers than the increase from year to year in the budget, which they all believe to be already much too high.

All parties agreed gladly to this naval conference because it offered some prospect of lightening their burdens. If it ends in a further increase, somebody's head will be called for. But it will not be Mr. Bridgeman's. He is the favorite of the Conservative standpatter. He possesses every quality of mind, demeanor and tradition which appeals to them. Whether he is clever or not, he has the good fortune not to look it. Therefore, he is not suspected of being too brainy. That is all in his favor with the solid and stolid classes upon which the Tory power rests. But he is supposed to be phenomenally sound in all things that matter. Strike his faith at any joint with the Tory hammer, there is not a crack anywhere.

Mr. Churchill is prodigiously clever but no real Conservative trusts him. One never knows where his cleverness will land his party. He has as little respect for frontiers as a man in an airplane. He is a flighty pilot for so earthly a party.

Bridgeman Is Trusted.

But Mr. Bridgeman is of the soil and looks it. He is, therefore, trusted and, whatever happens, he will not be sacrificed. To doubt his sagacity would be to cast a doubt on the inherent wisdom of Torryism.

The outside public, however, is not impressed by these ringside partisans. They are very influential inside a party, but outside they do not count. If this conference fails, the British Admiralty will be held responsible for the consequences—in this country. There will be a feeling that it ought not to have entered into so

Stung Many Times.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HEARTILY agree with letter from "Auto Owner." It is very difficult to get reliable work on an automobile these days.

The charge is $1.50 per hour, which includes time the beginners play around one's car.

A. J. MICHEL.

"Ten Terms for Coolidge."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"TEN terms for Coolidge!" Martin Madden has given to the coming campaign its great slogan and its great issue.

It is no longer a question of a third term, of prohibition, of religion; it is a question of a complete change of our Government. Mr. Madden, a great Republican leader, in "Ten terms for Coolidge!" has made Al Smith the next President.

DAVID WHITNEY.

Fears for Younger Generation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT development can we expect of our youth when they are fed up on Birger murder news and Dempsey-Sharkey headlines? Is it logical that our young element inculcated with and influenced by such sources, will blossom forth into manhood and womanhood of intellectual, moral and spiritual beauty? Surely our front pages can be taken up with more elevating and constructive news that will tend to develop the minds of our coming citizens in the proper direction.

ARTHUR BARON.

The Last Four Are the Hardest.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A REPORT from the Black Hills of South Dakota says "both the President and Mrs. Coolidge repeatedly have expressed complete satisfaction with their summer residence." Now isn't that great? Mr. Coolidge is a hero the way he has stood up under his ten-gallon hat while cinema men and photographers snapped him with his chaps on. He looks adorable in his cowboy outfit and must be getting a tremendous thrill out of the simple life among lusty pioneers. What I can't understand is why he did not wear an aviator's outfit when he welcomed Colonel Lindbergh to Washington. I think he would look cute dressed up like a flyer. Anyway, I'm glad he is completely satisfied with his summer residence. If ever he gets dissatisfied and feels as if he is wasting his vacation, and gets impatient because the fish won't bite, let him remember that the last four years are the hardest.

CHEERIO.

George Sisler and the Browns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE statement by P. De C. Ball that it is his intention to junk the present Browns will doubtless mean something to him in a financial way, but it is the writer's desire to ascertain just what the popular reaction to the trading of Sisler would be. You so ably editorialized on his constant and tireless efforts not so long since, and we wonder what would be your opinion of a trade which would send a St. Louis institution, George Sisler, away into other parts.

Is Mr. Ball ungrateful or what ails him? The majority of St. Louis fandom will heartily indorse the building of a better [illegible], but why tear down what little [illegible] us we have? Sisler is the only real [illegible] player on the team and without question the most respected gentleman on the ball field today. If you doubt that, kindly lend ear to the applause which greets his every trip to the plate.

Why not be fair, Mr. Ball? George Sisler is more necessary to your ball team than your whole so-called pitching staff. If you're going to tear down, why not start by building up?

TEN YEARS A FAN.

Let's Give Them Names.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE current American Legion Monthly suggests something which would add materially to the interest in aviation—naming airplanes. The powers that control the destiny of aviation in the Army and Navy are at present so lacking in imagination that the identification of airplanes resembles nothing so much as an algebraic equation or the chemical formula for hydrosulphuric acid. What is there to kindle the imagination in the announcement that Lieut. Somebody broke a few records in the H2OASDFG? Doesn't it thrill you, especially after you have memorized the meaningless symbols in their proper sequence? At a time when every Pullman, every flivver, and every canoe is thought worthy of a name, it is not too much to expect that the most imaginative and daring branch of the service will consider its winged steeds worthy of a name. If necessary, the War Department could hire a poet, using a little of that surplus to pay his wages. My heart leaps up when I behold a flyer in the sky, but it settles down heavily when I learn he is flying the PBX4711. Let us have a few more "spirits" of this or that and fewer airplanes numbered as so many box cars.

SO2NACL.

THE BATTLE OF MOTOR'S BILLIONS.

General Motors has finally gone over the top. With net earnings of $129,250,207 for the first half of 1927 it has wrested industrial leadership from United States Steel, whose net for the same period is $91,025,185. The latter, therefore, yields to its youthful contemporary with a $39,000,000 bow, which is some bow.

General Motors' premiership as a money maker is not unexpected. It has for several years been driving swiftly to that golden destiny. Neither in popular imagination nor in point of fact was United States Steel a rival. The race was between Ford and General Motors. Steadily Ford's supremacy was invaded. Into that lowest-priced field dominated by Ford Chevrolet made determined entry. Back of Chevrolet was a vision which Mr. Ford, for all his genius, did not possess. The vision of art in industry. The Ford product was solely utilitarian. It was the embodiment of ugliness, and seemed to glory in it. Chevrolet aspired to beauty, as well as utility. Within the limitations of price it achieved it in persuasive measure. With keen understanding of its market and human nature, General Motors has persistently striven for greater Chevrolet beauty.

Mr. Ford belatedly realized that even a cheap motor car must be something other than a means of transportation. Some two years ago he took cognizance of the fact that public taste, or, rather, that instinctive universal sense of beauty, could not be ignored. He made obeisance to it in changes that undoubtedly improved the appearance of his car, but which failed quite to confer upon it the distinction which Chevrolet had attained. So the one-time ubiquitous flivver inferior in looks and in performance met the inevitable fate of inferiority.

But Ford is not beaten. He is to meet the challenge of Chevrolet with a new car, for which the entire country is waiting. In the struggle of Titans, which Ford and General Motors will presently stage, will be much of the dramatic appeal of a personal encounter. It would be a drama of classic impact, indeed, if General Motors, like Mr. Ford, were identified in the public mind as a pictorial personality. That is not the case. General Motors is the corporation par excellence. It is impersonal efficiency. It is organization incarnate. Its executives perform their miracles at unheralded desks behind closed doors. Its official personnel has become a roster of millionaires whose names are unfamiliar to the man in the street. Its president, Alfred E. Sloane, occasionally gets into print, but rarely, if ever, between quotation marks. With the passing of Durant, who conceived it and who had much of Ford's flare for publicity, General Motors, as regards its individuals, retired from the first page and dedicated itself to business supremacy.

So there are the antagonists—Henry Ford and a Colossus of industry which is planning, so rumor says, to enlist United States Steel as an ally in this war for the dominion of motordom. Only a rash prophet would predict the winner. Probably both will survive. But whatever the result as between the contenders, the automobile industry seems destined to be revolutionized in the roar and carnage of this battle of billions.

HYMEN AND PROF. CUNY.

Hymen has just received a terrific sock from the six-ounce mitt of Ferdinand Cuny, who is recognized in France as the dernier cri, not to say the cat's whiskers, in pugilistic training. Ferd knows the way of a man in the ring as intimately as his countryman, Henri Fabre, knew the way of a spider in the web. And it is Ferd's conviction that, once a fighter is caught in the silken tendrils of romance and takes the count at the altar, then and there begins his professional decline.

How does he explain it? He doesn't. But all married men will understand. Many a raging bull, after a few rounds in the domestic arena, emerges as a mere bawling calf. It is a familiar sight in this topsy-turvy world to see a gargantuan creature, once the terror of the kids on the other side of the railroad track, become docile in the hands of 99 pounds of fluff, verve and paprika. Cuny deserves mention only because he dares to say openly what every man guards as his own private humiliation.

GOV. BAKER'S SOLUTION.

Gov. Sam Baker, not to be outdone by other bone-dry pooh-bahs, has his own receipt for making prohibition prohibit. All that is necessary, he told the Conference of Governors at Mackinac Island, is for Congress and the State Legislatures to provide punishments for the customer of the bootlegger.

Though we hate to disillusion Gov. Baker, who apparently thinks his solution of the enforcement problem is something new under the sun, we can't resist the temptation of telling him that one American State has already given his proposal a pretty thorough trial. This State happens to be Indiana, whose famous and infamous bone-dry statute, the Wright law, penalizes the buyer as well as the seller of anything containing more than the Volsteadian degree of kick.

How it has worked is known to all who have watched the news which has come out of Indiana since the new law went into effect. It has made possible and easy a novel method of framing enemies, and made blackmail one of the respectable and well-paying professions. It has also made Indiana a stench in the nostrils of the republic.

Now Gov. Baker recommends that other states adopt the same provision in order to solve the pesky problem of prohibition. Well, before they do so, would it not be a fine thing for them to observe how the device has worked in Indiana?

A SHOWING OF SAFETY.

Five years ago a series of mishaps such as Lieut. C. C. Champion of the navy experienced Monday in his flight after the world's altitude record at Washington would have meant the loss of an officer to the flying service. His plane almost inevitably would have gone to pieces in the air and, having no parachute, he would have crashed to his death.

Flying one of the products of present-day American design, however, Lieut. Champion was able to make a safe landing. With his engine going to pieces and sending a literal shower of pistons, connecting rods and miscellaneous motor parts about him, Champion waited for the plane itself to disintegrate. His situation was made worse by the fact that he had to sideslip the pursuit ship repeatedly to blow out the fire that raged in the motor cowling.

Regardless of the success or failure of the flight in the establishment of a new altitude record, it serves to show that even service flying is becoming safer and safer and that airplanes can be landed under seemingly impossible conditions. It is correct to say now that the military or naval flyer is as safe at his work as a commercial flyer was five years ago, while the factor of safety for the commercial flyer has increased to the point where virtually absolute security is assured passengers in well-conditioned planes on normal flights.

A PROBLEM STILL WITH US.

In discussing flood relief some six weeks ago Mr. Hoover said, "Our problem does not end when the waters of the Mississippi have receded." Subsequent events have emphasized the accuracy of this statement. In the Lower Mississippi Valley the needs of the refugees are as urgent as ever. Much of the land is still under water. The first railway train since April 22 reached Greenville, Miss., on July 16. Along the Atchafalaya River in Louisiana the flood waters are still pouring through the crevasses and several more weeks must elapse before train service is restored. Large numbers of refugees will not be able to plant even emergency crops of quick-maturing vegetables. They face a winter without income.

The only assistance planned for them so far besides relief from the Red Cross is a system of local credit funds, which it was originally estimated might amount to $7,000,000 for the three states of Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana. If this entire amount had been made available it would have been far from adequate, as it represented an average of only $14 for each refugee in those states. But no such sum has been made available. The loans negotiated so far have been negligible—a small number in Arkansas and practically none in Louisiana and Mississippi. The borrowers cannot give the security that is asked when their lands are under water and the rest of their property is damaged or destroyed.

Since these private financial agencies have proved unable to cope with the emergency, the only agency which can meet it is the Federal Government. It is the plain duty of the President and Congress to waste no time in planning for the adequate rehabilitation of the three-quarters of a million people who have been rendered destitute through no fault of their own.

CONGRESS AND NICARAGUA.

The National Citizens' Committee on Relations with Latin-America, of which Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska is honorary president and Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts is honorary vice president, is demanding a congressional investigation of the slaughter at Ocotal and the whole subject of our intervention in Nicaragua.

We may now expect to hear from administration defenders of the stamp of Judge Gary and Senator Smoot that this is but another mischievous attempt to embarrass the President. Such is the indignant chorus that invariably goes up when anybody dares to suggest any course that might disturb Mr. Coolidge's serenity. Mr. Coolidge, we are told, knows best.

That, it will be recalled, is what was said when Senator Walsh of Montana began to demand action in the matter of the Sinclair and Doheny oil leases, when Senator Wheeler went after the scalp of Harry Daugherty, and again when Senator Reed of Missouri called for authority to dig into the mess of election corruption in the Republican primaries of Pennsylvania and Illinois. The critics, nevertheless, stuck to their guns, and in each case with highly salutary results.

Will Congress allow the threat to Mr. Coolidge's peace of mind to deter it from an effort to get at the facts about Nicaragua? We cannot conceive that it will.

BETTING IN MISSOURI.

There is a moral in the discovery that with all the action aimed against it in former years, horse racing in Missouri, with the necessary corollary of betting, are by the mandate of the State Supreme Court legal.

That is, horse racing was never illegal, but betting was. Until the development of certificate betting, such as the State court rules is not a crime, an evolution through which betting has had to go everywhere to bring back horse racing, the sport of Kings has been as dead in Missouri as the lamented Caesar. Now it is coming back with a rush. There is a fever of preparation both here and at Kansas City, and long before the next Legislature assembles to review the scene horse racing will be on again.

This is because law cannot make crimes of what are not crimes. Betting under proper restraint is not a crime, nor can the law make it one. It is one of the chief diversions of life. So fond of it, indeed, is humankind that we have related it to life itself, to love, to every hazard of human existence. The people who like to bet on horse racing have suffered torment in Missouri since the abuses of this privilege ended the sport. They have been forced to go across the river into another State to have their fun, if they have not done worse and played the races under cover far from the tracks. They never gave up, and now they have found a way to restore horse racing in Missouri. It is the modern way, the lesser evil, if evil is made of it.

What eventual round-abouting, as we are doing in this matter, we could save ourselves by admitting the moral of this incident! After 20 years horse racing is coming back to the State, just as in the course of time drinking under some restraint will become legal again. It is not a crime to drink or to bet, but we break our backs trying to say so. Humankind, which is very wise in the mass, knows that neither of these things is a crime. It only waits for the wowsers to wear themselves out, and then blithely resumes where it left off.

PREJUDICE IN THE COURTROOM.

From the Survey.

NOT many people are competent to judge whether the evidence as to the killing warranted a verdict of guilty for Sacco and Venizetta. The general public, however, is perfectly competent to judge whether, in simple decency and ordinary common sense, the two men had a fair trial—remembering the strident spirit of the mob which ruled in those times. A large majority knows—and its knowledge is as good as that of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts—that the men did not have a fair trial. The elaborate and intricate legal machinery which enables common crooks to escape by excluding everything material, here merely acted as a sluice to let in everything not material, to enable a mob to consummate a man-hunt. There is perhaps a little reason to pause and to consider the result.

In Massachusetts, Cardinal O'Connell is not safe. He is a Catholic; and anti-Catholic movements are recurrent in Massachusetts. He may be next.

In Massachusetts, Moorfield Storey is not safe. He is an anti-imperialist. He may be next.

In Massachusetts, Philip Stockton is not safe. He is president of the Old Colony Trust Co.; and the public is in an unpleasant mood regarding activities of large banks and of the control exercised by leading bankers. Should a question arise as to one of his banking deals he may be as innocent as a child; but he is not safe.

Abbot Lawrence Lowell is not safe. He is president of Harvard; and from time to time, in a city growing steadily less Nordic, there steadily arises the hue and cry against the old aristocrat and the old institution. Neither he nor Harvard can count on legal machinery to judge of the issues of any controversy, uncomplicated by some hysteric pressure of prejudice.

Nor is the head of any public utility company, from the Boston Elevated to the little electric concerns in the Berkshires, safe; nor a Jew, in an anti-Semitic atmosphere; nor a Gentile when Catholic solidarity is invoked; nor a Negro, where the tide is all white; nor an Irishman where ku klux doctrine prevails. The prejudice can enter the courtroom, corrupt Prosecuting Attorney, jury, Judge; force a result, which the law will sanctify because it is too clumsy an instrument to sift out the relevant from the immaterial.

AN APPROPRIATE EMBLEM.

From the Gloucester Gazette.

THE Anti-Saloon League has served notice upon the Democratic party that it must not nominate Al Smith for President. Nor will Gov. Ritchie nor Senator Jim Reed do. Nor anybody else of the slightest dampness or the faintest hope of election. The nominee of the Democratic National Convention must be a bone dry to secure the benediction of this bipartisan religio-political body, which bosses the Democratic party South and votes with the Republican party North. Of course, if the Democratic party is foolish enough to pay attention to the edict of the Anti-Saloon League and ratify its choice of a nominee, whoever he may be, that will end the interest of the league in the Democratic party. When it comes to the election it will put its strength behind the Republican party in the North, East and West, as it always does. When you come to think about it, the ass is a rather appropriate emblem for the Democratic party.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING.

FRANK O. LOWDEN, in the American Review of Reviews.

ORGANIZATION of the farmers for the purpose of marketing their crops collectively is progressing. I believe that some day it will cover the entire field. Denmark has shown how, under the most adverse circumstances, it can transform the agriculture of a people. Wherever co-operative marketing is farthest advanced, either in the United States or abroad, there you find agriculture in its best estate; violent fluctuations in the markets eliminated; better prices to the producers without an increase in cost and sometimes with an actual decrease to the consumer; an approach to standardization of product; a more intelligent effort to adjust production to probable demand; a finer and more satisfying community life.

It is doubtful, however, if the co-operatives of the staple farm products are ever sufficiently organized to take care of this ever-present problem of surplus unless some way be found by which the cost of handling the surplus is borne equally by all producers of the particular commodity.

If the producers of any farm product are only partly organized and attempt to take care of the surplus, the producers of that commodity who are not members of the co-operative receive full benefit of the improved price without bearing any burden incident to the surplus.

What Is the Shortest Distance Between Two Points?

The geometry that we were supposed to study said that a straight line is. Euclid is credited with this remarkable discovery; he must have had a lot of leisure time. Secure in our belief as to the shortness of straight lines, we left school. The illusion remained with us until we began to travel. Every summer, as we idle away our time staring out of the window of the smoker, Euclid's idea is proved false. When we first learned that St. Paul is 40, 41, 42, 43, 44 and 45 miles from a field completely obscured by bill boards, we were inclined to treat the matter as a joke. We wrote facetious essays on the subject. But the years bring wisdom and a sense of the stern realities of life. One of our cherished convictions is rudely challenged every year, a conviction acquired in the tender years of childhood. If some man attempted to rob us of a cherished belief, we could argue with him. But one cannot argue with a bill board. At least, if such bill boards exist, they never have swum within our ken. What's to be done? Euclid says that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, but we know that St. Paul is 40, 41, 42, 43, 44 and 45 miles from a field completely obscured by bill boards.

ever seen? If one could answer these questions, he would find the secret of that impulse in the development of life which has raised him from a half dumb brute to the intellectual mastery of the earth, and the waters under the earth, and the air above."

Whether we can understand fully the desire for high adventure that has no bread and butter reward, our interest and admiration follow men who have the will "to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

From the small beginnings made in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries toward exploring the Antarctic, Amundsen and Scott were able to reach that Pole in the twentieth century. Formidable and defiant ice seas have challenged mariners to aproach the main land that surrounds the South Pole. Relentless floes move in the currents within the Antarctic. During the winter the sea freezes over. But with the return of the sun in September after months of darkness, the ice breaks. And explorers venturing south must have a ship with heart of oak to navigate successfully through these terrific seas.

Tons of Ice Crushed Shackleton's Ship.

Sir Ernest Shackleton in his book, "The Story of the 1914-17 Expedition," portrays part of his experience on the ship Endurance before it went to pieces in the ice pack:

"Every now and then we heard a noise like heavy guns or distant thunder, caused by the floes grinding together. The pressure caused by the congestion in this area of the pack is producing a scene of absolute chaos. The floes grind stupendously, throw up great ridges, and shatter one another mercilessly . . . The Endurance suffered from the strains at intervals. Listening below I could hear the creaking and groaning of her timbers . . . The ship was bending like a bow under titanic pressure . . . Millions of tons of ice pressed inexorably against her . . . She is crushed and abandoned after drifting more than 570 miles during 281 days since she became locked in the ice."

On his last expedition, Shackleton attempted to reach the South Pole from South Georgia, a point between South America and South Africa, near the Sandwich Islands. But he failed. The greatest and only successes in penetrating any notable distance toward the South Pole have been achieved by sailing to the region south of New Zealand through Ross Sea and thereabouts.

Capt. Cook the Pioneer.

Capt. James Cook in 1773 was first to cross the Antarctic Circle, which is about 160 miles from the Pole. Before the close of the 19th century a point about 800 miles from the Pole had been reached. Explorers by that time had charted islands, bays, mountains, volcanoes, large tracts of land that stretched towards the Pole, and the immense Ross Barrier of ice.

For a distance of 400 miles this ice barrier stretches along the sea from east to west and has a depth towards the Pole of 400 miles. It is an ice "prairie," and is thought to rest on the earth. Mariners approaching it see what appears to be a formidable wall of ice rising out of the sea to a height of from 50 to 200 feet. There are few places along its 400-mile front where a landing can be made.

It was on this barrier in the Bay of Whales that Amundsen in January, 1911, made his base preparatory to his journey to the Pole. His ship safely in this bay, Amundsen found no difficulty in landing his party and climbing the gentle slope to the top of the barrier.

"Seals were lying along the ice-foot as far as the eye could reach—great fat mountains of flesh," Amundsen relates in his book. "There was teaming life on the ice. Wherever we turned we saw great herds of seals. The great sea-leopard, which we had seen occasionally on the ice floes, was not to be found here. During our whole stay in the Bay of Whales (nearly a year) we did not see a single specimen of it • • •

Penguins Eye the Visitors.

"While we were at work making the ship fast, a flock of penguins suddenly shot up out of the water and on to the ice. They looked about them in surprise for a moment . . . but it seemed as if their astonishment soon gave way to a desire to see what was happening. They positively sat and studied all our movements. . . . They did not appear to be the least afraid of us."

About the same time that Amundsen landed at the Bay of Whales, Scott had anchored in McMurdo Sound, 350 miles west and a little north of Amundsen. Scott reports seeing numerous killer whales, penguins, seals, and skua gulls. In the summer months, especially, ample food is obtainable along the Ross Barrier near the sea, but explorers who have gone from there toward the Pole report there is no life inland. They are dependent on food supplies which they must carry along. No polar bears have been seen there. And unlike North Polar regions, there are no Eskimos, or other human life inhabiting South Polar regions.

Approximately 900 miles from the Pole, Amundsen and Scott during 1911 established bases from which they laid depots for several hundred miles along the lines they proposed to follow to the Pole the next summer. Then came the long winter at their bases with four months of sunless days. During these days the explorers were not idle. Work had to be done on equipment. Meteorological instru-

Then came the long inter at their bases with four onths of sunless days. During ese days the explorers were not le. Work had to be done on uipment. Meteorological instruments were read regularly, which necessitated making rounds out in the cold through day and night. In this way information has been accumulated that may be useful to aviators.

Scott Tells of Blizzards.

In reading Amundsen's "South Pole" there is little reference to blizzards. But on turning to "Scott's Last Expedition" one is struck by the frequency with which he mentions them. It has been found that the blizzards are more frequent on the western half of the Ross Barrier, and they greatly increased Scott's difficulties in comparison with Amundsen's.

A chapter from Scott's report describes a blizzard at his base headquarters.

"In one gust," he relates, "the wind rose from 4 to 68 miles an hour and fell again to 20 miles an hour within a minute. Another reach 1 80 miles an hour, but not from such a low point of origin. The effect in the hut was curious; for a space all would be quiet, then a shattering blast would descend with a clatter and rattle past ventilator and chimneys, so sudden, so threatening, that it was comforting to remember the solid structure of our building."

From the diary of a sub-exploration party at Cape Crozier are these lines describing a blizzard: "The roar of the wind in the igloo sounded just like the rush of an express train through a tunnel. As it topped the rise it sucked our roof cloth upwards, letting it down with tremendous bangs. We could talk only in shouts."

Amundsen Had Better Weather.

These blizzards along the western side of the Great Ice Barrier were fatal to Scott's party after he had reached the Pole and was within 15 miles of a depot on his return journey. Fortune was more favorable to Amundsen, who experienced propitious weather compared with what Scott encountered.

Amundsen's great fear had been the ice his ship would encounter in the Antarctic Sea. He had felt that once he was on the barrier with his dogs, he would attain his goal. And dogs proved themselves faster and better suited to pulling sledges over snow and ice than the ponies Scott had relied largely upon.

The distance to the Pole from Amundsen's base at the Bay of Whales was 870 miles. From Scott's base at Camp Evans the distance traveled was near 1000 miles. Dog teams in those regions can make from five to 40 or more miles a day, depending on the size of their packs and the condition of the ice and snow. Amundsen averaged 15½ miles a day on his journey to the Pole. Scott averaged a little less.

Both Shackleton and Scott had hoped to use motors to propel them on the ground on their last expeditions. Shackleton's ship was crushed in ice, so that he did not get to try his engines. Scott's were a complete failure.

Pole on High Plateau.

In contrast to the North Polar region, which is an icy sea surrounded by land, the South Polar region is land surrounded by sea. The South Pole is on an immense plateau 10,500 feet above sea level. Both Scott and Amundsen, after leaving the Great Ice Barrier which joins the land about 500 miles from the Pole, came to mountainous country.

"The land under which we now lay, and which we were to attack," Amundsen relates in telling of his prospect, "looked perfectly impossible, with peaks along the Barrier which rose to heights of from 2000 to 10,000 feet. Farther south we saw more peaks, of 15,000 feet or higher.

"Next day we began to climb. The first part of the work was easy, as the ground rose gradually with smooth snow slopes below the mountainside. Our dogs working well, it did not take us long to get over these slopes. At the next point we met with some small, very steep glaciers, and here we had to harness 20 dogs to each sledge and take the four sledges in two journeys. Some places were so steep that it was difficult to use our ski. Several times we were compelled by deep crevices to turn back. Many detours had to be made to avoid broad fissures and open crevasses."

But as the party approached the Pole the descent sloped to a broad plateau.

Saw Some Fine Scenery.

Scott's journey was full of hardship on account of extremely hostile weather. Both parties reported seeing beautiful glacial regions, and at times the magnificent scenery drew extravagant praise from the hardened explorers.

Whether land extends very far to other points of the Pole besides those from which Scott and Amundsen approached it is not known. It is known that land forms an interrupted ring around the Pole. Mountain ranges extend from it north for hundreds of miles in the direction of Tasmania. East of those mountains is a vast area named South Victoria Land. To the east of the Ross Barrier is King Edward VII Land. Other lands have been sighted on the edge of the Antarctic Circle off the ends of South Africa and South America, but no exploration party ever has entered very far into the Antractic from those longitudes.

The temperature around the South Pole is extreemly severe at times, esecially when there are blizzards, as there are frequently. The glaciation of large areas, the ice floes, and the saturated condition of the atmosphere near the sea produce heavy fogs off land. Rain seldom falls within the ice-bound area and the atmosphere toward the Pole over the land is comparatively dry.

NOT YET TIME TO PASS JUDGMENT ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

sumes that of the total number of males eligible to vote, "there is no reason to believe that the male percentage fell off in 1920." He therefore credits 67 per cent of the total number of males eligible to vote as having evercised that right since that was the percentage in the 1916 election.

"If that is true, he guardedly submits, "since the number of votes actually cast was 49.3 per cent of the total eligible, only 35.1 per cent of the women eligible to vote did vote." (The qualifying clause is rather a gesture of courtesy than an admission of the likelihood of error, for Mr. Anderson assumes a priori that only this small percentage of newly enfranchised women chose to make themselves electors.)

But did the most sanguine supporters or fearful foes of woman suffrage expect a hundred per cent registration in view of the confronting difficulties? In every section of the country, among all sorts of women of various occupation and different habits of life, there was to be met opposition, indifference and a natural bewilderment attendant upon the unaccustomed use of the machinery of voting as well as the serious obligation of making intelligent choices.

The low resulting percentage was a grievous disappointment to the women leaders, and their subsequent activity in Get-Out-the-Vote movements testifies to their sincerity if not their success.

Women Not a Unit.

But it must be remembered in considering the 1920 election that women were not a unit in seeking the vote nor is it to be hoped that they will need to vote as a unit. either for validating Mr. Anderson's statistics or for securing benefits that seem peculiarly their own. The stakes in life for men and women are alike, and although such subjects as the hygiene of infancy and maternity have engaged to a greater degree the interest of women, perhaps the social conscience of men will some day be equally aroused.

To make women appreciate the power of their vote in determining such questions as war, education, taxation, control of the necessities of life and so on, is the immediate concern of women in the National League of Women Voters. whose statement to President Coolidge that in non-voting women are the worst offenders, is quoted by Mr. Anderson. He might add to this admission on their part (which has been made after a careful study of voting habits in localities where it has been possible to get accurate figures and information) the League's recommendation for the improvement of registration and election machinery:

Registration at times and places convenient to the voter.

Reasonable residence requirements for voting.

Suitable polling places.

Efficient judges and clerks.

Precincts small enough so there may be no long waiting at the polls.

Corrupt practice acts giving assurance of a fair count of ballots cast.

A short ballot intelligently arranged, and

Facts in Child Labor Result.

Returning now to Mr. Anderson's article, we find him citing the case of the voters of Massachusetts defeating the Federal child labor amendment, an instance of women voting just as men had done, to the confusion of the prophets who had supposed this to be "a measure which would naturally be expected to command the support of women generally."

But is it reasonable to fail to take into account the various factors in the situation—namely, growing hostility to the doctrine of Federal control which was apparent in practically all parts of the country, the fact that Massachusetts was the center of the textile industry which would be directly affected by the proposed legislation, that it was the citadel of those strange dark forces of anti-suffrage (forces which are now, by the way, turning their guns upon the "peace" activities of various women's organizations) and that it was the seat of an isolated instance of religious influence brought unfairly to bear upon a political question?

Is it not too much to hope that as a class women would by the use of sheer intelligence withstand these overwhelming currents? Would not Mr. Anderson be among the first to deplore the possibility of men and women of a State arraigned on opposite sides of any political, social or economical question whatever?

Growing Spirit of Unity.

Let us as women ruefully admit the low degree of popular interest and participation in Government and the correspondingly low quality of Government. Let us cheerfully admit that as women we must bear our share of the moral responsibility. Some of us are trying desperately to awaken the conscience of our fellow-citizens, but we are no longer separating the species in this man-and-woman world. It is significant of a growing spirit of co-operation among men and women that Charles and Mary Beard, working together, should have said in their powerful "Rise of American Civilization," "Women appear . . . as an integral part of the changing, growing population."

The cartoon which accompanied Mr. Anderson's article ironically enough illustrates these comments better than his own. The arrogance and contemptuousness of "politics" which Mr. Fitzpatrick has portrayed ought to deter any cleaning-woman armed with a scrub brush. The wonder is that she still looks, after seven years, so eager to essay the task.

But what else is wrong with this picture? Why, the man-voter is missing, of course. With the "privileged detachment of a cultivated mind," Mr. Anderson has viewed the feeble female efforts with disappointment.

Chairman Department of Efficiency in Government, Missouri League of Women Voters.

BIGGER NAVIES TO BE OUTCOME OF GENEVA PARLEY

Navies in Europe Grow—No 23

On the continent of Europe, so far, the only effect of the discussions at Geneva has been to stimulate the demand for bigger navies. An article in the Temps fairly represents the temper excited by the Genevan rivalries. It says: "We have often praised, as is fitting, the renewal of activity which has been noticeable for some time in our Admiralty. But do not let us deceive ourselves; we are, as yet, but at the dawn of naval renaissance. It is still a timid one. The delay of Parliament in the reconstruction of material risks is compromising it gravely."

The French papers profess to sympathize with the British contention, but make it clear they do so merely because they are eager that France, which is "the second great colonial empire" should build a new fleet of light cruisers on exactly the same lines.

French Press Hostile.

Apart from that, the French press is very hostile to Britain's general attitude toward disarmament. It sees a plot engineered by Great Britain to limit the French navy. The agreement among America, Britain and Japan, we are told, afterward is to be imposed on France. French pride is up in arms against this imputed dictation. It resented the Washington agreement. That is regarded, in Paris, as a trap laid by the maritime powers for France. M. Briand innocently walked into it. But they vow that it is in vain that the net is now spread for French feet. What a muddle! Who is responsible for it?

The world has great confidence in stupidity. It looks so calm that it engenders a sense of repose in others. But now and again events occur which demonstrate the fact that brains have also their use in the conduct of human affairs.

Had there been abler men in charge of the foreign affairs of Europe in 1914, there would have been no war. Bismarck, Gortschakoff and either Gladstone or Disraeli would have averted that horrible catastrophe. But the chancellories of Europe were directed by second-class minds with no better claim to the government of men than respectability.

Competition in naval armaments between Britain, America and Japan would be a disaster of the first magnitude. A little intelligence could have averted it—still can avert it. Where is it to come from? Not a ray of it has yet penetrated through the windows of the conference room at Geneva from East, West or North.

De Molay Awards for 3 St. Louisans.

The representative De Molay award, which is given for "all-around physical, moral and mental fitness," was awarded to three St. Louis boys at the seventh annual Missouri State Conclave held at Joplin. The recipients are Henry F. Kipp of 6918 Scanlon avenue, John E. Krieger of 5733A Page boulevard, and Wilton Willman of 4540 Harris avenue. The representative De Molay is the highest award made by the Order of De Molay, a fraternal organization of boys between the ages of 16 and 21.

26-DAY TRIP OF 3600 MILES COST ONLY $385

Car Operating Cost Was $130—Meals, Hotels, Amusements Cost $227.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF.

How much will it cost me to make an automobile trip on my vacation?

This is a common question now as maps and alluring resort folders occupy the attention of motorists. Year by year, almost day by day, the number of tourists on the highways increases, as the people learn how easy and comparatively inexpensive this mode of travel and relaxation is.

Long Trip Cited.

For example, on a 3600 mile tour last summer through 16 States on which all sorts of road conditions were encountered, from long, level pavements, to steep and winding rock and sand surfaces over mountains, the writer spent only $358.76. And the car came back in good condition, while its driver was benefited physically and spiritually from the experience.

Cost of operating the car on this trip was $130.85, while the remaining $227.91 covered all meals, hotel bills and other expenditures of the writer. He went from St. Louis to Georgia, to the Atlantic seaboard and to the Great Lakes.

Thus the operating cost of the car was 3.8 cents per mile, (not including depreciation). Its wheels spun over 3365 miles of roads and it was carried over Lake Erie by boat for 183 miles. With this cost per mile—which may be considered a fair average for many cars—the prospective tourist can tell how much money his machine will require after determining how far he wants to go.

$5 Per Day Expended.

About $5 a day was the average sum spent for food and lodging. The writer didn't use tourist camps and boarding houses either, but the best hotels available (though not necessarily the highest priced rooms in the case of big city hostelries. One reason the average seems low was that eight days were spent in an excellent Adirondack Mountain resort, where the charge for room and board was only $3 per diem. On the other hand, it cost $10 to spend a night at West Point and get dinner and breakfast; value was received in this instance, too.

Thus the prospective traveler can get an idea of his living cost while away, after determining how long he will be gone and the sort of places he will stop at. In addition to the money for living and the car, due allowance should be made for the little extras of all sorts, which vacationists and other travelers always encounter. Also, some surplus funds should be taken along, in the event of possible emergency.

The writer's expense account last year was:

Gasoline, 187¼ gallons	$ 46.93
Oil, 26 gallons	31.75
Greasing and washing	4.00
Bridge, ferry and lake tolls	7.80
Garage, 18 nights	10.75
Repairs	29.62
Hotel rooms and tips	94.52
Meals	50.84
Films and finishing photos	17.20
Miscellaneous	56.35
Total	$358.76

These figures cover the expense of the car and driver. Cost of additional passengers can be calculated as above, and of course some saving is possible where members of a family can double up on hotel rooms.

Gasoline mileage on this tour was 18 to the gallon, which is about what many motorists can count on, since long, steady runs tend to decrease consumption of fuel. The oil consumption was high—about 129 miles to the gallon, including the usual change of oil every 500 miles—because a leak in the lubrication system developed and it was easier to pour in oil than to stop for repairs.

The repair item shown included two renewals of transmission bands after considerable hill climbing; one valve grinding, one radiator leak, replacement of burned-out generator parts and welding a rack which broke under the weight of two spare tires.

Sixteen days were spent on the road and 12 days in the Adirondacks or in cities. Because it was convenient to leave the car at the curb some nights, there were only 18 others on which public garages were utilized. It might be added that the hotel item might have been a little higher, but three nights were spent with friends en route. The miscellaneous expenditures included a 60-mile side trip by rail from New Jersey to New York City and the inevitable visits to Broadway.

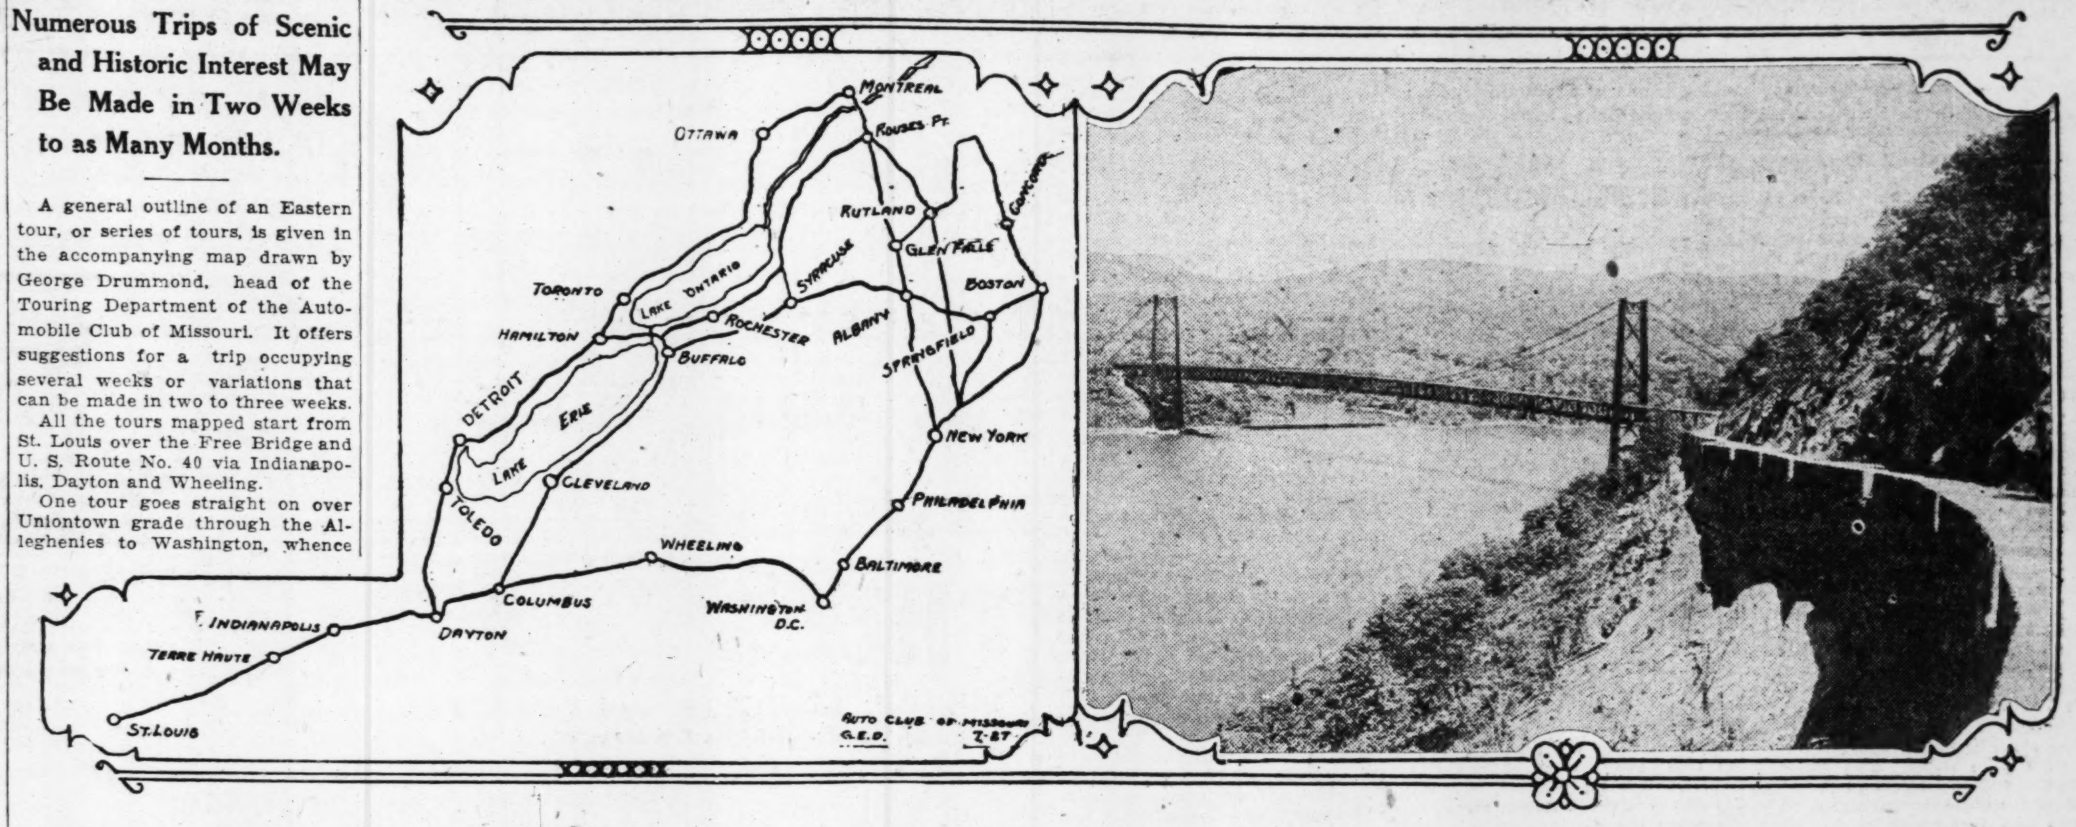
Where to Go and How on That Tour Through Eastern U. S.

Numerous Trips of Scenic and Historic Interest May Be Made in Two Weeks to as Many Months.

A general outline of an Eastern tour, or series of tours, is given in the accompanying map drawn by George Drummond, head of the Touring Department of the Automobile Club of Missouri. It offers suggestions for a trip occupying several weeks or variations that can be made in two to three weeks.

All the tours mapped start from St. Louis over the Free Bridge and U. S. Route No. 40 via Indianapolis, Dayton and Wheeling.

One tour goes straight on over Uniontown grade through the Alleghenies to Washington, whence one may make side trips down the Shenandoah Valley, through the Civil War country around Richmond, Va., or along the historic James River region to Yorktown, Newport News and Hampton Roads.



Map of suggested Eastern motor tours, and view of Bear Mt. Bridge over the Hudson River with part of the 3½-mile scenic approach highway.

From Washington, one can run north via Baltimore to New York and New England, or can continue up the Hudson River into the Adirondack Mountains.

Another tour leaves No. 40 at Washington, Pa., goes to Pittsburg, then follows Route No. 3 to Easton, Pa., Delaware Water Gap, then the Lackawanna Trail to Binghamton and either back to St. Louis or northeast to Schenectady and the Adirondacks.

Or one can motor to Toledo and Cleveland and east to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, then east and southeast via Painted Post and Hornell over the Susquehanna Trail to Harrisburg, Pa., thence to Washington and back to St. Louis via Hagerstown, or from Harrisburg to Pittsburg and home.

Another tour goes to Detroit thence into Canada and on to Toronto, whence one may motor through Canada to Montreal and Quebec, or can re-enter this country and return via Niagara Falls. Motorists going to Montreal can drop south on good roads through the Adirondacks.

A delightful variant of the Adirondacks tour is to continue north in New York State to Chazy, then ferry to the nearest of the large islands in Lake Champlain and continue down through the islands. All these islands have been connected with causeways and there is a causeway from the island farthest south to the Vermont shore near Burlington. From Burlington one can motor east into the White Mountains, then drop south through New Hampshire and Massachusetts to New York and home, or go to Boston and back over the Shore road to New York, or, if he wishes to avoid New York, he can run west from Boston to Springfield, Mass., north to Greenfield, and west over the famous Mohawk Trail to Albany and home by any one of a dozen routes.

For the motorist who has plenty of time here is a wonder Eastern tour. To Detroit then through Ontario to Toronto, thence to Niagara Falls, then to Buffalo, east on No. 5 to the Susquehanna Trail, south on this scenic highway to Harrisburg, Pa., east on No. 3 to Easton, Pa., thenec to Delaware Water Gap, north again on the famous Lackawanna Trail to Binghampton, N. Y. From Binghamton, the tour goes over No. 7, via Oneonta, to Schenectady, then via Saratoga Springs to Lake George, north into the Adriondacks, taking time for Lake Placid, Saranac Lake and Ausable Chasm, then to Plattsburg and the Chazy ferry to the Lake Champlain Islands, through the islands to Burlington, Vt., then to the White Mountains, then to Boston and west via Springfield, Mass., and the Mohawk Trail to Albany, down the west shore of the Hudson River and to Washington, and home over the National Old Trails route via Hagerstown, Md., Uniontown, Wheeling, Dayton and Indianapolis.

To the Middle Westerner who never has seen them, Lake George, Lake Champlain and the Adirondack, Green and White Mountains of New York and New England will be a revelation of beauty.

Virtually all the roads in the tours described are paved, and the few gravel stretches are reported good. There are some rough paved roads in New York State, but, on the whole, Eastern roads permit good speed and comfortable motoring.

ARROW ROCK PARK ROUTE VIA U. S. 40 OPEN AGAIN

The 500-foot planked detour at the end of the present pavement west of Williamsburg on U. S. 40 —the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Columbia and Boonville—will be in use until Wednesday, Aug. 3, when it will be eliminated, according to Robert W. Hodson, division highway engineer at Jefferson City.

The bridge between U. S. 40 and Arrowrock, the site of the new Arrowrock State Park which has been undergoing repairs, is now open and the detour discontinued. This route is 13 miles of earth road.

21-MILE DETOUR BETWEEN CHILLICOTHE AND TRENTON

Traffic going north from Chillicothe to Trenton on U. S. 65, must use a 21-mile detour from Chillicothe to the concrete 6 miles south of Trenton. This detour is in good condition and no trouble will be experienced if drivers observe ordinary precautions, says the Highway Department.

$1,100,000 IN STATE ROAD CONTRACTS LET

Include 42 Miles of Highway All in Counties Distant to St. Louis Area.

Although contracts for 17 State highway projects, including construction of 19 small bridges and a total distance of 42.82 miles of roadway, was let by the State Highway Department at Jefferson City yesterday at an estimated cost of $1,100,000, none of these projects are in counties in proximity to St. Louis, nor are any of the main highways out of here effected. The 10 counties participating in the new building program are: Chariton, Audrain, Ralls, Pike, Lincoln, Jackson, Cooper, Morgan, Lawrence and Cape Girardeau.

The construction program in the St. Louis area for 1927 is virtually completed. Paving is now being laid on State 21 from De Soto to where this highway merges with U. S. 61—the St. Louis-Memphis route, via Fredericktown and Cape Girardeau—11 miles beyond Crystal City, on U. S. 50—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Sedalia—between Union and U. S. 66, and paving will begin on State 30 (Gravois road) Wednesday. Paving on the new right-of-way of U. S. 61 from Flat River south through Farmington will begin not later than Sept. 1. Grading of this project is rapidly being completed.

Virtually a mile and a half of slab has been laid on State 21 and about the same distance on U. S. 50. The paving to be laid on State 30 will consist of the six and one-half miles between the end of the old concrete south of Fenton to House Springs.

All American Six Has Many Engine Refinements With New Low Price.

Entirely new in design with a wheelbase of 117 inches, new engine, new chassis, new Fisher bodies, new Duco colors and many engineering refinements, the Oakland All-American six is being presented throughout the nation this week. In St. Louis it is on display by Mississippi Valley Motor Co. Oakland-Pontiac distributor.

The size and low-slung appearance of the new cars may be gleaned from the fact that they have an overall length of 175 inches between bumpers, a road clearance of 8⅝ inches and a height of but 70 inches from the ground to the top of the roof.

The low lines of the car are emphasized by a high, narrow radiator, sweeping full crown fenders, lower running boards, oblong windows, a double row of beading, and by larger tires on smaller wheels. Artillery wheels 19 inches in diameter are combined with 29 by 5.50 inch balloon tires.

Among new mechanical features are a gasoline pump to supersede the long familiar vacuum tank, a new system of crankcase ventilation to reduce oil changes to a minimum, and triple sealed oil protection by gasoline, air and oil filters.

A new and softer acting clutch, a new and smoother transmission, a four bearing crankshaft, a 15-plate battery and new oiling system are features.

The new engine has a displacement of 212 cubic inches and is of the six-cylinder L-head type, cast en bloc with the crankcase and cylinder block integral. It has a 3¼-inch bore and 4¼ inch stroke and develops 60-brake horsepower at 2800 r. p. m.

The complete line includes the two-door sedan, four-door sedan, landau sedan, landau coupe, sport phaeton, sport roadster and four-passenger cabriolet.

One of the most beautiful features of the interior decoration is the instrument board. It has a tri-clustered instrument panel decorated with bas-relief engraving, silver-platinum finish. The center assembly consists of speedometer, gasoline gauge, oil pressure gauge and ammeter, glass-covered and indirectly lighted. On the left, the assembly consists of a combination lighting, ignition and backing-up light control switch. On the right, the assembly consists of the combination choke and throttle units, all engraved in oak-leaf motif and finished to match the body hardware. The instrument assemblies have silver-platinum dials and are also engraved with the oak-leaf design.

The upholstery in the landau coupe, the sedan, the four-door sedan and the landau sedan is of genuine mohair, in shades to harmonize with body colorings.

The sport coupe and sport roadster are upholstered in Spanish leather, and the sport phaeton in Spanish leather, with pillow-type upholstery. A feature adding to the comfort of the cars is an arm rest in the rear compartment of the sport roadster, sport cabriolet and landau sedan. The standard equipment on all cars includes besides the eagle ornamental radiator cap and instrument panel, a 17-inch walnut finished steering wheel, rubber floor covering in the driver's compartment, limousine rug in the rear of closed bodies, rear-view mirror, new-type tire carrier, rim for spare tire and automatic windshield cleaner.

The following are the factory prices on the various body styles: Two-door sedan, $1045; landau coupe, $1045; sport roadster, $1075; cabriolet, $1145, and four-door sedan, $1145.

New Oakland 'All American' Landau

NEW DODGE '4' PRODUCTION IS BEING BOOSTED DAILY

Evidence of the public's reception of Dodge Brothers' new four-cylinder line, which was introduced July 17, is to be found in the large volume of orders received, says a factory statement.

"On the two days immediately following its announcement, orders were received for approximately $3,250,000 worth of new sedans alone. This was the only body type introduced.

"Within a short time a coupe will be in production. Later a cabriolet roadster will be added to the line.

GABRIEL EARNINGS INCREASE

The Gabriel Snubber Manufacturing Co. reports earnings of $839,071.31 for the six months' period ending July 1, 1927. This is equal to $4.20 per share, as compared with $2.96 per share for the same period in 1926, an increase of 41 per cent.

Earnings for the second quarter of this year were $505,118.78, equal to $2.52 per share, which is 45 per cent greater than the earnings for the corresponding period of 1926.

EVANS ON CHEVROLET STAFF

Ray Evans, for eleven years city sales manager at Chicago for the Ford Motor Car Co., has moved to St. Louis as a special factory representative of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. in the territory covered by the St. Louis factory branch, according to O. E. Nonn, zone sales manager for the firm here.

FOUR NEW GARDNER MODELS ON DISPLAY

They Are All 8-Cylinder Cars and Can Be Had in 14 Distinctive Body Styles.

Gardner Motor Car Co., Inc., this week announced four new 8-cylinder cars ranging in price from $1490 to $2495. The cars are on display in St. Louis by Steinger-Tuthill, Inc., Gardner distributer.

Gardner now builds the eight-in-line in four distinctive series—the 75, 80, 85 and 90—and in 14 custom-designed body styles.

Series 75 is powered by a 2¾x4¾ eight-in-line motor and is mounted on a chassis of 122-inch wheelbase. Included in this series is what is said to be the lowest-priced 5-passenger eight-in-line sedan on the market today. It carries as standard equipment snubbers, gasoline gauge on dash, Chase mohair upholstery with French-type plaiting, enclosed 4-wheel brakes, 5.25 balloon tires, Butler silver-finished hardware, nickel radiator, and Fedco theft-proof numbering system with loss-of-use insurance, etc.

This same equipment is supplied with the series 75 five-passenger coupe, which lists at $1475.

On the series 80 chassis are three enclosed body styles and an open one, the latter a four-passenger roadster which lists at $1595. There is a 5-passenger sport coupe in this series which lists at $1745, a four-passenger victoria at the same price, and a full-size 4-door, five-passenger sedan at $1795.

The series 85 is an innovation in the eight-in-line field, in both appearance and performance. New and distinctive color schemes and interior appointments are introduced in a five-passenger sedan, five-passenger sport coupe, four-passenger victoria coupe, four-door brougham, and the roadster, which constitute this series.

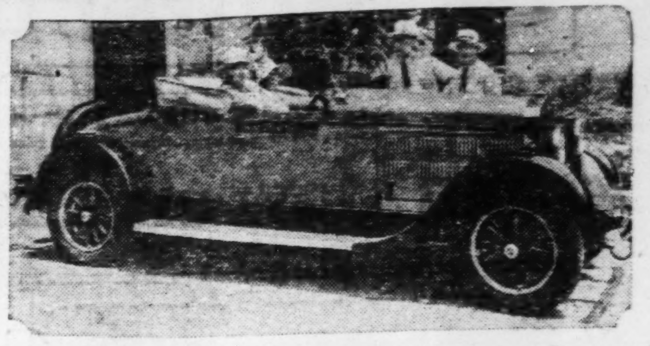
The upholstery, which is Chase velmo, silk curtains, toggle grips, floor carpets, are all in the same color.

The motor is 2⅞x4¾ and develops 74 horsepower. Considering that the roadster weight is 3040 pounds, there is one horsepower to every 41 pounds of car weight.

The series 90 is called the aristocrat of the Gardner line. While unchanged in line or fundamental design, several notable advancements have been made in the treatment of instrument board decorations, wainscoting panels, new mohair trimming over improved cushion and back springs.

Mechanical improvements in series 90 models are a new vibrator horn, Watson stabilators both front and rear, long emergency brake lever, and a three-way stop light with backing light operating off the transmission. A four-speed transmission is offered as optional equipment on this series at a nominal extra charge.

Gardner 8 Donated to Tuberculosis Society



This Gardner 8 sport roadster model was donated by the Gardner Motor Co. and Steinger-Tuthill, Inc., Gardner distributors, for the Tuberculosis Society benefit baseball game, at Sportsman's Park, Thursday. Russell Gardner, Jr., is at the extreme right, and Joseph Steinger, president of Steinger-Tuthill, Inc., is the passenger.

Illinois Has Gas Tax.

For the first time in history, the State of Illinois will have a gasoline tax of two cents, effective August 1.

SALES OF WILLYS-OVERLAND BRANCH HERE INCREASING

"That Willys-Knight and Whippet sales are, and have been, increasing is evidenced by the registration figures covering the St. Louis metropolitan area now available for the first six months," says W. A. Elliot, branch manager for the St. Louis territory of Willys-Overland, Inc.

"Our June sales this year were 85.7 per cent greater than in June of last year in this area. While this increase seems unusually large, it is no more than we expected. Our sales have steadily increased throughout our entire territory but the most notable increases have been made in the metropolitan area, which is conceded by all automobile executives, to be the barometer of sales trends for the outlying communities.

"In the first six months of 1927, Willys-Knight and Whippet sales in St. Louis metropolitan area exceeded the volume in the corresponding period of 1926 by nearly 45 per cent. The 17.9 per cent decline in total number of cars of all makes sold makes our gain even more remarkable."

LOCKTITE A PUNCTURE REPAIR

One of the advantages of the Locktite tire repair is that it provides an easy, quick and sure remedy for almost any kind of puncture or blowout. Its dominant feature is in its combined use as both a tube and casing repair.

It repairs holes, cuts and blowouts in tire casings as easily and quickly as it repairs tubes.

NEW CHANDLER LINE ON DISPLAY HERE

Custombilt Models Predominate—Prices Reduced on Various Body Types.

Chandler's complete new line of 1928 motor cars on the new royal eight, big six and special six chassis now on display by Lewis Automobile Co., Chandler distributors, reveal a number of new custom-built body styles, and increased beauty and refinement throughout the line, as well as a price reduction of $100 to $200, which are on different models of the line.

The most noticeable changes with the various Chandler offerings are lower body lines, new style, full-crown fenders, brilliant color combinations and a newly designed radiator, which incorporates a new Chandler emblem worked out in rich colored enamel.

The new royal eight sedan, which is now priced at $1995, having undergone a reduction of $200. This model has a custom-built body, new radiator, with an option of two body color schemes. The upholstery is rich blue-gray mohair, with the option of broadcloth at $100 additional cost. This model features the ultra in refinement, having bronze finished hardware, flush type vanity and smoking set, toggle grips, circassian instrument board, with instruments grouped in a bronze panel; cigarette holder, emergency lamp, electro lock, light control from the wheel, circassian finished window moldings and door panels.

The coupe and country club coupe, seven-passenger sedan, roadster and touring car of this series have all been reduced $200 in price. The equipment of the other closed models of the royal eight series incorporate similar advantages to the five-passenger sedan.

So popular has been the royal eight series that Chandler officials at this time are pleased to announce the royal six five-passenger sedan. This model lists at $1795 and features custom-built body, horizontal louvers and the option of two body colors. It incorporates the same interior refinements and the rich blue gray upholstery that is characteristic with the five-passenger royal eight sedan.

In the big six series the other closed models are the metropolitan sedan, metropolitan de luxe sedan, coupe, country club coupe and seven-passenger sedan. All the sedans of this series have undergone a reduction of $100. The upholstery of these closed models is blue-gray mohair, and such refinements as beautiful body color combinations, circassian finished instrument board, arm rests, toggle grips, vanity case, etc., are to be found.

There is a four-passenger rumble-seat roadster in this series, listing at $1695. It is upholstered in Spanish leather and features a sportive atmosphere throughout.

The special six series of the Chandler line features notable advantages. Providing a price range from $945 for the five-pasenger touring to $1135 for the sportster and coupe both new models, the line should appeal to a wide market. Two sedans, two coupes, two five-passenger open models and roadster comprise this series.

Refinements in this special six series include newly designed full-crown fenders, two-tone colors, circassian finished instrument board, with instruments grouped under glass, electric lock and light control from steering wheel. All deluxe models feature nickeled head lamps and cowl lamps.

Without question the feature car of this series is the smart, fashionable de luxe sedan, finished in two-tone colors and upholstered in beautiful blue-gray mohair. This closely priced model is further enhanced by arm rests in the rear circassian door panels and window moldings and vanity case.

NEW BUICK FINDING FAVOR WITH PUBLIC, SAYS VESPER

While the new Buicks for 1928 are replete with many features that have found popular favor with the buying public during the past 10 days, keenest interest has been centered upon improvements contributing to its new riding qualities, says F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., Buick distributor.

"New form-fitting seats and cushions; a "double-drop" frame; resdesigned spring suspension and the addition of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers on all models, are contributing factors.

"Cushion springs" are used to build up the new "form-fitting" seats and cushions, with each individual spring coiled in a small burlap bag to keep it in place and prevent weaving about. This type of construction is designed for shock absorption as well as weight carrying. The passenger will find that cushions and seats are readily adaptable to a comfortble riding position, lending splendid support to the body even under the most trying driving conditions.

"Adoption of the 'double drop' frame has lowered all bodies from two to three inches without sacrificing either road clearance or changing wheel and tire sizes. Maintaining the same road clearance found in previous models means tha unpaved roads offer no terrors from dragging axles or differential housings. And a continuation of the same wheel sizes represents real tire economy to the purchaser, since smaller tires wear out more readily because they must of necessity roll over a greater number of times in traveling a given distance.

"With lower bodies, the center of gravity is brought nearer the ground with a corresponding improvement in roadability and a reduction in the possibility of sidesway to a minimum.

Buick rear springs are still of the full cantilever type. They have been redesigned to some extent with the incorporation of a reverse curve—or "cambre"—in the longer portion of the spring. This has resulted in a remarkably smooth cradling—and a spring action that is to be envied.

"However, the changes in frame construction and rear spring suspension have made possible a more even distribution of weight throughout the entire car, and this balance plays its part too in improving riding qualities."

HUG TRUCK CO. OPENS SALES AND SERVICE OFFICE HERE

The Hug Co., manufacturers of Hug motor trucks, have announced the opening of a factory sales and service room at 3030-32 Locust street. The company will have on display its current models of trucks, both the roadbuilder and commercial models.

At present the company is producing three standard models of roadbuilder trucks. These are model "60," equipped with a two-yard gravity body and with a maximum load capacity of 6500 pounds; model "80," equipped with a three-yard power hoist body and with a maximum load capacity of 8500 pounds. This model is used primarily for double batch hauling, and will handle the equivalent of two six-bag batches 1-2-3½ mix. Model "88" is particularly designed for steam shovel work and is equipped with a 3½-yard power hoist body and a seven-speed forward transmission and two-speed reverse. This transmassion provides for a low range of speeds for extra heavy going conditions and a high range of speeds for ordinary traveling.

Buda engines, double reduction axles, Brown-Lipe transmissions, I-beam metal wheels and dual rear pneumatic tires are standard equipment on all roadbuilder models. The I-beam frames are guaranteed for the life of the truck.

HUPP PRODUCED 22,317 CARS FIRST SIX MONTHS IN 1927

Hupp Motor Car Corporation produced 22,317 cars during the first six months of the current year. This compares with 26,943 in the corresponding period of 1926, Hupp's record period. In June of this year 2879 units were shipped, which compares with 3516 in May and 5047 in June a year ago.

Earnings for the second quarter, it is estimated, will show an improvement over the preceding three months, when the net was $485,579 after all charges. The corporation maintains a strong financial position, ratio of liabilities to assets being about five to one. Inventories are down about $3,000,000 from last year. Since the first of the year about 300 new dealers have been added.

A GREATER HUDSON Super-Six
10-311

Through a great new Companion Invention to the Super-Six Principle

HUDSON excels HUDSON itself

This new companion invention adds a further step in efficiency by actually converting hitherto wasted heat into useful power.

With the Super-Six principle, which converts to useful power, energy that in other types is lost in vibration, the new Hudson invention combines the highest efficiency in power, smoothness and long motor life ever achieved within our knowledge.

Added Fuel Economy—Greater Power—Steam Engine Smoothness

In all previous types of automobile motors a high percentage of the power of the fuels is lost in heat thrown away in the exhaust and cooling waters.

The new Hudson motor gives the snap and performance of the high compression type without sacrifice of flexibility and smoothness.

Spark knock is positively prevented. Regular gasoline gives the performance sought, in other types, through the use of special and costly fuels. The cold motor starts with the same snap you get from other types in midsummer. You don't have to wait for or nurse your motor while it warms up.

Oil dilution is prevented. Greater power, speed and fuel economy are obtained. Every phase of performance is brilliantly better. These two Hudson inventions give a performance and reliability supremacy that are immediately and continuously apparent whether you drive your Hudson a city block or a hundred thousand miles. You need but a single demonstration to give you such a conviction of superiority as you never experienced in any automobile.

WORLD CHAMBER BACKS LOW ROAD TAX POLICY

Find Minimum Vehicle Rates Yield Larger Grand Total Return.

Adopting a program for road-building throughout the world, the International Chamber of Commerce meeting held at Stockholm recently went on record in favor of low motor vehicle taxes, which yield a larger grand total return, according to the official report of the meeting received in America this week.

Roy D. Chapin, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who headed the automotive delegation from the United States, pointed out that the phrases "backward countries" and "dark continents" will soon be forgotten. Wealth has always followed transportation, he indicated, and with the spread of motor transport and highways it is possible to develop all parts of a territory, resulting in the full use of its resources for the beenfit of the public.

1. That special taxes levied on the motor vehicle itself and or on the motor fuel should be based on highway use, devoted to highway purposes, collected and expended under centralized state control.

2. That highways should be developed to suit modern traffic and that the cost should be distributed in relation to the benefits derived.

3. That taxes should be such that they will not check the economic use of the motor vehicle.

4. That where it is necessary to authorize constructors of a special road to charge toll for its use, the State should retain the right on payment of compensation to purchase or control the road.

5. That city planning should provide for a free flow of traffic and proper facilities for garaging vehicles.

6. That every precautionary measure should be taken for greater safety on streets and highways, including education of drivers, of pedestrians and particularly of children.

SPEED AND SAFETY INTEREST MOTORIST, SAYS GRAHAM

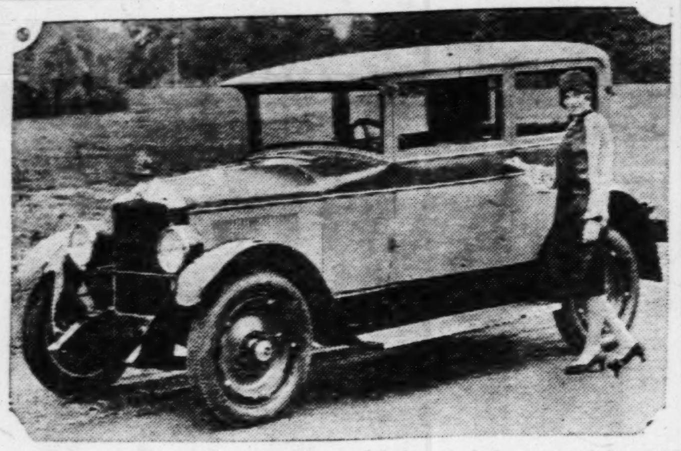
The American motorist is especially interested in safety, speed and dependability when he looks over the field to select a new car, according to Paige dealers interviewed by Robert C. Graham, vice president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., on a recent trip from coast to coast.

"It is the general opinion among these men who talk with prospective buyers daily, that people today are giving more thought to safety than ever before," says Graham. "They want a car with the best of brakes and superior engineering.

"There is also a marked demand for speed, not particularly for racing car speed, but for a happy combination of the ability to get away fast in traffic and to maintain good speed on the open road without vibration and overheating, and with reasonable gasoline consumption.

"But perhaps overshadowing both of these demands, is that for a car of proved dependability. Dealers everywhere agree that first of all the prospective buyer must be assured that the car will operate efficiently without the inconvenience and expense of excessive replacements and repairs."

New Moon Coach With Flexible Body



This new Moon 6-60 coach has a fabric-paneled, patented flexible body instead of the regular steel-sheeted body.

AUTO DOLLAR HAS GREATER VALUE, SAYS PEERLESS HEAD

"The automobile dollar goes farther today than ever before," says Leon R. German, vice president of the Peerles Motor Car Corporation. "This not only applies to the oroginal purchase cost, but to the upkeep and replacement bills as well."

"The cars that are being built today are so much better than cars built as late as 1919 that there is no comparison in service costs between that and a 1927 car. Today it is not unusual for a man to buy a new car and drive it for a year without spending anything except for gas and oil.

"The automotive industry has kept one eye on production and another on the results of that production. The service stations of all large manufacturers are very quick to turn in a report on the chronic failing of any part and the factory engineers have been equally as quick to remedy the defect.

"This process has gone on for years until now cars are built so perfectly that maintenance charges have been reduced to as near a minimum as it sems possible to get them."

AUBURN 1927 OUTPUT TO BE GREATER THAN 1926

In the first five months of 1927, the Auburn Automobile Co. produced within 96.3 per cent of the output of all of 1926, according to E. L. Cord, president of the company.

The entire production of 1926 made an increase of 75 per cent over the production of 1925 and that of 1925, totaled an increase in production of 107 per cent over 1924, Cord continues.

"Estimates show that 1927 will record at least a 100 per cent increased production over the year of 1926.

"This tremendous increased production, in the early months of 1927, was brought about with but a 30 per cent increase in the number of dealers, over those identified with the company in 1926.

BETTER CAR VENTILATION SOUGHT BY BUREAU OF MINES

Automobiles of the future will have white roofs and each will carry a wet sheet, a strip of damp burlap or some other cooling device to combat extreme heat of torrid zones, if elaborate ventilation tests being conducted in the United States Bureau of Mines in Pittsburg mean anything.

Leading engineers in the motor car industry and several big railroad officials are co-operating in experiments which seek to make transportation of all kinds, as well as home and school life, more comfortable and healthful by mechanically controlling air and climatic conditions.

REO SPEEDWAGON BUILT TO MEET TRAFFIC CONDITIONS

The mathematical truth that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points no longer holds good under modern traffic conditions, says W. C. Parker, manager of the Speed Wagon division of the Reo Motor Car Co.

"The most direct route across town is not always the quickest," says Parker. "Quite likely, the shortest route is the slowest, due to traffic congestion.

"Conditions such as this have set up new problems to be met by commercial vehicle engineers and users. The faster acceleration and deceleration of today's type of passenger car has driven truck drivers to their wit's end. One-way streets and forbidden left turns are adding many extra miles to a truck's daily journeys. Electric automatic or manually controlled traffic signals and "stop" streets slow up traffic still further.

"Traffic congestion is a problem yet to be solved, and it will require many years to do it satisfactorily. With so many varieties of vehicles in the traffic stream, plus the pedestrian factor, the best solution today lies more in the vehicles themselves than in the regulations. It is for this reason that Reo, in designing its complete new line of commercial vehicles, has engineered into them characteristics which will enable them to take care of themselves, and which will give them an equal chance with passenger car traffic."

CHEVROLET JULY OUTPUT HIGH WITH 89,569 UNITS

Chevrolet production for July raised the total volume for the first seven months of this year to nearly on a par with its entire output for 1926, in which year Chevrolet established an all-time production record for the manufacture of gear shift cars, according to the factory.

"Production for the month just ended totaled 89,569 units as against 50,993 units for July, 1926, an increase of 75.65 per cent. This percentage of gain over the corresponding month of last year was greater in July than in any other month so far into 1927. The next highest month was February, when this year's figures revealed an increase of 67 per cent over February, 1926.

July volume brings production for the first seven months of this year to 697,318 units. In all of 1926 the total volume was only 728,697 units, indicating that at the present rate of output the figures for last year will be passed before August gets fairly under way.

Chevrolet officials are confident that by the close of the year the the total volume for 1927 would approach very closely to the million mark.

"Hand in hand with this gigantic production schedule are new projects. Ground was recently broken for two new buildings to stabilize the facilities of the factory at Flint, Mich. A new office building and a new parts building are being erected at a cost of $2,000,000. Work is being rushed so that both buildings may be ready for occupancy by Oct., 1927."

OLDS OPERATED 23 MONTHS COST 3.65 A MILE TO RUN

An Oldsmobile six purchased in May, 1925, and driven 53,444 miles, mostly over unimproved roads, has recorded a total cost of operation, including depreciation and interest during these 23 months of 3.65 cents per mile, says a factory statement.

"The car was recently put through a 10,000 mile non-stop run lasting 15 days, 14 hours and 29 minutes.

"Then it was driven from Newark, O., to the Oldsmobile factories at Lansing, Mich., a distance of 266 miles in seven hours and 26 minutes, an average speed of 35.5 miles an hour including stops.

"The following is an exact record of the total expense paid by Mr. Kline for 53,444 miles of travel:

"Depreciation, the difference between the original cost price and the amount he received in trade, $650; interest on the money invested in the car during the 23 months $132.26; oil, $129.60; gasoline $622.44; tires, $196; servicing, $222.30. This total of $1952.60 is an averaging of $.0365 per mile. This figure is exceptionally significant when it is considered that the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce gives an average upkeep cost of about £1.75 cents per mile for a light 6-cylinder closed car.

ENTIRE STUDEBAKER LINE CUT IN PRICE UP TO $260

Price reductions ranging up to $260 were announced this week by The Studebaker Corporation of America on every car in the line and bring it to a new level of value. The Studebaker policy to sell its cars ready for the road with more than $100 worth of extras without extra cost will continue.

The largest reduction affects the President sedan. This seven-passenger sedan model is reduced from $2245 to $1985, while the price of the President tourer and President limousine were lowered to $1795 and $2250 respectively.

In the Commander line, reductions ranging from $20 to $90 are in effect. The four-door sedan drops from $1585 to $1495; the sedan regal from $1710 to $1625; the victoria (four-pasenger) from $1575 ot $1495; the victoria regal from $1645 to $1625; coupe from $1545 to $1495; coupe regal from $1645 to $1625 and roadster (four-pasenger) from $1675 to $1595.

NASH OUTPUT OF 700 CARS DAILY SETS NEW HIGH MARK

Production at the Nash plants in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee of 700 cars a day is greater than at any time in the history of the company, says a factory statement. This announcement made today by officials of the Nash Motors Co.: "In spite of the record production orders from dealers for new models, announced three weeks ago, are in excess of the combined capacity of the three Nash plants and the orders therefore are being filld in rotation as they are received.

"The situation bears out the statement made by C. W. Nash to the board of directors in which he pointed out that the last six months' period would be extremely active.'"

All former standards of motor car value fell when the new Buick for 1928 swept into view.

All previous conceptions of beauty . . . smartness . . . luxury and comfort were discarded as people thrilled at Buick's graceful, youthful, low-swung bodies and Buick's harmonized interiors, as exquisite as the finest drawing room.

All previous performance records faded into insignificance before Buick's brilliant abilities—mighty power, performance vibrationless beyond belief and get-away like an arrow from a bow.

Here are listed all 16 Buick models for 1928, with their prices, so that you may see for yourself how little Buick costs, when you consider how much Buick gives.

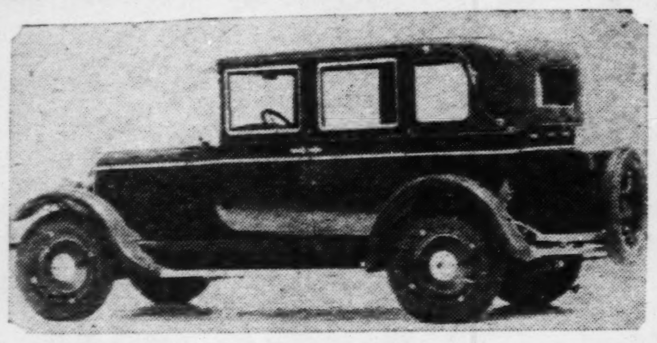
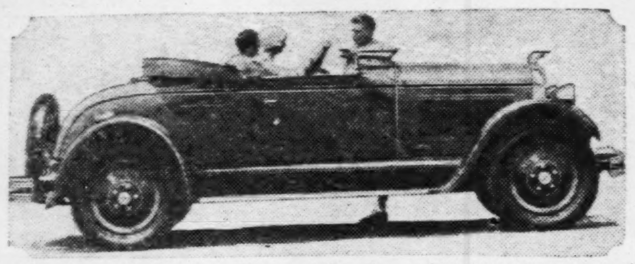
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

What's New in Motor Cars



This new Oldsmobile "6" is a two-color job in badoga green and black. Disc wheels are standard. Upholstery is mohair.



This new Studebaker Commander Sport Roadster has a rumble seat under rear deck and many new refinements.

Olds Landau Has Many Refinements

The new Oldsmobile landau has as its principal color ladoga green, with window reveals in lorenda green. These light shades are set off by black molding extending around the car and double gold stripes following the molding. Trunk, fenders, dust shields and lamps are finished in ladoga green. Disc wheels are standard. Natural wood wheels are optional.

A new two-tone figured heavy quality mohair upholstery is being used in the new car.

The landau is standard equipped with front and rear bumpers, automatic windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, gasoline gauge on the instrument board, twin beam headlights with control on steering wheel, an improved locking device and touring trunk.

Studebaker Sport Roadster on Display

Powered by the same motor that established and holds 10 world's records for sustained speed and endurance, the new Studebaker Commander sport roadster is on display by Cartwright Motor Co. and Weber Motor Co., Studebaker co-distributors.

Upholstered in genuine Spanish leather the front seat gives ample width for three passengers. Two additional passengers are provided for in rumble seat in the rear deck. A polished aluminum step to the rumble is located on the right rear fender. Storm curtains are conveniently stored behind the upright cushion of the driver's seat in a locked compartment, controlled by the same key that operates the coincidental lock to ignition and steering, spare tire carrier, and the rear compartment housing the rumble seat.

Distinctive duo-tone lacquers, folding windshield with nickel frame, disc wheels, front and rear bumpers, nickeled cowl lights, folding top and trim flat boot in color harmonizing with body color, rear view mirror on front left fender, nickeled two-beam headlights controlled from the steering wheel, rear traffic signal light, coincidental lock, automatic windshield cleaner, oil filter, Alemite chassis lubrication, four-wheel brakes, full balloon tires and snubbers all around are indicative of the complete and modern equipment of this car.

Moon Coach Has Flexible Body

A radical departure from the conventional type of steel-sheeted automobile bodies is seen in the new patented flexible fabric-paneled body used on the Moon six-sixty two-door, five-passenger coach model, featured number of the new 1928 Moon line.

In construction this new type of body has the same foundation as the steel-sheeted body, that is, a strong, well built frame of tough, close-grained wood usually hard maple or fir. Over this frame expanded metal such as is used in reinforcing concrete is securely fastened. Over this expanded metal is placed a couple of layers of cotton wadding which serves not only as a padding and to give smooth appearance when finished but also as a deadener for sound and an insulator against heat and cold. A heavy canvas is then stretched tightly over the wadding to force it into the openings of the metal in order to prevent any possibility of its shifting or changing position and to make a true surface for the leather cloth which forms the outer covering.

In the next step the leather cloth is drawn tightly over the body and securely tacked in place not cemented as is generally supposed, and is so sectionized that the exterior of the body is composed of a number of separate panels. In the event an occasion arises to replace a panel it can be done with very little expense or trouble as the fabric covering is made in sections to facilitate repairs when necessary.

New La Salle Town Sedan on Display

The newest addition to the La Salle line of body styles is the town sedan, a Fisher-built five-passenger close-coupled model being displayed this week by the Oliver-Cadillac Co., La Salle distributor.

The model has the characteristic LaSalle lines but is marked by unusual features in seating arrangement, curves of the rear, and rear quarter design. To secure a companionable atmosphere for driver and passengers, the rear seat has been moved forward several inches closer to the driving seat, giving practically the same effect as in a Victoria type body.

Short, side arm-rests in the rear seat give added comfort.

The front door is exceptionally wide, while the rear door is smartly narrow, conforming in shape to the lines of the rear fender.

Goodyear Australia Factory.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., will start operations at its new factory at Sydney, Australia, October 1, it was announced by officials of the company today. Machinery is being shipped from the United States, ready for installation.

Construction work on the new unit is being pushed and the factory, when completed, will have an initial capacity of 1000 tires and tubes a day.

MILLER, CHRYSLER SPEED DRIVER, MAKES TALK HERE

L. B. Miller, who recently drove a Chrysler imperial phaeton from New York to San Francisco in record time, addressed a meeting of Chrysler dealers of the St. Louis metropolitan district at Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer salesrooms, Friday evening.

Miller, who is making a return journey over the route of his speed trip, addressing Chrysler dealers, told of his experiences on the New York-San Francisco run. He used motion pictures to illustrate his talk. L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., presided at the meeting.

"It used to require three days to cross the State of Nevada in early times of driving. This year we drove all the way from San Francisco to New York in very little longer time—79 hours and 55 minutes," Miller said.

"The difference is mostly in the roads, of course, but there is a very great difference in the cars of early days and the present. My Chrysler imperial '80' phaeton which made the round trip is a palace compared with the rough-riding cars we used to have in the early days. There has been a wonderful advance in automobile building, not only in the way of speed and riding comfort, but in sturdiness of construction as well. Even the gruelling ordeal of a week's rushing furiously over mountains and plains and through the worst weather I ever experienced, left no traces on the car. When the mechanics went over it in Los Angeles after all that terrific pounding they couldn't find the slightest need for adjustment anywhere in it."

Defense Club Organized.

CHEVROLET SALES HEADS MEET

The assistant sales managers of the various zones in the St. Louis Chevrolet Motor Car Co. regional territory met at the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. factory branch here this week to lay plans for the firm's fall sales campaign. The meeting was in charge of A. W. L. Gilpin, regional sales manager.

The managers present at the meeting were: A. F. Dietrich, St. Louis, S. S. Tidwell, Kansas City; R. W. Johnson, Memphis; G. H. Cavanaugh, Little Rock, and A. G. Avery, Wichita.

Race Relics.

A race between patched-up former racing autos is held annually at the Fort Miami track, near Toledo, O. One requirement is that entrants must be willing to sell their "mounts" to the promoter for $25 immediately after the race.

Four Great Eights: 75, 80, 85, 90

Four distinctive series—all Eights-in-line—
14 custom-body designs—an array of colors

Again Gardner does the unusual!

More than three years ago, Gardner pioneered the Eight-in-line—and gave to America a brand-new kind of motoring . . . satisfying, thrilling, delightful as coasting on air.

Two years ago, stock Gardner Eights-in-line set eight great performance records that still remain unbroken and unequaled.

Last year, Gardner introduced America's first European-type Eight-in-line—presented the lowest-priced enclosed Eight-in-line on the market—and provided a beautifully designed, splendidly built Eight-in-line at the price of a Six.

Now Gardner is first to standardize the Eight-in-line field with four complete series of distinctive Eights-in-line in fourteen custom-body designs and a great variety of colors at prices within easy reach of every prospective automobile owner above the 4-cylinder class!

These distinctively different motor cars are already here—newcomers as far as design and coach art are concerned, but backed by an old-timer in the industry—Gardner—who has been building well for more than fifty years, building Eights-in-line for nearly four years, and the first motor car manufacturer to standardize the Eight-in-line field.

The New Gardner Eights-in-line—Series 75, 80, 85 and 90 —range in price from $1475 to $2475, f. o. b. St. Louis

RANGER SCOUTS PLAN JOURNEY IN OZARKS

Horseback Ride of 250 Miles Through Wildest Section to Last 2 Weeks.

A 250-mile horseback ride through the wildest section of the Ozarks, 14 nights of camping in tents or in the open and 14 days of swimming, fishing and leading the gypsy life will be the experience of 60 St. Louis Boy Scouts during the two weeks starting next Saturday, when the second annual Boy Scout ranger hike will start from the Irondale Reservation, official camp of the local organization. The hike will terminate Aug. 20 back at Irondale, from where the Rangers will return to St. Louis.

The Rangers are a separate group of scouts at Irondale, composed only of scouts of first class rank or higher who have attended at least one section of the main camp. With their own camp of open Adirondack lodges, located at some distance from the main camp with its cabins, the Rangers live a life closer to nature than the regular campers. They specialize in outdoor craft, such as swimming, nature lore and camping, and are the only group at Irondale to have horses. Each Ranger is given a horse and taught not only riding but the proper care of his animal.

Only those scouts who have been hardened by attendance of at least one Ranger section this year will be permitted to go on the 250-mile Ranger hike. The trip will be similar to the inaugural hike last year, when 60 boys took a 200-mile ride along the Current River. As last year, the ride will be in the charge of Field Executive Jack Wright, assisted by M N. Leavitt, the local council's specialists, respectively, in woodcraft and horsemanship.

Accompanied by Truck.

The hikers will again be accompanied by a truck carrying the provisions and equipment, including a portable field kitchen, and available for any emergency use. The truck will proceed ahead to designated camping grounds in most cases and await the arrival of the Rangers. At times, however, the boys, carrying their own provisions, will strike out through the woods and camp wherever night finds them.

Leaving Camp Irondale, the Rangers will swing southwest, to the Big Springs at Van Buren, where the tepee, or all-summer campers' section of the Irondale personnel is staying at present. Two or three days will be spent at Big Springs, and the campers will move to Deer Run State Park, the largest game refuge in the State. From thence the route will carry the scouts in a huge circle back to Irondale. Railroads and larger towns will be avoided as much as possible, most of the roads to be followed being logging roads and cowpaths through the woods.

Camp to Be Occupied.

While the Rangers are absent on their ride, their camp at the reservation will be given over to a special Merit Badge section, for first-class scouts or higher who wish to concentrate on earning merit badges. This section, also of 60 boys, will specialize on outdoor subjects, such as the nature badges, watercraft, woodcraft, pioneering and camping. Games and council-fire programs will vary the routine, but the whole camp is specifically for merit badge work. Although ordinarily only two or three merit badges can be earned during a month, at the Merit Badge section last year 12 to 14 badges were won by each boy attending. This camp will be under Field Executive S. C. Reaves, who, though officially stationed at the St. Louis headquarters during the summer, will be transferred to Irondale for this section.

It is expected about 125 boys will attend the main Irondale camp during these two weeks.

SCOUT NOTES

North District.

Seven First-Class Scouts of Troop 162, of the Bethel Evangelical Church, began leather handicraft work at the regular weekly meeting Thursday evening, July 21. Assistant Scoutmaster Harold Klockenbrink has charge of this work and an interesting time in this work is expected by the scouts.

Nine uniformed scouts of Troop 206 performed a good turn Saturday, July 23, when they assisted in a bake sale given by the Mothers' Club.

South District.

Troop 141 has been meeting at the scoutmaster's home since school closed. After the flag ceremony and patrol work the boys go to Lafayette Park and continue the meetings out of doors. The troop still has a good attendance even though several of our scouts are in the country and five of them at Camp Irondale now.

Scouts Miller, Steiners, Swift and Bergan of Troop 143 are at Camp Irondale this section. Jacob Kirchn has advanced to first-class scout, and Bert Rivers and Raymond Steiners have become second class. Assistant Scoutmaster Jones and Scouts Bauer and Schoemaker passed the requirements for the craftmanship in wood merit badge last Tuesday. Lloyd Kirk is still leading in the mystery contest, with 25 points. Scouts Wollman, Hillgartner, Bauer, Adams and Kirk acted as ushers at the Tuberculosis Day Ball Game last Thursday. The scouts attended an ice cream social given by the Campfire Girls at their church last night.

WEST DISTRICT

Nine scouts of Troop 6, with Assistant Scoutmaster Lynes, spent an afternoon several days ago at their camp on the Clayton Road. Swimming, games and a council fire were on the program. Scoutmaster Forsythe is away this summer, having charge of a camp in North Carolina.

Troop 87's scout library, which was founded last April by the mother of one of the boys, who donated 19 books, has grown through gifts from the scouts until it now has 33 volumes. Loan of the books to members of the troop is free, but Scout Rosenbloom, the librarian, collects 5 cents from each scout who keeps a book out longer than a week, hoping some day to accumulate enough money to buy another book. The regular Thursday evening meetings of the troop have been discontinued for the summer.

The Flying Eagle Patrol of Troop 2, of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, acted as escort to Burlington, Iowa, Troop 3, who were here on a visit in a big truck last week. The zoo, art museum, Jefferson Memorial, Shaws' Garden, Bell Telephone Building, and other places of interest were visited. Two nights were spent under canvas at the old tourist camp grounds in Forest Park. The Flying Eagle Patrol is now in Camp Irondale.

On a recent overnight hike to the country estate of Troop Committeeman Klinehauser, Troop 30, had as their guests the scouts of Troop 11. A new plan was worked out by Troop 30 in which the food was planned, bought, and cooked by the scouts, without any adult help. The two troops had separate programs, but at the council fire and a Scout rally they came together. At the rally Troop 30 won every scout contest. Other activities of the hike included a bird hike, a field meet, tracking, swimming, test passing, wood carving and night games. At the last meeting of Troop 30, the scouts each made a map of an oral hike. Square ruled paper simplified the task with the elimination of a ruler for straight lines and scale. Following the map making the scouts enjoyed an athletic program given by the Y. M. H. A. The Y. M. H. A. is donating a series of leadership books and pamphlets to the Troop 30 library.

Suburban District.

Eleven scouts and Assistant Scoutmasters Oliver and Barlow of Clayton Troop 2 spent the week-end at Orville, in the hills south of Gumbo. The program included swimming, hiking, and picking berries. Each boy did his own cooking and all said they had a good time and plenty to eat. It was impossible for Scoutmaster Geitz to be out over night with the scouts but he drove out on Sunday and returned with the troop. A number of boys passed the tests in fire building and cooking.

Scout Jack Hogan of Kirkwood Troop 3 won first prize for selling the most tickets to a benefit moving picture show given by the Mothers' Committee of the troop to create a permanent troop camp fund. Scout Hogan sold 83 of the 425 tickets distributed by the troop. Second prize was won by Charles McIrwin, who sold 58, and third went to Jack Blankemin, with 44. The Wolf patrol won the patrol prize. This patrol also distributed 696 telephone books during the recent delivery. The troop is on a hike to the Lions' Den this week-end.

BOY SCOUTS WERE GUIDES FOR MARATHON RUNNERS

About 40 Picked From St. Louis Troops Aided in Charity Program at Ball Park.

In keeping with their practice of doing a "good turn" whenever possible, the Boy Scouts of St. Louis assisted in the program of the annual Tuberculosis Day baseball game last Thursday by furnishing nearly forty picked boys to act as guides to the Junior Marathon runners in the lap around the ball-field concluding their three-mile run. The scouts also acted as a background for the awarding of the prizes to the athletes, sitting in a line next to the judges' table.

During the finish of the Marathon, the scouts were stationed at equal intervals about fifty feet from the stands, marking the course the runners were to follow, and preventing any contestant from breaking through and shortening the lap, as happened last year.

The following troops furnished from one to six boys each: 11, 18, 30, 44, 34, 46, 60, 77, 98, 143, 207, 245, and Webster Groves 8.

MANY RADIO STATIONS OFF WAVE CHANNELS

Special to the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, July 30.—More than half of the radio stations in the United States are broadcasting off their assigned frequencies and therein is the cause of much of the heterodyning that is still confusing.

There is apparent disregard of the Radio Commission's recent order, that all stations must equip with crystal or other controls, so as not to "wobble" more than 500 cycles, or one-half kilocycle, either way from assigned frequencies. Instead, they are roaming around from a high fraction of a kilocycle to 25 kilocycles away from their assignments, in most cases causing annoying disturbances on other waves.

Strict enforcement of the order is contemplated by the commission, whose chairman, Admiral Bullard, proposes to take up the cases of violation when all the members are back in Washington, in about ten days.

Even in he face of urgent political pressure the commission is adhering to its policy of licensing no more broadcasting stations.

Only in isolated instances is the commission desisting from its declared policy. If Nevada, without a radio station, wanted one, a construction permit probably would be issued.

The commission has scheduled 16 hearings, including one on the application of KLDS, Independence, Mo., for a change from its assignments of 1260 kilocycles and 1500 watts to 650 kilocycles and 5000 watts.

Loudest Stations Heard in Direction of Lead-in.

Signals from transmitting stations come in loudest from those stations which are located in the directions toward which the lead-in points, instead of in the direction pointed to by the free end of the antenna. Those stations will be heard next loudest which are slightly off this line. The direction of the aerial in regard to the cardinal points of the compass has very little effect on radio reception.

Clean Battery After Charging.

Immediately after the battery is charged, clean around the top of the battery. Acid sprayed about during the charge may thus be prevented from seeping through and injuring the cells.

Radio broadcasting is a state monopoly in Latvia and no private company can get a concession for the opening and operating of a transmitting station. Only one wavelength, 526 meters, is allotted, and there is only one broadcasting station operated in the country.

BROWN-HALL DEALERS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Plans have been completed for the third annual convention of dealers handling the lines of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., according to Norman S. Brown, president of the firm. ...

Hotel Chase has been designated as headquarters of the convention, which will be held Aug. 2 and 3. H. T. Stockholm, Rodger Pigeon, representing Atwater Kent, and A. H. Doty of the Pooley Co., and representatives of many other firms will be present to address more than 1000 dealers who are expected to be present, according to Wiebe.

A Word of Caution.

Before turning on the house current always be sure that the rectifier tube is in the socket of the "A" or "B" eliminator. If the line is turned on before the tube is inserted the high voltage in the secondary windings of the transformer may blow out the condensers shunted across this circuit, since the accustomed load, the rectifier tube, is missing.

COMPACT FRESHMAN A B C POWER UNIT

New BA Rectifying Tube Capable of 350 Milliamperes at 200 Volts.

With the advent of the Raytheon BA rectifying tube capable of delivering 350 milliamperes at 200 volts there is now available the foundation for a practical Freshman A-B-C radio power unit. In fact, this unit is nothing more than a super B eliminator, from which 250 milliamperes of current is available for supplying the usual one-quarter ampere filament tubes connected in series, with 100 milliamperes for the B or plate requirements of these tubes as well as the power tube.

The transformer required is one especially designed for the Raytheon-Freshman A-B-C radio power unit for 201-A type tubes. This has a 110-volt primary winding, with a heavy duty four-ohm resistance in series. This is important to maintain constant voltage and is essential for the best operation of the completed unit.

The secondary winding has a step-up to 700 volts and a mid-tap. An additional secondary winding of 5.6 volts is provided for lighting the filament of the power tube. Raw A. C. is necessary for this tube, as its current drain is one-half ampere.

The filter system consists of two Acme BA-2 coils and two special Tobe A-B-C condenser blocks or other special condensers intended for this application. The choke coils have an inductance of over 10 henries at 300 milliamperes D. C. and a D. C. resistance of 332 ohms for the two, which is a medium resistance and which will safely pass the current necessary.

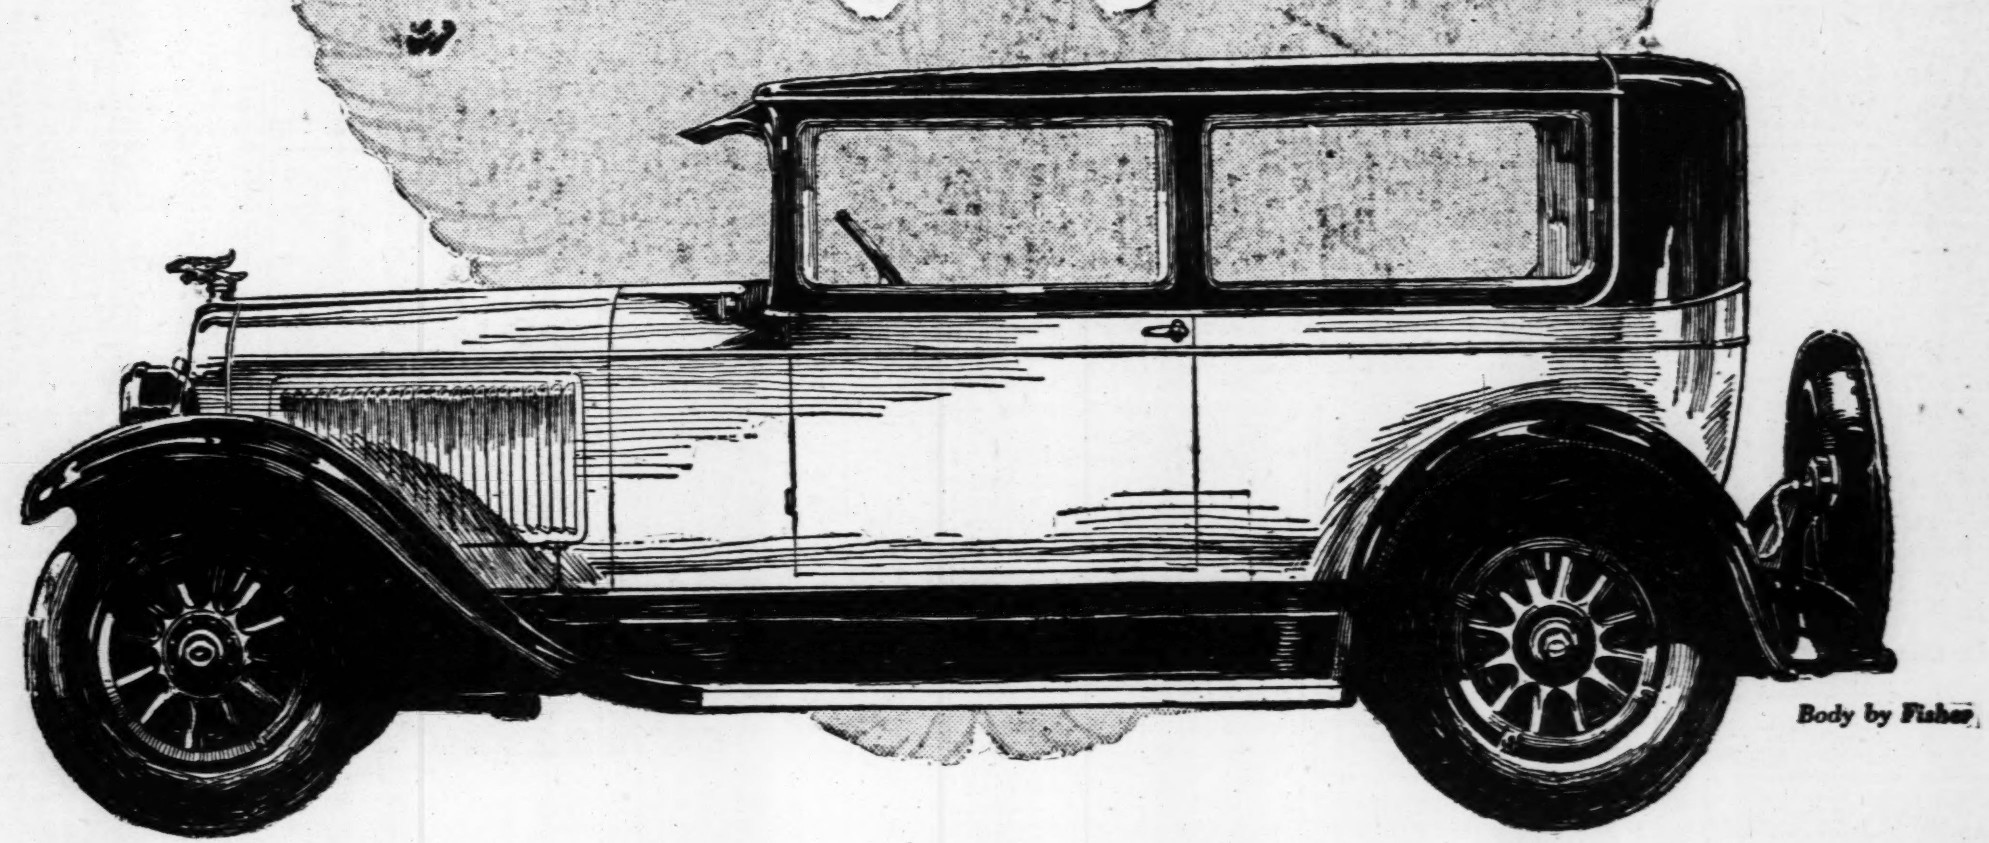
OAKLAND ALL-AMERICAN SIX

At New Low Prices!



Built to meet every American demand for Reliability, Style and Performance

All-American—that's the word! No other word describes it!

American design. American lines. American endurance for the roughest American roads—proved on General Motors' great American proving ground and built by American workmen using American precision-production methods!

A bigger, better, brilliantly beautiful car. New bodies—new chassis—new engine. New standards of performance, endurance, and value—and

NEW LOW PRICES!

There's mastery in every detail of the new Fisher bodies—the mastery of America's master body builders.

Low, graceful, fashionable lines emphasized by sweeping full-crown fenders.

Arresting new Duco colors. Rich new upholsteries. Enough refinement features to be an announcement in themselves.

In the chassis—new factors of reliability and endurance—factors that people have long hoped to get—but never in a car of Oakland's price.

A longer, deeper, heavier frame, more rigidly braced.

A new and softer clutch. A new and smoother transmission. New elements of steering ease. 4-wheel brakes for safety. Smaller wheels (19"), larger tires (29x5.50), a longer wheelbase (117"), and an exceptionally low center of gravity for better roadability.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

And a new engine that represents a new interpretation of American performance standards!

Power—smoothness—snap and silence that will be the talk of all America from this day hence.

—a 78½-lb. crankshaft, counterbalanced and incorporating the Harmonic Balancer—a crankcase of bridge truss construction—Oakland's famous rubber silencing principle—and a new combustion chamber design from that great source of automotive progress, the General Motors Research Laboratories.

And what a galaxy of new features! A gasoline pump that supersedes the long familiar vacuum tank—a new and efficient system of crankcase ventilation that makes oil changes a matter of months, not weeks—triple engine protection by gasoline, oil and air filters——and such factors of luxury and convenience as tri-clustered instrument panel, decorated with bas-relief silver platinum engraving and including a gasoline gauge—large new corrugated steering wheel—colored garnish rails and enough others in addition to make this advertisement read like an equipment catalog!

An achievement? Even that meaningful word doesn't do justice to the Oakland All-American Six!

Beauty that rivals the custom builders' best.

Reliability that touches your heart, largely because it so rarely touches your pocketbook—

—all at new low prices! Only $1045 for the sedan—and equally impressive reductions on all other models!

Value? None like it in all America today!

Come in—and see this latest triumph of America's automotive supremacy—the new Oakland All-American Six!

WORK IS BEGUN ON WESTWOOD CLUB BUILDING

Structure on New 290-Acre Tract Will Be Opened Formally Thanksgiving Day 1928.

EVERY CONVENIENCE WILL BE OFFERED

Arrangement of Three 9-Hole Golf Courses Will Give Prope Virtually 18-Hole Links.

Excavation has been begun for the new Westwood Country Club building, which will occupy a 290-acre tract on the north side of Conway road between Ballas and Spoede roads. Both the building and grounds have been conceived on a surpassing scale. The building was designed by Maritz & Young, Inc., architects, under whose supervision it will be erected.

The site is the highest part of the club grounds, about 1000 feet north of the Conway road. A drive will lead from the road to the club building. The structure is to be T-shaped, with a large forecourt on the north side. The east and west portions of the building are to be 400 feet long, with wings for the men's locker room and other men's departments extending 350 feet to the north.

From the porte cochere one will enter the main foyer, thence through open columns to an open lounge 28x60 feet, which will have a two-story open trussed, beamed timber ceiling, with stone interior walls and a large English stone fireplace. This room will be flanked by the women's salon, 28x60 feet, which will have large bay windows overlooking the east terraces.

Dining Pavilion.

At the other end will be the main dining room with a glass-enclosed dining porch and a large dining pavilion, seating 350 people.

On the south of the building, overlooking the terraces and pool and connecting through a large arched colonnade with the main lounge, a 20x60-foot open porch will be located, from either end of which an entrance will be provided to the dining room and the women's salon. The women's locker room will be in a separate wing of the building and will be 24x100 feet.

The main lounge, dining room, kitchen and locker rooms will be carried out in two-story effect giving much light and ample ventilation. The building has been designed to avoid all possible friction in circulation of service and much study has been given to its exposure so as to provide proper light and ventilation and the best possible views.

On the second floor will be the bachelor quarters connected with the men's locker rooms. There will be nine large rooms, each accommodating two persons, and an open sleeping porch accommodating 20.

To Be Completed in 1928.

From the men's department one will pass through a corridor expanded into a bay window on one side facing a mezzanine sitting room. The other side of this corridor will open through large arches to the upper part of the main lounge as a balcony. On the other end of the corridors will be accommodations for married persons, consisting of seven large double bedrooms, with southern exposure, overlooking the links.

The building will have stone walls, reinforced concrete floors and tile partitions. It will be of fireproof construction.

The building has been designed from the standpoint of the modern country club, embracing every convenience and possible facility, with golf courses, children's playground, tennis court, baseball diamond and a reservation of ground for a polo field.

The construction schedule provides for the completion of the building by Sept. 1, 1928. It will be turned over to furnishers and decorators for formal opening Thanksgiving day, next year.

Swimming Pool.

Below terrace level will be a 35x75-foot swimming pool, terrace with cement dancing spaces and grassed sitting spaces, 250 feet across the south front and extending 150 feet on the east front, overlooking 15 holes of golf course.

The course is made up of three nines of equal strength, so that by arrangement in different combinations they will have the playing capacity and golf effect of three 18-hole courses. There are two and three tees on some holes, enabling a 7000-yard set up for tournaments and thus further diversifying the strategy of the play. The routing and length of the holes is such that study is required for each shot and

The course is made up of three nines of equal strength, so that by arrangement in different combinations they will have the playing capacity and golf effect of three 18-hole courses. There are two and three tees on some holes, enabling a 7000-yard set up for tournaments and thus further diversifying the strategy of the play. The routing and length of the holes is such that study is required for each shot and no two successive well-played shots would call for the use of the same club. The golf course was designed and is being constructed under the direction of Harold D. Paddock, golf architect of Cleveland, O.

A study of the soil was made by Wendall P. Miller, agriculturist and drainage engineer of Columbus, O. The soil is being fertilized and planted and a four-mile irrigating system, with terraced hillsides and 13 miles of drain tiling for culverts, is being put in under the supervision of his chief field engineer, Luther Koontz.

Eight Miles From City.

H. J. Elson is consulting engineer and co-ordinator of developing and building the new property.

The club site is eight miles from the city limits and two and a half miles west of the St. Louis Country Club. It has three-quarters of a mile frontage on the Conway road and three-eighths of a mile on the Ballas road. Negotiations for the land, which comprised numerous small tracts, were conducted by Henry R. Weisels Inc.

While the site fronts on both the Conway and the Ballas roads, it does not embrace the corner of Ballas and Conway roads, comprising about 20 acres which was not available.

Approximately 75 acres on the east, west and south edges of the property and practically encircling the golf course, have been reserved for residential purposes. This will be plotted and developed by John Noyes, landscape architect of Shaw's Botanical Garden, as homesites for members of the club.

Old Course on Market.

Restrictions prescribed will permit the erection of buildings only on the highest scale. The membership of the club includes many of the Jewish social leaders of the city.

The Westwood's old property, comprising 90 acres at Lockwood and Berry roads, Glendale, has been placed on the market. The municipalities of Webster Groves and Kirkwood are being urged to purchase this tract which has an 18-hole golf course, as a park reservation for public links and municipal center. Disposition of the tract has been placed with Albert J. Stix, chairman.

Active Demand in Greulich's Subdivision.

With the completion of the $100,000 sewer program in Greulich's subdivision, between Goodfellow and Kingshighway, north of Florissant, grading in four city blocks has been started. Twelve bungalows on Oxford Lane have been sold and 14 bungalows on Trafford Lane and Mora Lane were sold before completion. The company announces the preparation for the erection of ten more buildings, all of which will be on Park Lane, an asphalt street with granite curb, and the lots will be 40 feet front by 190 feet depth. These new bungalows will be of the five room and six room plan. Other sales include 5438 Thrush avenue, a five-room bungalow, for the Welfare Investment Co., to Walter F. Hose; also 6844 Balson avenue, a four-room cottage, purchased by Wilson S. Boyles from Walter F. Hose for $3250.

ECONOMY FEATURE OF THIS 8-ROOM SEMI BUNGALOW

Large Amount of Floor Space and Conveniently Arranged Rooms Makes This Home Very Practical.

This type of semibungalow is desired by a great majority of American people because it is moderate in its cost yet, it is pleasant to look at. The design is particularly pleasing for its good scale and simplicity. A pleasing feature of a story and a half structure is that the same number of rooms can be had as a bungalow and still it will not cover nearly as much ground.

A nice feature of this home is the front porch, which extends almost the entire width of the house. Unlike most porches it requires very little upkeep and attention, because it is entirely constructed of brick and concrete, while the main roof of the house extends down to cover it.

The dormer breaks up the expanse of a large roof, while the stucco adds a variation to the many colors of the brick roof, and verge, which blend harmoniouly together.

The front entrance opens directly into a reception hall from which the stairs ascend to the upper hall. The hall is provided with a coat closet, while a large cased opening allows easy access to the living room. The living room is lighted by a triple window in the front and a casement at each side of the fireplace. It is connected with the dining room by a large cased opening. This room is very large, has a triple window; and the maximum amount of space is provided for furniture. A double pair of doors open into a solarium. This room has a bed closet and is well lighted by large windows which allow plenty of ventilation.

The dining room connects directly with the kitchen. This room has plenty of cross ventilation and is equipped with all the accessories. There is a pot closet which has a little window in it in order to furnish enough light. There is a breakfast porch at the rear of the kitchen which has large double windows. The kitchen opens directly into a small hall which has a large closet for household supplies and the door to the basement stairs also opens into this hall. Passage from the kitchen to the front entrance is made through this short hall.

The second floor has a large hall, two bedrooms, a den and plenty of closet and storage place. The bath is directly at the head of the stairs and has a large linen closet. One might think while looking at the plan, that there is an unusual amount of space devoted to closets. However this is space directly under the roof that is not available for room space because of lack of height.

Wherever possible, stock materials have been used and an interesting feature of the interior is that the head of doors and windows line up horizontally.

This house is best heated by hot air.

This house can be built for $11,000 to $11,500, including heating, sodding, screens and fixtures.

If desired the breakfast room and solarium can be omitted entirely.

929 Skinker road (across from park.) This beautiful home stands out as being unique and artistic in appearance, at the same time every bit of material and good workmanship points very clearly to the fact that the durable and practical has not been lost sight of. Its exterior is finished in high-grade buff brick selected so as to obtain the textural effect of stucco, ornamented with hand-modeled terra cotta.
The interior is indeed lovely and instantly calls forth favorable comment. Its fine living room with its antique mantel and the appealing sun room adjoining, entered through a magnificent arch of mosaic tiling. Its oaken paneled dining room with plastic ornamental ceiling sets this residence apart as being one of the most unique and attractive about town. The End of a Perfect Day
When the toil of the day is over for dad, when mother's cares have stopped for a while, when sister and brother have finished a busy day at play or at school, what could be more restful than the clean, cool breezes blowing gently across the spacious porch of your own home in the suburbs? There is nothing in flat or apartment life to give you the same quiet, restful satisfaction. Why not drive out and let me show you the home that meets your needs? The prices and reasonableness of the terms will be a pleasant surprise to you. Your duty to your family urges you not to delay any longer.

ST. LOUIS STYLE PAGEANT OPENS THURSDAY NIGHT

Authentic Exhibition of Fashions for City's Trade Area Will Introduce New and Novel Effects.

SAINT LOUIS TO WEAR FLYING SUIT

In Fact Aviation Will Be Featured as Motif—Showing to Be in Garden Open Air Theater.

Aviation will typify the spirit of St. Louis as the opening motif in the annual St. Louis Pageant of Fashion, known this year as the "Style Varieties," to be held in the open-air Garden Theater, Olive boulevard, University City. It will begin next Thursday evening and continue nightly till Aug. 17, except Sundays.

Saint Louis, the city's patron, instead of wearing a coat of mail, will appear in an idealized aviator's flying suit and helmet. His jerkin will be of gold and his cape of royal blue. He will be reminiscent of the feat of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his monoplane "The Spirit of St. Louis." This figure will speak in a brief prologue, acclaiming the community's achievements and announcing what is to come in the pageant.

Models, Vaudeville and Ballets.

As in the past, the promenades of professional models displaying the latest styles in hats, coats, dresses, furs, shoes and sport wear, will be interspersed with vaudeville entertainment and ballots. The girl pages, who turn leaves of big programs to tell the audience whose products are on view, this year for the first time will participate in the dancing. A large portion of the spectators will be buyers from the growing St. Louis trade territory, whose population wears what St. Louis designers plan for it, and they will come primarily to see the fashions, but expect entertainment. Tickets, of course, are available for St. Louisans and nonprofessional visitors.

An aviators' ballet will follow the prologue and then actors dressed as pilots will present young women contestants coming to the Court of Fashion, who will vie for the title of the most nearly perfect style model in America. The competitors, who will be domiciled at Forest Park Hotel with chaperones, will appear twice again in each performance. A secret jury of visiting buyers and designers will announce the winner on the night of the last performance.

Entertainment Features.

The entertainment features, in the order of their appearance, will be: A Japanese juggling and acrobatic troupe; jazz dance by Miss Lillian Moore and ballet; "The Enchanted Vase," a huge object whose bas-relief figures of ornamentation will come to life as dancers, led by Miss Moore and Edwin Easter; "Bell Hop Ballet;" the Morales family, a group of Latin-American entertainers; classic dance by Miss Moore, Easter and the ballet.

Furs which models will display in one fashion scene are worth, pageant authorities say, $100,000.

Trade Territory Expanding.

"The outlook for 1927-28 is the most promising we have had for several years," said J. H. Jones, sales manager for the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., and chairman of finance of the Style Show Committee. "Each season finds the St. Louis trade territory enlarging. The St. Louis market now includes the Northwest as well as the extreme Southeastern section of the country, while the Southwest and the South have looked to St. Louis for their wares from the beginning.

"Conditions in the rural sections are excellent. The flood district is rapidly recovering and crops have been planted—not the staple cotton and corn, but quick crops which will bring in good revenue. The high prices which the farmers are receiving for commodities will enable them to overcome the lack of production due to climatic conditions.

Merchants Visiting Market.

"Merchants are practically without stock now and are coming to the market in large numbers. Indications are that the amount of merchandise sold this season will surpass the sales during the war period.

"We have had more requests for hotel reservations and reservations for the Pageant of Fashion this season than we have ever had. The fame of the pageant is national. Merchants and buyers enjoy the entertainment and the excellent opportunity afforded through the display of styles. The merchant is able to see just how a gown, coat or suit appears when worn. It also gives him an idea of the sort of millinery and shoes each gown requires. The pageant is a post-graduate course to the merchants and buyers.

"The pageant is a St. Louis institution and merchants and buyers have come to depend upon it for authentic information on styles, as well as a delightful entertainment."

Doctor Says Heat and Glare of Sun Weaken and Injure the Eyes

Tell How to Strengthen the Eyes and Protect Them

Dr. Smith, a well-known eye specialist, says that exposure to heat, sun-glare, smoke, dust or wind often weakens the eyes and causes eyestrain and wrinkles due to squinting. He tells how to avoid this and strengthen the eyes. Many whose eyes were failing gratefully say that they have had their eyes restored by the simple process he advises. One man says: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain me dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after fifteen days' use everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." Eye troubles of many kinds may be wonderfully benefited in the following simple manner: Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and use two to four times a day. Your eyes will clear up noticeably right from the start. Inflammation will quickly disappear along with your tendency to squint. If your eyes are bothering you even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above was submitted, said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in every family." Bon-Opto is not a patent medicine or secret remedy.—The formula is printed on every package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight or refund the money. It is sold under guaranty by all druggists including Walgreen Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores and Enderle Drug Co.

Bugville's Richest Citizen—
But Flyosan will get him too!

HE'S BEEN burying flies and mosquitoes by the millions.

Flyosan floats through your rooms, killing every single fly and mosquito—getting into corners and crevices you could never see.

But use Flyosan itself—the first liquid insect spray on the market (non-poisonous). Flyosan not only kills every fly and mosquito in your house, but also kills the millions of deadly, disease-bearing germs on the body of each.

Here's the right insecticide for each insect:

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.
PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.
PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bedbugs.
PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates that cockroach army.
PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

WIDOW AND FOUR CHILDREN GET BULK OF MAY ESTATE

Philanthropic Bequests in Will of Department Stores Company Head Total $177,000.

$100,000 LEFT IN FUND FOR EMPLOYES

Washington and St. Louis Universities and Various Local Charitable Organizations Are Remembered.

The bulk of the estate of David May, chairman of the May Department Stores Co., is divided in equal shares among his widow and four children in a will filed yesterday.

No estimate of the value of the estate yet has been made. It is known to be large, likely several million dollars, chiefly in securities.

Bequests for philanthropic purposes totaling $177,000 are made. Chief of these is $100,000, the income of which is to be used for the relief of employes of the May stores company, who may be in distress. There are about 14,000 of these employes. Gifts of $20,000 to Washington University and $10,000 to St. Louis University are made, with provision that the income shall be used for loans to worthy students.

Gifts to Charities.

Other gifts were $15,000 to the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver, in which Mr. May was actively interested from its foundation; $5000 each to the St. Louis Children's Hospital, the Jewish Home for Chronic Invalids in St. Louis County and the Jewish Orphan Asylum in Cleveland, and $2500 each to Father Dempsey's Home for Workingmen, the Home for the Aged and Infirm Israelites, the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society in Denver, Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, the St. Louis Colored Orphan Home and the St. Louis Maternity Hospital. It is directed that Rosa May, his widow, shall give $1000 each to such Catholic and Protestant charities in Denver as she shall deem most worthy.

The children who will divide the bulk of the estate with their mother, Rosa May, are Morton J. May of St. Louis, Tom and Wilbur D. May of Los Angeles and Florence E. Straus of Chicago.

The bequests to Morton and Thomas May and Rosa May are outright. The one-fifth shares of Wilbur May, who is 28 years old, and Mrs. Straus, 23, are placed in the hands of the trustees.

Wilbur May will receive his share six months after his marriage if the marriage has the approval of his mother. If she is dead at the time of his marriage, then the trustees must give their approval. In any event, he will receive his share on reaching the age of 35, if the trustees choose to turn it over, and at the age of 40 will receive his share without any conditions being attached. The limit of the trust of Mrs. Straus' share is 21 years.

Bequests to Relatives.

A bequest of $10,000 is made to Mr. May's nephew, Alfred Triefus of Denver and $5000 each to his nieces, Paula Schweig, Louise Lowenthal and Lottie Teutor. The May summer home at Charlevoix, Mich., where Mr. May died last Friday, is bequeathed to Mrs. May. The only other real estate holding was 250 acres on Clayton road, between Geyer and Ballas roads.

The executors are Morton J. May and Samuel B. Butler, vice president and secretary of the May Stores Co. They, with Tom and Wilbur May and Nathan L. Dauby of Cleveland are trustees of the several trusts.

Charles M. Rice of the law firm of Lewis & Rice, filed the will.

Grocery Manager Robbed of $65.

Sam Stippler, manager of a Kroger store at 3165 North Eleventh street, was held up at 8:30 a. m. yesterday by an armed man who robbed him of $65 and escaped.

Shoots Former Wife, Ends Life.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., July 30.—Mike Pontikes, formerly of this city and later of Miami, Fla., today shot his former wife and then killed himself with a bullet through his heart. JULY OATS SOAR 18 1-4C AT WINNIPEG; SHORTS TRAPPED

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 30.—July oats soared 18¼ cents today in one of the wildest trading sessions experienced on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in many years. Trapped short interests fought to cover up their commitments, but with strong interests in control of the cash month supplies, the price was forced up so rapidly that difficulty was encountered in following the advance.

From the opening price of 69¾, July oats successfully rocketed by leaps and bounds and at the close the top price of 88 cents was recorded. Other months were comparatively dull. July wheat also scored a substantial gain, the closing prices being 3⅞ cents above Friday's final quotation.

WHEAT CLOSES REGULAR ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Last-minute sellers of July delivery of wheat and rye met with sudden scarcity of bidders today and a simultaneous tumble in values. July wheat fell to 5 cents under the day's high point and July delivery of rye 6½c. Most of the day, however, the wheat market showed a decided trend toward higher levels, owing to increased reports of black rust.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, 1⅛c net lower to ¾c advance, corn ¼c off to ½c up, oats at ⅛c decline to an equal gains and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 10 cents.

Report that black rust was cutting down South Dakota's wheat crop as compared with recent high estimates of yield led to sharp upturns in price soon after trading began. Late fields in the northern part of the State were described as damaged. An observer telegraphed today from Bristol, S. D., that stems in late fields were covered with rust and that the plant would not develop further.

Canadian and European crop advices were also a stimulus to speculative buyers of wheat. One report said that from Calgary north for 40 miles it would be six weeks before wheat would mature and that the grain appeared to have no chance to outdistance frost. Meanwhile Liverpool quotations showed less weakness than expected, and talk was heard that the French wheat crop has been impaired in quality, if not quantity. Official crop estimates from every European country except France, Russia and Rumania indicate a harvest of 839,000,000 bushels of wheat, against 851,000,000 bushels last year.

Corn and oats prices today kept within a narrow limit. Evening up of accounts so as to prepare for any surprise in expected private crop estimates on Monday constituted most of the trade. Weather reports were favorable.

Provisions averaged higher, with previous sellers buying.

FRUIT MARKET

Satisfactory Apple Trade Is Reported.

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, July 30.—There was good demand for No. 1 fruit reported in the apple market. There were three cars of Calhoun County apples loaded here for shipment yesterday. This demand, together with local buying, cleared the market pretty thoroughly of all desirable offerings. The welthys were the most favored and when of good size with color brought top prices. LIGHT HOGS IN GOOD DEMAND DURING WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and Calves	31,832	36,400	32,843
Hogs	62,736	53,816	63,410
Sheep	19,908	17,498	15,984
Horses and Mules	240	581	321
	114,716	108,295	112,558

Total receipts of livestock last week were somewhat in excess of the previous six-day period with cattle alone, however, showing a decrease in volume. Higher prices resulted in most classes, although some, notably western steers, displayed a weaker tendency. Native beef steers closed mostly 25c higher, top for the week at $13.50 on mature steers, yearlings reaching a new high for the year at $13. A spread of $10 to $12.75 caught the bulk of native steers. Westerns comprised better than 230 cars and sold unevenly steady to 25c higher on best kinds, others steady to 25 to 40c lower. Top was $10.50, low end reaching $6.50. Steers and heifer yearlings advanced 25c and spots more, demand good throughout the week. Top heifers reached $12.25, a new high for the year, with mixed stopping at $12. Bulk of sales was at $10.50 to $11.75 on better kinds, medium and plain selling from $7 to $10. Choice cows closed strong to 25c higher, medium beef grades barely steady and canner and cutter cows strong to 25c up. Bulk beef cows made $6.50 to $7.75, cutters $5.25 to $5.75 and canners $4.50 to $4.75. Bulls closed 25c to 50c higher, bulk bolognas $6 to $6.75, top $6.75. Plain kinds ranged $5 to $5.50 largely. Stocker and feeder steers closed strong, she stuff 15 to 25c higher. Top feeder steers $9.50, bulk stocker and feeders $6.50 to $8.35. Top and first cut veals closed $1.75 higher, bulk for the week $13.25 to $14, for choice, next cuts $11 and $12. Heavy calves steady at $6 to $9, canner yearlings 25c to 50c lower at $4.75 to $5.60.

Good Inquiries for Light Hogs.

Hog receipts the past week were approximately 62,736, as compared with 53,816 last week and 63,326 corresponding period last year. Quality was generally good. Light hogs met with good inquiry in past period, weighty swine, however, were hard to move, especially when packers were the only buyers. Weights 230 lbs. and down invariably found an active market, and values were tending higher, although a few day's prices were in the decline. In the early part of the week there was a good order demand for weighty hogs and this class gained considerably, but this demand fell off towards the latter part of the week and packers were only buyers. They were very bearish and all the early advance on this class was lost. The spread between extreme heavy hogs and light hogs is $2.20 which is extremely wide. Trading on weighty hogs the latter part of the week was exceedingly erratic. In the Friday session that class was steady to lower to 10 to 25c higher. Another aggravating factor the already overworried salesman had to put up with was the holdover problem. Packers failed to clear the market very good and quite a few hogs were carried over each day. Pigs and light lights were in good demand throughout the period and the market on that class was active and tending higher. Best light weights sold up to $9.75 at the close Friday as compared with $9.25 last Saturday. Pigs weighing 120 to 130 lbs. bulked for the week at $9.75 to $10.25, mostly $10.25 the latter part of the week. Inferior grades sold down to $7.00. Packing sows closed the week sharply under last Saturday. The demand was only fair and a good supply was on hand. At the close $7.75 was the best price obtainable as to $8.15 last week. Today's market was unchanged from yesterday. Light hogs closed the week mostly 25c higher than last Saturday; medium weights steady to 25c higher; heavies practically unchanged. High top for the week was $11.30 paid Monday and Friday. Bulk of light hogs sold for the week at $10.90 to $11.25. Pigs closed 50c to 75c higher; packing sows 25c to 40c lower.

Lamb Trade Steady.

A slight increase of sheep and lamb receipts was registered here the past week. The total for the week was approximately 19,908, as compared with 17,498 corresponding time last week and 22,147 same days last year. Quality was generally good. For the most part, trading the past week was on a steady basis. In mid-week a slight touch of light supplies combined with a good demand sent values up 25c. Packers were the main buyers and they took hold fairly well. However, at the close of the last day's trading, packers were filled up and the market closed weak to 25c lower. As compared with last Saturday, the market is steady to 25c higher. Clearance for the week was good. High top for the week was $13.75 paid for choice Tennessee lambs. Bulk of lambs sold for the week at $13.25 to $13.50 with a few down to $13.00. Cull enjoyed a moderate demand throughout the period and values were full steady each day. Most culls went to the scales at $8.50 and skips $5.00 to $7.00. Aged sheep were in moderate inquiry and values held to a steady level all week. Best ewes under 120 pounds made $5.50, 120 to 140 pounds $5.00, over 140 pounds $4.50. Choppers and bucks $3.00 to $3.50, canners $1.00 to $2.50. The supply of weathers and goats was very light, in fact, only odd head were on sale.

Quotations slaughter stock: Good to choice spring lambs $13.00 to $13.75, medium to good $11.50 to $13.00, plain to medium $10.50 to $11.50, cull and common $8.00 to $10.00. Good to choice yearling wethers $10.25 to $11.25, medium to good $9.25 to $10.25, plain to medium $8.25 to $9.25, cull and common $7.00 to $8.00. Good to choice aged western wethers $8.00 to $9.00, good fat southern kinds $7.50 to $8.50, thin to fair kinds $4.00 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes $4.50 to $5.50, plain to good $4.00 to $4.50, choppers and bucks $3.00 to $3.50, canners $1.00 to $2.50. Fat goats $3.00 to $4.00. Fair to good kids $4.00 to $7.00, thin to fair kids $1.50 to $3.00.

Horses and Mules.

Little material was offered for trading during the week closed in the horse and mule division. Not enough supplies were received to justify an auction being held and arrivals were forced to clear through commission alleys, price basis holding steady as compared with the previous week. Some of the receipts were scheduled to be offered for sale in the coming auction of range horses and mules to be held Tuesday, approximately 300 head reported by local authorities.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Storage holdings of butter on Aug. 1 throughout the United States are expected to show 10,000,000 pounds surplus over Aug. 1 holdings in 1926.

Operators in general find it difficult to form a definite opinion regarding the future trend of the market. At the close of the week all markets were nervous and unsettled. In spite of lighter receipts during the current week, the net into storage movement continued heavy at the four principal markets, showing only a slight slowing down in the rate of increase. During the corresponding period a year ago, the into storage rate was decreasing more rapidly.

Production has shown the usual seasonal decline although it is less pronounced in some territories than others. Producing conditions generally have been more favorable this year with no extensive area seriously in need of rain.

INTEREST AT PRESENT IN LOW MONEY

Unexpected Softening in Money Rates and Favorable Reports on Business Provide Basis for Greater Faith in Stock Market, Says Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"An unexpected softening in money rates and favorable reports on business have provided the basis for greater faith in the stock market but it is the downturn in money that represents the phase most interesting at the moment. The ease in rates begun a fortnight ago was followed this week by a small fractional drop in ninety day time money, and a sharp fall in ninety day bankers acceptances to 3¼ per cent. Call money, bill rates, and commercial paper all had shown plain declining tendencies last week, but the drop this week in the time rate brought all four important elements of the money market into the procession for low rates. The reduction this week in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank at Kansas City from 4 to 3 per cent was held by some as seeming out of ordinary since it is at this season of the year that interior banks need funds to finance the crop movement. Undoubtedly there is significance in the fact that Kansas City has led the way in a possible readjustment of re-discount rates, but a change at this time of year is not new for an interior bank.

Previous Changes in Summer.

"Three years ago, on July 1, 1924, when the bank at Kansas City reduced its rate to 4 per cent and, for that matter, five years ago on August 12, 1922 when the same bank reduced its rate to 4½ per cent the interior banks were facing crop movement periods. The three note changes made by the Kansas City bank in its readjustment rate in the last five years were made in July or August and in each case the change was from a higher to a lower level. At least history was on the side of the Kansas City institution when it cut the rate this week, just at a season when the demand for funds to move crops normally increases. It is a mark of strength in the banking situation of the interior, but that condition was reflected in the statements long before any thought had been given to rate reduction. Member bank borrowings at the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank held high above those for the year previous during most of 1926, but as the effects of a large crop began to give growers more funds these rediscounts fell sharply so that by late 1926 they were lower than they had been the year before.

"All Other Loans" Decrease.

"All of which leads up to the interesting observation that throughout 1927 to date member banks borrowings in that district have held substantially below those for 1926. This reflects plainly an improved condition for the member banks since they have been able more and more to free themselves from independence on the Federal Reserve Bank. They have been able to increase their own independence in this way through liquidation of last year's large wheat crop at favorable prices. In this connection it is significant to note that the item "all other loans" for reporting member banks in the Kansas City district, by which is meant loans for commercial purposes, have dropped to the smallest volume on record. This decline began somewhat above the $4[illegible],000,000 level early in 1921, but its most significant recession has occurred since the middle of 1926. In somewhat less than a year these loans have been falling from, roughly, $340,000,000 to around $290,000,000. It means that the demand for funds from the interior for commercial purposes has fallen tremendously, and, since the slack has not been taken up in that district by commitments elsewhere, a position of comfort has resulted.

May "Come Out of the West."

"It is altogether possible that the move for a general reduction in Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rates will come, this time, from the interior. Heretofore New York usually has led the way in this change, but there are reasons why it may appear wise to the Federal Reserve authorities to let the interior lead the way in this instance. Action on the part of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York previous to a cut elsewhere would almost certainly have excited the stock market. It is likely that the Federal Reserve Bank here eventually will want to assist London in its desire to obtain cheaper money, however, and if the present ease in funds continues a drop to 3½ per cent at New York is a real possibility. The persistent softening in all departments of the money market made it appear likely that a reduction from the present 3½ per cent in the buying rate on 90-day bills by the Federal Reserve Bank will precede a cut in the rediscount rate. Among other things, such a change would indicate a willingness on the part of the Federal Reserve authorities to assist in the international commodity movement and it would be plain recognition of the general change in the whole money situation. An abundance of money at the declining rates for this season of the year provides the best possible assurance that the flow of business for the remainder of 1927 will continue high.

20 INDUSTRIALS 25 POINTS ABOVE YEAR'S LOW LEVEL

NEW YORK, July 30.—A further softening of money rates, coincident with a marked expansion in brokers' loans, and a further rally in stock prices which carried the industrial average to record high levels, attracted major attention in this week's financial markets. Cotton futures attained new high levels for the season, but lost most of their gains, and the wheat market turned decidedly reactionary on reports of more favorable weather in the northwest.

Despite the fact that brokers' loans increased more than $82,000,000 this week, bringing them to the second highest total on record, there was no apparent strain on the credit situation. Another reduction in bankers' acceptance rates carried them ⅝ of 1 per cent below the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate which fact, together with the decrease from 4 to 3½ per cent in the rediscount rate of the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank, revived hopes of a rate cut here. Banks called about $25,000,000 in loans to meet month-end requirements, but this was partially offset by importations of gold from Holland and Canada.

High-Grade Industrials Lead.

The stock market moved forward under the leadership of high-grade industrials with buying stimulated by the publication of unusually favorable half-yearly statements by the country's two largest industrial corporations — General Motors and U. S. Steel—and by the announcement that the Dupont interests had acquired 114,000 shares of steel stock in the open market at an average price slightly below $123 a share. Reports that this purchase would be investigated by the Federal Trade Commission because of its economic aspects aroused little concern in Wall street.

The rapidity of the recent advance in stock prices had been generally interpreted as an indication of a scarcity in the floating supply of high-grade issues, which have been heavily bought for investment in recent months and taken out of the market. However, the violence of the advance in many issues has led to widespread warning of caution on the part of conservative commission houses, which have advised profit-taking on the theory that the market's technical position has been weakened. Offerings, however, have been unusually well absorbed due, in part, to active short covering on every break.

Averages Up 25.

At the close of the week, the average of 20 leading industrials was about 25 points above the low of the year and the average of 20 leading rails about 20 points above the year's low.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Switching of speculative interest from the industrials to the rails featured the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Although profit-taking sales ran rather heavy in the industrial group, forcing some of the recent strong spots back 1 to 3 points, a number of new high records were established, then at gains ranging from 1 to 11 points. Trading was fairly heavy for a mid-summer half-holiday session.

Easy money rates continue to provide the chief stimulus for the upward movement, the further reduction in bankers' acceptances to a level ⅝ of 1 per cent below the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate more than offsetting the sharp increase in brokers' loans this week. Indications of a quickening fall demand in some of the basic industries and a further improvement in the crop outlook also have contributed materially to the solidification of bullish sentiment.

Pennsylvana Leads.

Rails shook off the sluggishness created by the publication of some relatively poor June earnings statement, and responded to the increasing investment demand for the high-grade issues. Pennsylvania was today's leader, moving up more than a point to 66¾, the highest level since 1910. New peak prices also were attained by Atchison, Erie common, Great Northern preferred, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific. A better inquiry developed for some of the non-dividend paying issues such as Missouri Pacific, Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred and Chicago Great Western.

Wall street did not appear to be greatly disturbed over the Federal Trade Commission's decision to inquire into the relationship between U. S. Steel, Dupont and General Motors. Steel common closed ⅛ higher at 136 after fluctuating within a range of 2 points. General Motors closed unchanged at 226¼, after selling between 225⅝ and 227¾. Dupont closed 8 points lower at 287, which was regarded as natural after yesterday's sensational advance of 15 points.

Advance in Hudson.

A sudden outburst of activity in Hudson Motors carried that stock up more than 3 points to a new 1927 top at 89¼. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were Allied Chemical, American Steel and Foundry, Consolidated Gas, Guyamel Fruit, International Harvester, Manhattan Electrical Supply, F. G. Shuttuck, Timken Roller Bearing and Warren Bros.

Oil shares displayed a much stronger undertone, Atlantic Refining standing out with a gain of more than 3 points. Selling pressure was most effective against Radio Corporation, Freeport, Texas and Bayuk Cigars.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85¼ and French francs just below 3.91½ cents. Japanese cables were slightly firmer around 47.18 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed excess reserve of $4,118,220, a decrease of $24,046,050 below that of a week ago. Aggregate reserve totalled $638,585,000. The detailed statement of actual conditions this day showed mixed changes. Loans, discounts and investments increased $69,420,000 and net demand deposits $83,534,000. Decreases were shown by the following items: Cash in own vaults, $1,112,00; reserve in the Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, $22,544,00, and time deposits $571,000.

QUIET MARKETS EXPECTED TO PREVAIL IN LONDON

LONDON, July 30.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers Magazine and Financial editor of the London Morning Post in weekly financial review today says:—

"The holiday season is now in full swing with financial magnates on long vacations. Unless monetary or political developments become abnormal, quiet markets will prevail with occasional spasms of liquidation caused by indigestion in connection with prolonged new capital issues and the after effects of the late James deals.

"The monetary situation, however, will be closely scrutinized and the ultimate rise of the bank rate to 5 per cent is perhaps discounted, but any further rise might occasion considerable liquidation.

FIRMNESS STILL RULES BOND MARKET TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Firmness continued to rule the bond market today, both high-grade and semi-speculative issues moving forward, in some cases reaching new high territory. Recent substantial contraction of unabsorbed new issues has given the market a considerably more comfortable feeling, with the result that buyers are coming in with more confidence. Business in the listed market, however, was still in small volume, partly because of the absence of many traders and the current tendency to satisfy a material proportion of the demand over the counter. Easy money, too, was a stimulating influence.

Chesapeake Corporation 5s were among the leaders in the division of gilt-edged railway mortgages, moving within a fraction of their high record price. Oregon Short Line refunding 4s and "Frisco" income 6s also were attractive to buyers. Erie "D" 4s again were well out in front on the convertible bond list, jumping 3 points in the wake of the stock, and establishing a new record price of 127½. This compared with the year's low just above 84.

International Telephone debenture 4½s, under moderately heavy accumulation, sold as high as 92¾, the year's best figure, and Third Avenue adjustment 5s were again active around their 1927 top. Industrial liens were quiet.

Foreign issues were not very active. French and some of the Italian municipal obligations gave evidence of firmness, but German Government bonds were easy. Little business was transacted in the Federal Government group, in which prices, however, displayed an upward trend.

Bond Offerings of Week Exceed $88,445,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Germany is not planning a direct loan for the republic, but indirectly it intends to raise a large sum in the autumn, according to London dispatches, through land reclamation, post office and further national mortgage loans. The Government is not in a favorable position at present because its loan of last February has fallen from 92, the issue price, to 86½.

Girocentrale in early autumn expects to borrow $25,000,000 in a 30-year loan in America. It will be put out around 92. Hesse is negotiating a loan and the State of Baden is also after one for a hydro-electric works development. Prussia is in the market for $30,000,000. Dortmund and Nuremberg are also out for loans. Other cities that are seeking accommodations are: Ghemnitz, Breslau and Berlin. The Central Land Credit Bank also wants $7,500,000.

During the past week the new bond offerings were the heaviest of the month, amounting to $88,445,500, as compared with $75,625,000 last week and $89,165,000 in the corresponding period of 1926. The total July offerings were also the lowest for any month since August of last year.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, July 30.—The New York Evening Post in weekly copyrighted foreign exchange market review says:

"Leading European exchanges moved within a narrow range all week. Trading was heavy but narrow in sterling cables holding at $4.85¾ and $4.85 9-16, even on days when business was in large volume with many transactions of £250,000 and £300,000 at a time. French exchange conditions improved and cables were again held at 3.91½. Italian had little variation, holding close to 5.44 throughout the week. A firm tone was shown in German exchange, which made a new high for the year at 23.79. Danish exchange also made a new high for the year on a slight advance, which carried crown checks to 26.71. Spanish had a range of about 6 points during the week.

"Japanese exchange was heavy at times, but a demand appeared after the middle of the week, on which yen checks rose from 47.00 to 47.12 and more later. Silver exchange turned heavy in the last few days, Hong Kong and Shanghai both yielding about ¼ cent.

"Canadian showed a firmer tone, chiefly as a result of the export of $4,000,000 gold from Canada. It caused a rally in the Canadian dollar from 99.90 to 99.95.

"The only feature in the mid-continent exchanges was the weakness in Polish exchange, which made a new low for the year for the Sloty.

"Exchange on Uruguay was weak for a time, but it recovered a mid-week loss. Mexican exchange, after being heavy for a long period, was improved in its position by the arrangement for payment of the government debt interest in August. The gold peso rose from 46.35 to 47.55 and the silver peso from 44.00 to 44.90."

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Steel mills were reported as receiving larger specifications against contracts and also booking an increased aggregate tonnage during the week. There was a better demand for steel sheets from automobile manufacturers. Structural steel demand continued good. Estimated tonnage contracted by railroads for the current month was estimated at approximately 225,000 tons.

Pig iron demand subsided after a fair local buying flurry early in the week; prices displayed an easier trend.

The improvement recently reported in the copper market has been reflected by a further advance in prices. A fair business has been reported since the buying movement started and it is estimated that bookings during July have aggregated in the neighborhood of 100,000 tons. Small sale were reported at 13⅛c level for electrolytic, delivered at Connecticut Valley points toward the end of the week, and in some cases producers were said to be asking a further advance of ⅛c. Domestic buyers, however, have shown a disposition to resist the advance of above 13 cents.

Tin turned firm and the demand was more active. London advanced sharply and reports were of a reduced output in parts of the Straits district.

Lead was advanced again by producers and the demand, while not as keen as recently, was still considered good.

Zinc remained firm and consuming inquiry was fair. Stocks in producers' hands were reported to have decreased the first half of July.

Antimony slightly easier. Consuming demand expected to gain with the activity in the market for lead.

With the distribution of the holdings the dividend rate reverted to 6 per cent annually in line with today's declaration. The dividend is payable Oct. 1 on stock of record Aug. 15.

COTTON BREAKS ABOUT HALF CENT AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The cotton market today was weak and unsettled, prices breaking about ½c from yesterday's closing quotations. The decline was checked at 18.43c for December and there were rallies later on covering and trade buying, that delivery closing at 18.53c, compared with 18.95c at the closing previous day and 19.39c the high record of last Tuesday. The general market closed steady at net declines of 40 to 44 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 13 to 19 points under liquidation and selling for a reaction. No special news factor was connected with the selling, but the market acted as if a considerable long interest had accumulated on recent advances and that a weaker technical position was asserting its influence. Stop orders were uncovered as prices worked off, and there was no slackening of the selling movement until active months showed net losses of about 50 to 54 points. October sold off to 18.20c and January to 18.53c, making declines of about 90 to 96 points from the high record prices established earlier in the week. There was trade buying and covering on scale down orders which gradually absorbed the offerings, however, and when the selling tapered off during the middle of the morning, prices steadied on covering. Rallies of 15 or 20 points from the lowest followed, but these were not fully maintained, as the bulges seemed to meet further commission or wire house liquidation. Last prices were about 6 to 10 points up from the lowest on most positions. Buying on the decline may have been encouraged by prospects for further showers in the South, where dry weather is supposed to be generally needed, but except for the trade buying on a scale down during the earlier trading, the demand was attributed chiefly to covering. Owing to the holiday, there were no cables from Liverpool to influence sentiment here one way or the other and Liverpool will not reopen for business until Tuesday morning. The disposition to even up commitments may have been promoted to some extent by uncertainty as to the showing of season-end statistics and the approaching Government reports on weevil emergence and end-July crop prospects, or a feeling that any bullish features likely to show in these reports had been pretty well discounted by the recent advance.

New high prices for the season were reached in the cotton market here last Tuesday, when buying appeared to be stimulated by increasing apprehensions of boll weevil damage to the crop, and continued confidence in large world's requirements of American cotton next season. The latter was probably promoted by reports that East India crop prospects were being damaged by excessive rains, while nearly all advices reaching here from the South emphasized the increasing infestation of boll weevil and the probability of serious damage from the pests, if weather conditions were not favorable for their control during August.

The market sold up to 19.15c for October contracts and 19.80c for May, but at these figures a good deal of realizing was encountered. Reports of fairly favorable crop progress so far as plant development was concerned, and mid-week weather news, no doubt, in- mid-week weather news, no doubt increased the disposition to take profits on long cotton, and there may have been some selling for a reaction. At time, offerings were fairly heavy, but they were absorbed on comparatively moderate setbacks and while rallies toward the end of the week were not maintained, the market showed a fairly steady undertone.

The volume of business tapered off quite materially on the declines from the high levels and part of the trading was attributed to evening up of accounts in preparation for private end-July condition reports, the Government report on insect activities expected on Monday and the season-end statistics. Up to Friday, four of the private end-July crop reports have been issued, with condition figures ranging from 70.7 up to 73.1 and crop indications from 14,418,000 bales up to about 14,578,000 bales. These figures were without much apparent effect on the immediate market, but traders were not certain whether it would be safe to assume that a similar showing by the Department of Agriculture on Aug. 8 had been discounted.

The rain damaged reports to the Indian crop has been largely in the staple production districts and has been regarded as suggesting a probable continued demand for American cotton as a substitute for Indian during the coming season. It is reported that some foreign spinners have prices still to fix on present crop cotton but have bought comparatively little for new crop shipment.

IRREGULAR TREND TO CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Decision of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit to contest the award of bus franchises to the Equitable Coach Co. had little effect on those securities on the Curb Market, which directly or indirectly would be affected by the recent move, and business in today's abbreviated session indicated marked irregularity.

Selling, which came into the market Friday, appeared to be curtailed, although those issues which fell back failed to regain their losses. Several issues in the miscellaneous industrial division were in demand. Deere gained 4 points. Warner Brothers Pictures moved forward a point while General Ice Cream and Silver Brothers scored similar upturns. Hellman preferred was another exception to the general irregularity, that issue advancing almost 2 points.

Among others in the group which lost moderately were American Arch, American Rayon, Goodyear, Associated Gas and Sanitary Grocery. Union and United Tobacco held gains made in the previous session.

No signs of activity appeared in the oils, notwithstanding the decision of operators of the Greater Seminole pool to put into effect a curtailment program to limit production in the rear to 450,000 barrels daily, thereby creating a better market for stocks on hand.

NATIONAL CANDY IS FEATURE OF WEEK

A proposal is to be made to the board of directors of the company that the $100 par value common be split up into 4 no par value shares. Ely-Walker was up 3 points selling between 34 and 33.

Aggregate sales for the week were slightly in excess of previous periods. Shoe shares came into some prominence in trading. Hamilton-Brown gained 3 points.

LEAPS FROM AUTO AND RUNS IN FRONT OF ONCOMING TRAIN

Ernest Anglin, 24, of Harrodsburg, Ky., Killed at St. Louis County Crossing.

Leaping from an automobile to save himself from an oncoming train, Ernest Anglin, 24 years old, of Harrodsburg, Ky., ran directly in front of the locomotive in his confusion, and was killed near the Rock Island station at Olivette, St. Louis County, Friday night. A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday.

Anglin and his brother, Walter, who lives near Olivette, had started to drive across the Rock Island tracks when they saw a gasoline train approaching. Walter, who was at the wheel, stopped the car and backed safely off the track. As he did so, Ernest jumped.

At the inquest, W. S. Shields, engineer of the locomotive, testified Ernest, after landing clear of the track, appeared to lose his head, and ran in the wrong direction.

Then boil three pounds of rice flour in water. Soak one pound clean of white glue and dissolve it over a water bath. Add the rice flour and glue mixtures, half pound of Spanish whiting and five gallons of hot water to the lime, stirring the whitewash thoroughly. Cover the container and allow the whitewash to stand a few days before using it. A portable furnace should be used to heat the whitewash when it is to be used.

M. L.—Astronomical telescopes are of two kinds, refracting and reflecting. In the first, the light falls upon the lens which converges the rays to a focus, where the image may be magnified by a second lens, called the eye piece, or may be directly photographed. The largest and most active telescopes in the world are in America. They are, for refractors: The 40-inch of the University of Chicago, at the Yerkes Observatory (62 feet long); the 36-inch of the University of California at the Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton; the 30-inch photographic refractor of the University of Pittsburg; the 26-inch instruments of the United States Naval Observatory, Washington, and at the University of Virginia. The largest reflector yet constructed, 100 inches in diameter, is at the observatory of the Carnegie Institution at Mt. Wilson, California. This observatory has also a very fine reflector of 60 inches aperture by using a combination of auxiliary mirrors different local lengths, even running as high as 150 feet, can be obtained with these instruments.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

DUMB DORA.—The Court cost, with publication of the divorce, will be about $35.

A READER.—You are entitled to compensation but you cannot compel the company to give you your job back.

BURT.—You do not need a license to collect bills for other people.

MRS. O. J.—You cannot charge a fee for fortune telling, nor procure a license as a fortune teller, as it is against the law.

CONSTANT READER.—The mortgage can be released by an affidavit that the note is lost.

WORRIED.—The sister can be arrested for kidnaping, if she takes the children from their father.

A. B. C.—The party named as beneficiary receives the money from an insurance policy, regardless who has paid the premiums.

THELMA.—It is lawful for a husband to buy property in the manner you state, however, a wife can claim interest in the property.

MISS U. M. Z.—You can compel your former employers to pay you the full amount for the time you worked for them. Advertise for a place in the newspapers.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A. H. F.—The rubbing of camphorated oil is one of the best preventives for chigger bites. As a treatment the following is usually satisfactory: Hyposulphite of soda, ½ ounce; glycerine, 1 ounce; distilled water, 6 ounces. Mix and apply locally.

THANK YOU.—As much depends upon the necessary time and nature of the treatment or operation of a goitre no fixed charge could be made. However, a line addressed to the hospital in question would bring you an approximate statement. There is no hospital in St. Louis, to our knowledge, where such treatments would be given free of charge.

HETTY.—Bad breath may be due to many different causes, such as bad teeth, pyorrhea, diseased tonsils, diseased lungs or bronchial tubes or any one of the many forms of indigestion, constipation and any local or general infection. It follows that any remedy to be of benefit must be in conformity to a correct diagnosis. We, therefore, advise that you consult a physician for diagnosis and treatment.

G. S.—Arthritis is a generic term signifying any disease involving a joint, but more strictly an articular inflammation. All the structures composing and surrounding a joint are embraced in the inflammation and arthritis may be due to injury, rheumatism, typhoid fever, gout, spinal lesion, tuberculosis and the like. There is an acute and chronic form. In a general way the treatment is to be determined by the particular causative factor and always the best hygienic conditions, fresh air and good food. We do not advise the use of cold baths in the treatment of neuritis, on the contrary heat is the best remedy for this malady. It is practically impossible to secure the best results with home self administered treatments. Barnes Hospital is especially well equipped for giving proper treatment and our advice is that you go there for treatment and cure.

DAUGHTERS, SONS AND GRANDCHILDREN

In loving memory of our darling son and brother, Emmett C. Walton, who departed this life two years ago, July 31, 1925:

LOVING HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

George Gilbert Flynn died July 29, 1926, age 21 years, 6 months and 18 days.
Darling son:
You have gone today one year
From the ones who loved you dear.
Nothing seems the same since you
Have gone away though we tried
And prayed and cried, it seemed
You could not stay.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Irene Feldman, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 2, 1926.
Peaceful be thy rest dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles E. Pillmann, who departed this life one year ago, July 31, 1926:
Days of sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love shall always keep you near me,
Tho' you left one year ago.

A lonely heart will love to linger
Near the grave where you are laid.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Virginia Irene Olson, who departed this life July 31, 1926, age 3 years, 10 months.

One year has passed since God called our darling home.
Her dear little form from us is gone,
The precious voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.

Sadly missed by mother, father, brother and those who loved her.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mina Ringwald, who passed away one year ago, July 29, 1926.
We are lonely, yes, for mother,
In the year that passed away,
And we know she'll always guide us
'Til we meet again some day.
She is happily reunited
With her pal, our father dear,
In that beautiful Isle of Somewhere
They await their children there.
Mother, your memory is as sweet today
As the day you passed away.
HER LOVING CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

In memory of our dear mother, Mary Vandeventer, who departed this life July 28, 1926:
Wonderful mother, woman and aid;
One who is better God never made.
Wonderful worker, so loyal and true;
One in a million that mother was you.
Just in her judgment, always right;
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your children and all who knew you;
Our wonderful mother that was you.
Sadly missed by her devoted children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters and son-in-law, and daughters-in-law and her many friends. (c)

Love of my heart to that strange, far place, where your beautiful souls have gone
Though my human sight find nor track nor trace, I know that it lies to the dawn;
And I know, dear heart, in that wonderland, hid away in the dawn somewhere, that your white souls rest in the dear God's hand and at last I shall find you there.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Fred W. Witbrodt, who died July 31, 1926:
One long year has passed away
Since that most sad and mournful day,
When God alone who knows the best,
Called him to that home of rest.
His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land—
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by wife, daughters, parents-in-law, brothers, sisters and all who loved him.

FOOD REVOLT TO OCCUR BY 1967, SPEAKER SAYS

Henry A. Wallace Predicts Industrial Strife When Prices Become Exorbitant.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 30.—A revolt by the industrial population against high food costs was pictured before the Institute of Politics today as a possibility in the United States within the next 40 years.

Henry A. Wallace, son of the former Secretary of Agriculture, in an address decried "the grave injustice that has been done agriculture in the last six years."

He predicted a food shortage within 40 years, resultant disturbances that will cause industrial centers "a thousand times as much worry as the present farm situation." He warned that the industrial population might precipitate trouble when an imminently inadequate food supply compels them to pay an undue proportion of their wages for food.

National safety demands that at least one-fourth of our population be farmers, he said, foreign food markets notwithstanding. He decried corporation farming from a standpoint of human values.

Farm Better Than Factory.

"I question if it is sound policy for the United States to carry the industrialization of agriculture beyond the family sized farm," he said. "Men who work on their own crops, even though they be only tenants, have a strikingly different attitude than union labor producing goods for some one else. I wonder if the men who work eight hours a day in a factory, and get their greatest pleasure outside working hours, are as complete and worthwhile human citizens as farmers working twelve hours a day at half the wage."

He questioned the Government reclamation projects and encouragement of increased food production, when the farmers are already suffering from a surplus of wheat, hogs and cotton, together with a post-war reversal in credit balances between this country and Europe.

Surplus in Many Crops.

"During the last five years," he said, "we have had about ten million too many acres of cotton, and the same of corn and wheat. If the 10 million marginal acres of each of these crops could have been taken out of use, and if the production of hogs could have been cut by about 10 million head each year, it is probable that the farmers would have received their fair share of the national income.

"Farmers today, comprising about one-fourth of the country's population, receive about one-tenth of the national income. The agricultural industry, after paying for labor about 60 per cent above pre-war rates, has a return on capital investment (which incidentally has been shrunk by about 20 billions since 1920) of 3 or 4 per cent, whereas corporate industry, after paying its labor more than twice the pre-war wages, has a return on it capital investment (which has been increased by more than 20 billions since the war) or around 12 per cent. This would seem to indicate beyond doubt that for the time being, city industries are catering more satisfactorily than the farmers to the satisfying of human needs."

Submits Plan For Philippines.

A plan by which the United States might retain control of the Philippine Islands and at the same time permit Filipinos virtually to govern themselves was sketched before the Institute of Politics today. C. C. Batchelder, former acting Secretary of the Interior, presented the administrative plan.

The plan would provide for a Prime Minister, appointed by the Governor-General, who would select his own Cabinet. The Cabinet would be obliged to resign if a vote of confidence were refused by the Legislature; and the Legislature would compulsorily dissolve at such a crisis to permit elections to return or supplant it.

Filipinos would have complete control of their domestic affairs, subject to supervision by the Governor-General. The latter, with approval of a Philippine commission in the United States, would have the power to take over any part of the administration being mismanaged.

The Philippine Commission would comprise a member of the Insular Legislature, a United States Judge and an American once resident in the islands. The Commission's powers would be judicial, and it would decide on questions arising between the Filipino Legislature and the Governor-General. In return for this form of government, the islanders would pledge themselves to 20 years of non-agitation against American dominion. A Constitution drawn up "by experts and not politicians" would be a part of the plan.

Batchelder said the plan, if adopted, would conciliate American business interests and Filipino Nationalists and would safeguard the islands economically, strategically and politically.

Old Restaurant Man Dies.

FOREIGN WARS VETERANS JOIN IN SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN

Rudolph W. Von Knobelsdorf, Who Disappeared July 23, Had Trouble With Associate.

Members of Anthony Gallagher Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars have joined in the search for Rudolph W. Von Knobelsdorf, 32 years old, an insurance agent missing since July 23. His automobile was found two days after his disappearance at Eighteenth and Walnut streets, and had been run about 100 miles since it was taken out.

The police have been told by his wife, Mrs. Emma Von Knobelsdorf, that he had trouble with an associate in the war organization. Von Knobelsdorf was an officer in the Veterans of Foreign Wars and it was his duty to collect outstanding moneys for the organization. As chairman of the recent poppy drive he sought to collect about $150 due from another member, and took the matter up with higher officials.

The man came to their home at 3957 Westminster place one midnight shortly before Von Knobelsdorf's disappearance, she told police, and asked him to "square" things. The man wanted her husband to go out with him immediately, she said, but Von Knobelsdorf refused, owing to the lateness of the hour.

138TH INFANTRY OFF FOR CAMP AT NEVADA

National Guard Unit, 750 Strong, to Undergo Two Weeks of Training.

With a cool breeze tempering the heat of the past week and quickening the bustle of departure, 750 members of the One Hundred Thirty-eighth Infantry entrained last night for Nevada, to undergo two weeks of "soldiering" at the annual Missouri National Guard Encampment.

In high spirits over the prospects of leaving the pursuits of the city behind for the life of the military camp, the national guardsmen piled aboard two sections of a Missouri Pacific train. The first left the Compton avenue yards at 7:30, followed a little later by the second section. At Nevada the two St. Louis battalions were to be joined by the third battalion of the One Hundred Thirty-eighth from Hannibal.

Thus, with 1000 men mustered, the One Hundred Thirty-eighth will be in camp today with the strongest force it has brought out in years. Col. Stephen E. Lowe is in command of the regiment.

Target practice, daily drill, athletics and other activities will speed the days for the guardsmen. They will break camp Aug. 14.

The St. Louis battery of the One Hundred Twenty-eighth Field Artillery, which completed a week of training last Wednesday at Fort Riley, Kan., is due here this afternoon. The regiment has been on the road in motor trucks since Thursday. There are 60 men and four officers in the local unit.

BANKRUPT SHOE JOBBER FREED ON BOND BY FEDERAL JUDGE

In Jail on Contempt Charge, Bernard S. Reiss Gains Liberty on Temporary Writ.

Bernard S. Reiss, bankrupt shoe jobber, committed to jail at Warrenton, Mo., June 10, last, is at liberty again. He was released yesterday on $5000 bond on a temporary writ of habeas corpus obtained by his attorney, James E. Carroll, from United States District Judge Reeves at Kansas City.

In ordering his release, Judge Reeves set Sept. 20 as the date for arguments in St. Louis to determine whether Reiss is to continue at liberty, or to return to jail until he produces $27,345 in funds missing from his bankrupt estate.

Reiss' creditors hold claims of $30,000 as the result of the failure of his shoe store at 901 Franklin avenue. During hearings before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles Reiss testified that in trying to recoup his fortune he had lost $35,000 in dice games, including $27,345 which Referee Coles believed belonged to his creditors.

The Referee doubted his story and ordered Reiss to produce the missing funds. Reiss stuck to his story and the case was turned over to Judge Faris, who ordered him to jail until he had purged himself of contempt by paying the money.

SAYS BONDSMAN KEEPS MONEY CLIENTS GIVE HIM FOR FINES

Police Judge Beck Plans to Prosecute Man Who Dupes Minor Violators.

Police Judge Beck announced yesterday that he hoped to lay before the Circuit Attorney evidence to show that a widely known professional bondsman was taking money from minor traffic violators, on the promise that he would pay their fines, and pocketing the money.

The announcement was provoked by the case of Israel German, 22 years old, of 225 West Monroe street, Kirkwood, who said he gave the bondsman $8 to pay a fine of $5 and costs for running past a boulevard stop. When he was summoned to court, German learned the fine had not been paid but when he explained the case to the Court, Judge Beck placed him on parole and intimated he might be called upon to repeat his story later.

LULL IN ERUPTION CAUSES TOURISTS' RUSH TO VESUVIUS

STREAM OF LAVA IN "VALLEY OF HELL"

Observatory Staff Descends to Edge of Crater; Residents of Nearby Towns Ready to Flee.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Italy, July 30.—The activity of Mount Vesuvius slackened somewhat today after the most violent eruption in 12 years.

The lull enabled hundreds of tourists, many of them from liners in the harbor of Naples, to visit points near the crater of the volcano. Tickets for every trip on the funicular railroad up the mountain during the day were sold out early this morning.

Prof. Alessandro Malladra, head of the observatory on Mount Vesuvius, expressed the belief today that the present phase of the eruption probably would cease within a few days. Prof. Malladra and his assistants today descended to the edge of the crater, although the rising flood of lava in the inner crater has burned away their ladders and destroyed valuable scientific instruments, including a pluvometer for recording rainfall.

Creeping Lava Stream.

Meanwhile a creeping stream of lava about 10 yards wide and moving at the rate of three yards a second continues to creap toward the lower levels of "the Valley of Hell" toward the Bay of Naples. The crater itself holds a writhing, boiling lake of lava.

Although Prof. Malladra declared that there was no imminent danger, the population of the towns of Torre Annunziata and Torre del Greco and residents of the region lying below the valley began to make preparations for a quick flight to Naples should the column of lava continue its downward course to their homes.

Explosions All Night.

The low point at which the lava is finding exit from the crater is covered already by the hardened flow of Nov. 3, 1926, but the extent and force of the present flow of flaming material has not been equaled since Jan. 2, 1916.

All night long there were violent explosions, accompanied by the hurling of burning fragments from the crater which continued at a rate of several every minute. A column of pink flame-flacked smoke, rising to a bank of ominous clouds, was outlined against the blackness of the sky. Thousands of people remained awake most of the night to watch the spectacle.

Hawaiian Volcano Subsiding.

By the Associated Press.

HILO, T. H., July 30.—The great volcano Kilauea, after several weeks of activity, is subsiding. Steam vents in the Halemaumau crater continue very active, however, and some glow is still visible at night.

They purchased the boat, which is propelled by a two-cylinder motor attached to the stern, at Rhinelander, Wis.

The annual convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association will open with a parade and mass meeting at 1 p. m. today and continue to Aug. 14. All sessions will be held at Liberty Hall, 260[illegible] Pine street.

The program comprises discussions of ways and means of bettering economic conditions in the community. A discussion of the Negro Bill of Rights will be held Thursday and on Friday there will be a discussion of the opinions of Marcus Garvey, Negro promoter of a "Back to Africa" movement, which collapsed three years ago with Garvey's conviction and imprisonment for fraudulent sale of stock. DECLINE IN GENERAL JUNE BUSINESS CITED

Federal Reserve Report Says Month Also Showed Increase in Unemployment.

A decline in general business transactions in this district was reported in the monthly review issued yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

"With but few exceptions," the Federal Reserve Bank says, "sales during June in all lines investigated were below those of the corresponding period last year, and in a number of instances totals were less than in May of this year."

Retail trade and sales in goods of ordinary consumption, such as groceries and dry goods, showed the largest decline. The decline was accompanied by an increase over the June record in industrial and clerical unemployment.

Although agriculture offered a better outlook than was seen earlier in the year because of the floods and late frost, there were definite indications of reduced yields of corn, wheat, fruits, vegetables and cotton. In some vicinities, corn was reported five weeks behind the usual seasonal schedule. Livestock in July showed improvement over the previous month, due to rains and good condition of pasture lands.

Continued hot weather and indifference of consumers toward their winter coal supply have been effective in concealing any evidence of a coal shortage in this vicinity this fall. The review states that in spite of the bituminous strike and a decrease in production as compared with last year, prices are still below 1926 levels. Soft coal production for the calendar year ending July 9 amounted to 285,179,000 net tons, as compared with 278,535,000 tons for the corresponding period in 1926. Few industries are replenishing their supplies at present.

Railway freight traffic showed some decline, but continued to be high. Freight loadings for the year ending July 2 totaled 26,347,988 cars, as against 26,074,792 cars for the corresponding period last year. Estimated tonnage for June of the Federal Barge Line, operating between St. Louis and New Orleans, was 93,600 tons, against 99,608 tons in May and 90,504 tons in June, 1926.

The report summarized the financial situation by saying that credit demands for commercial, industrial and agricultural enterprises combined, had shown a moderate expansion during the past 30 days.

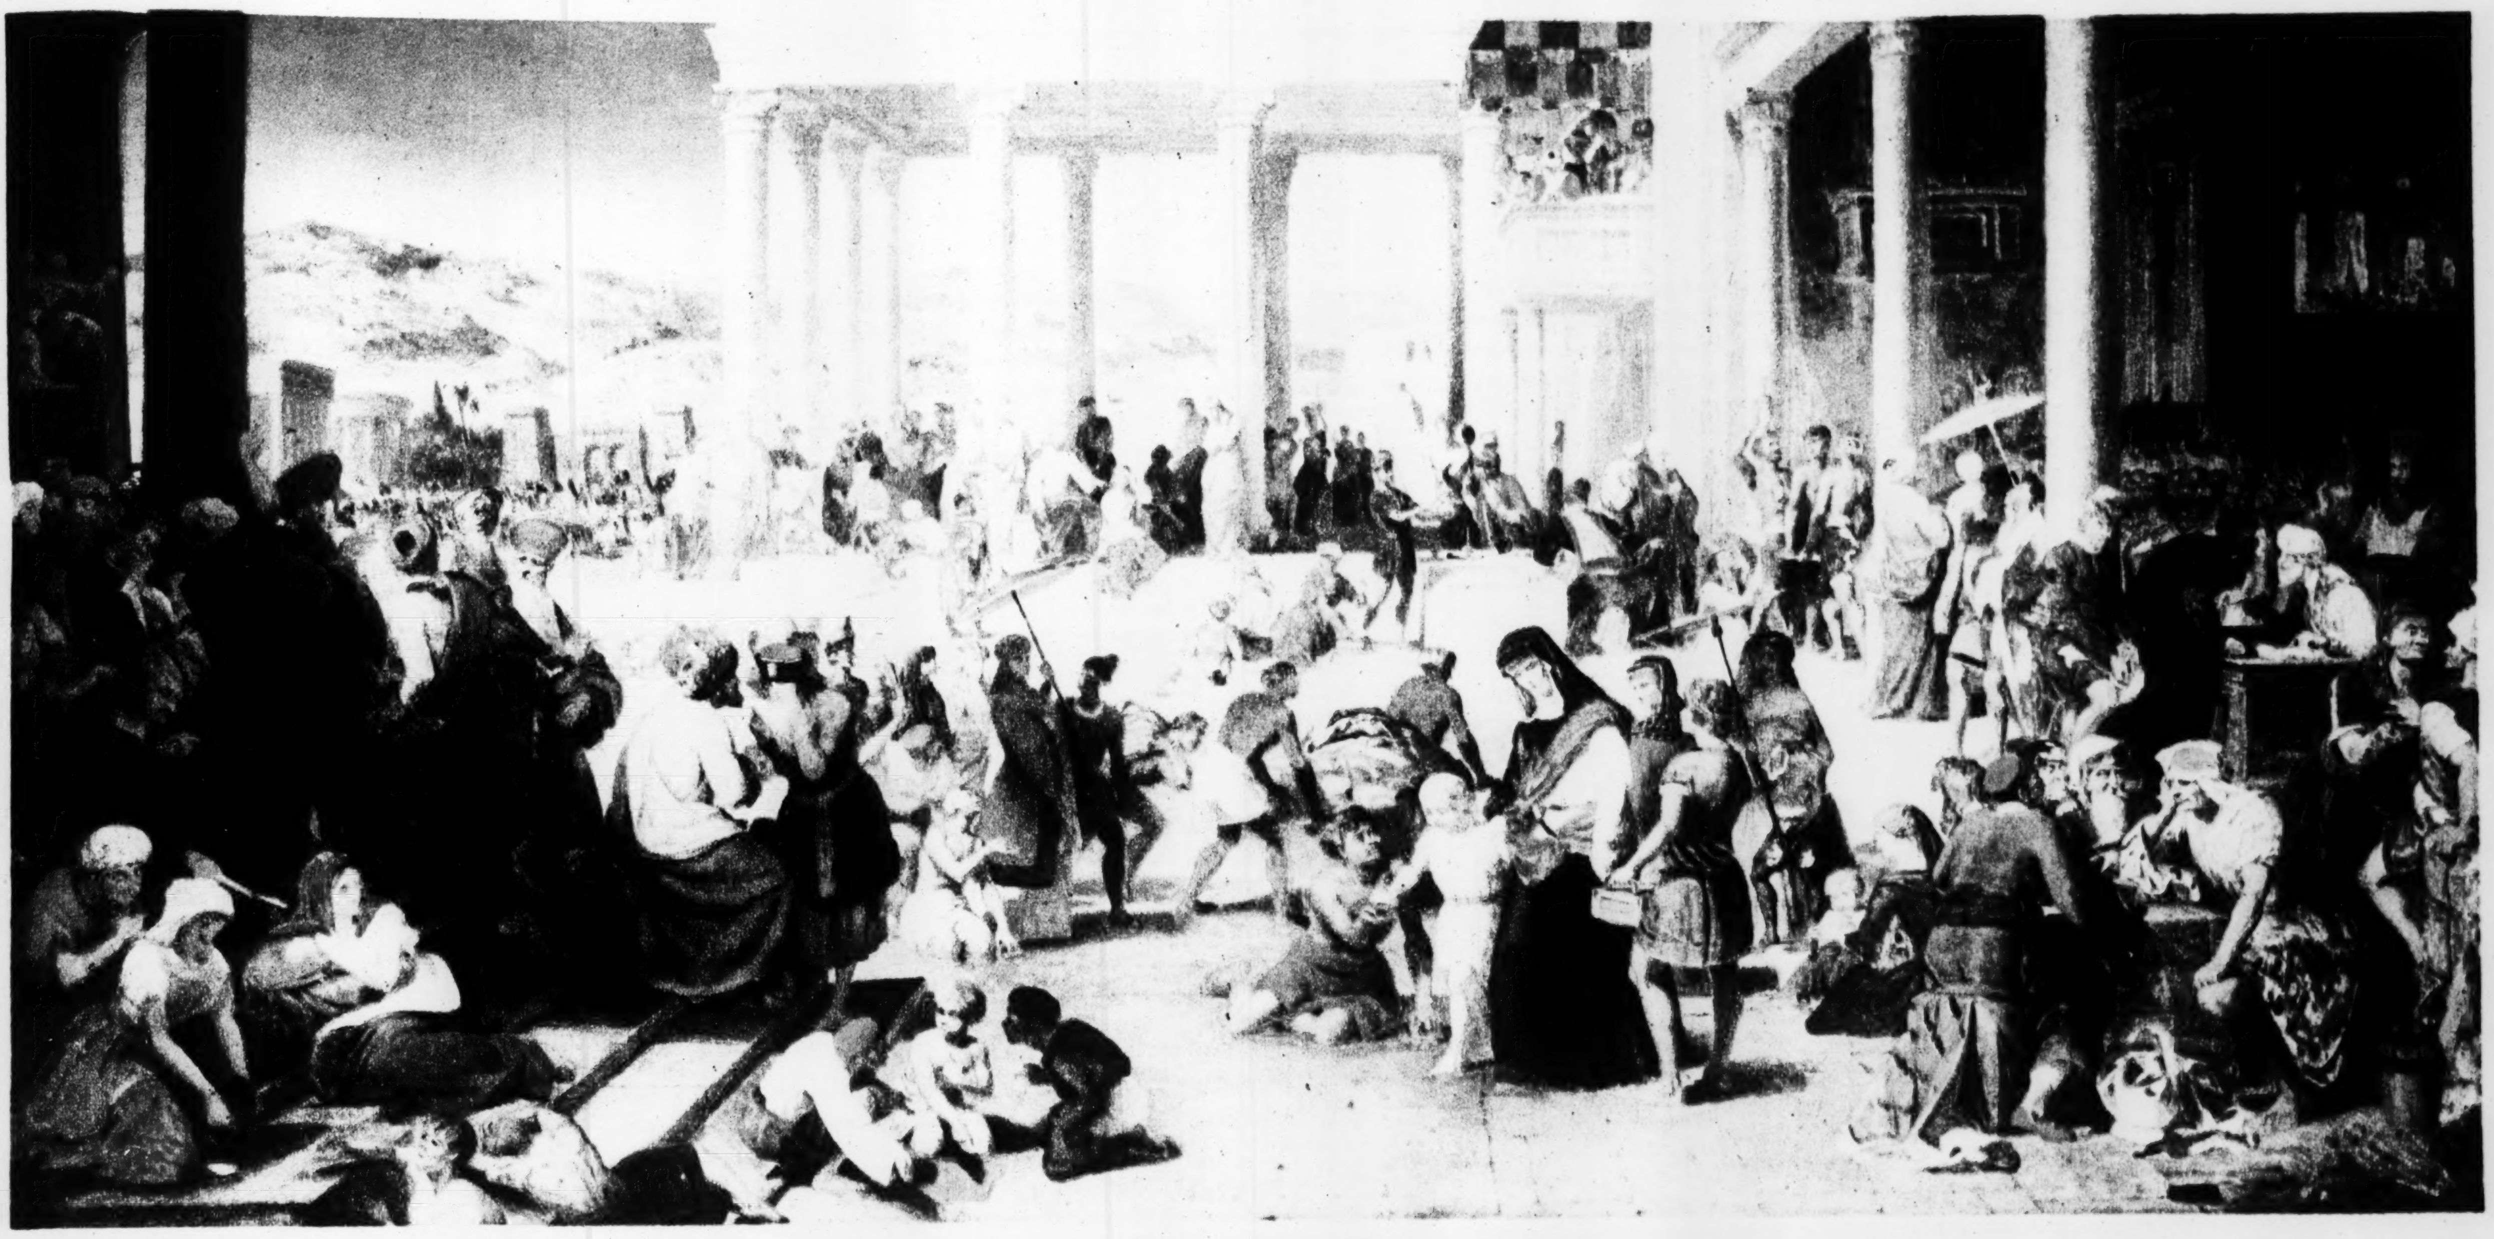
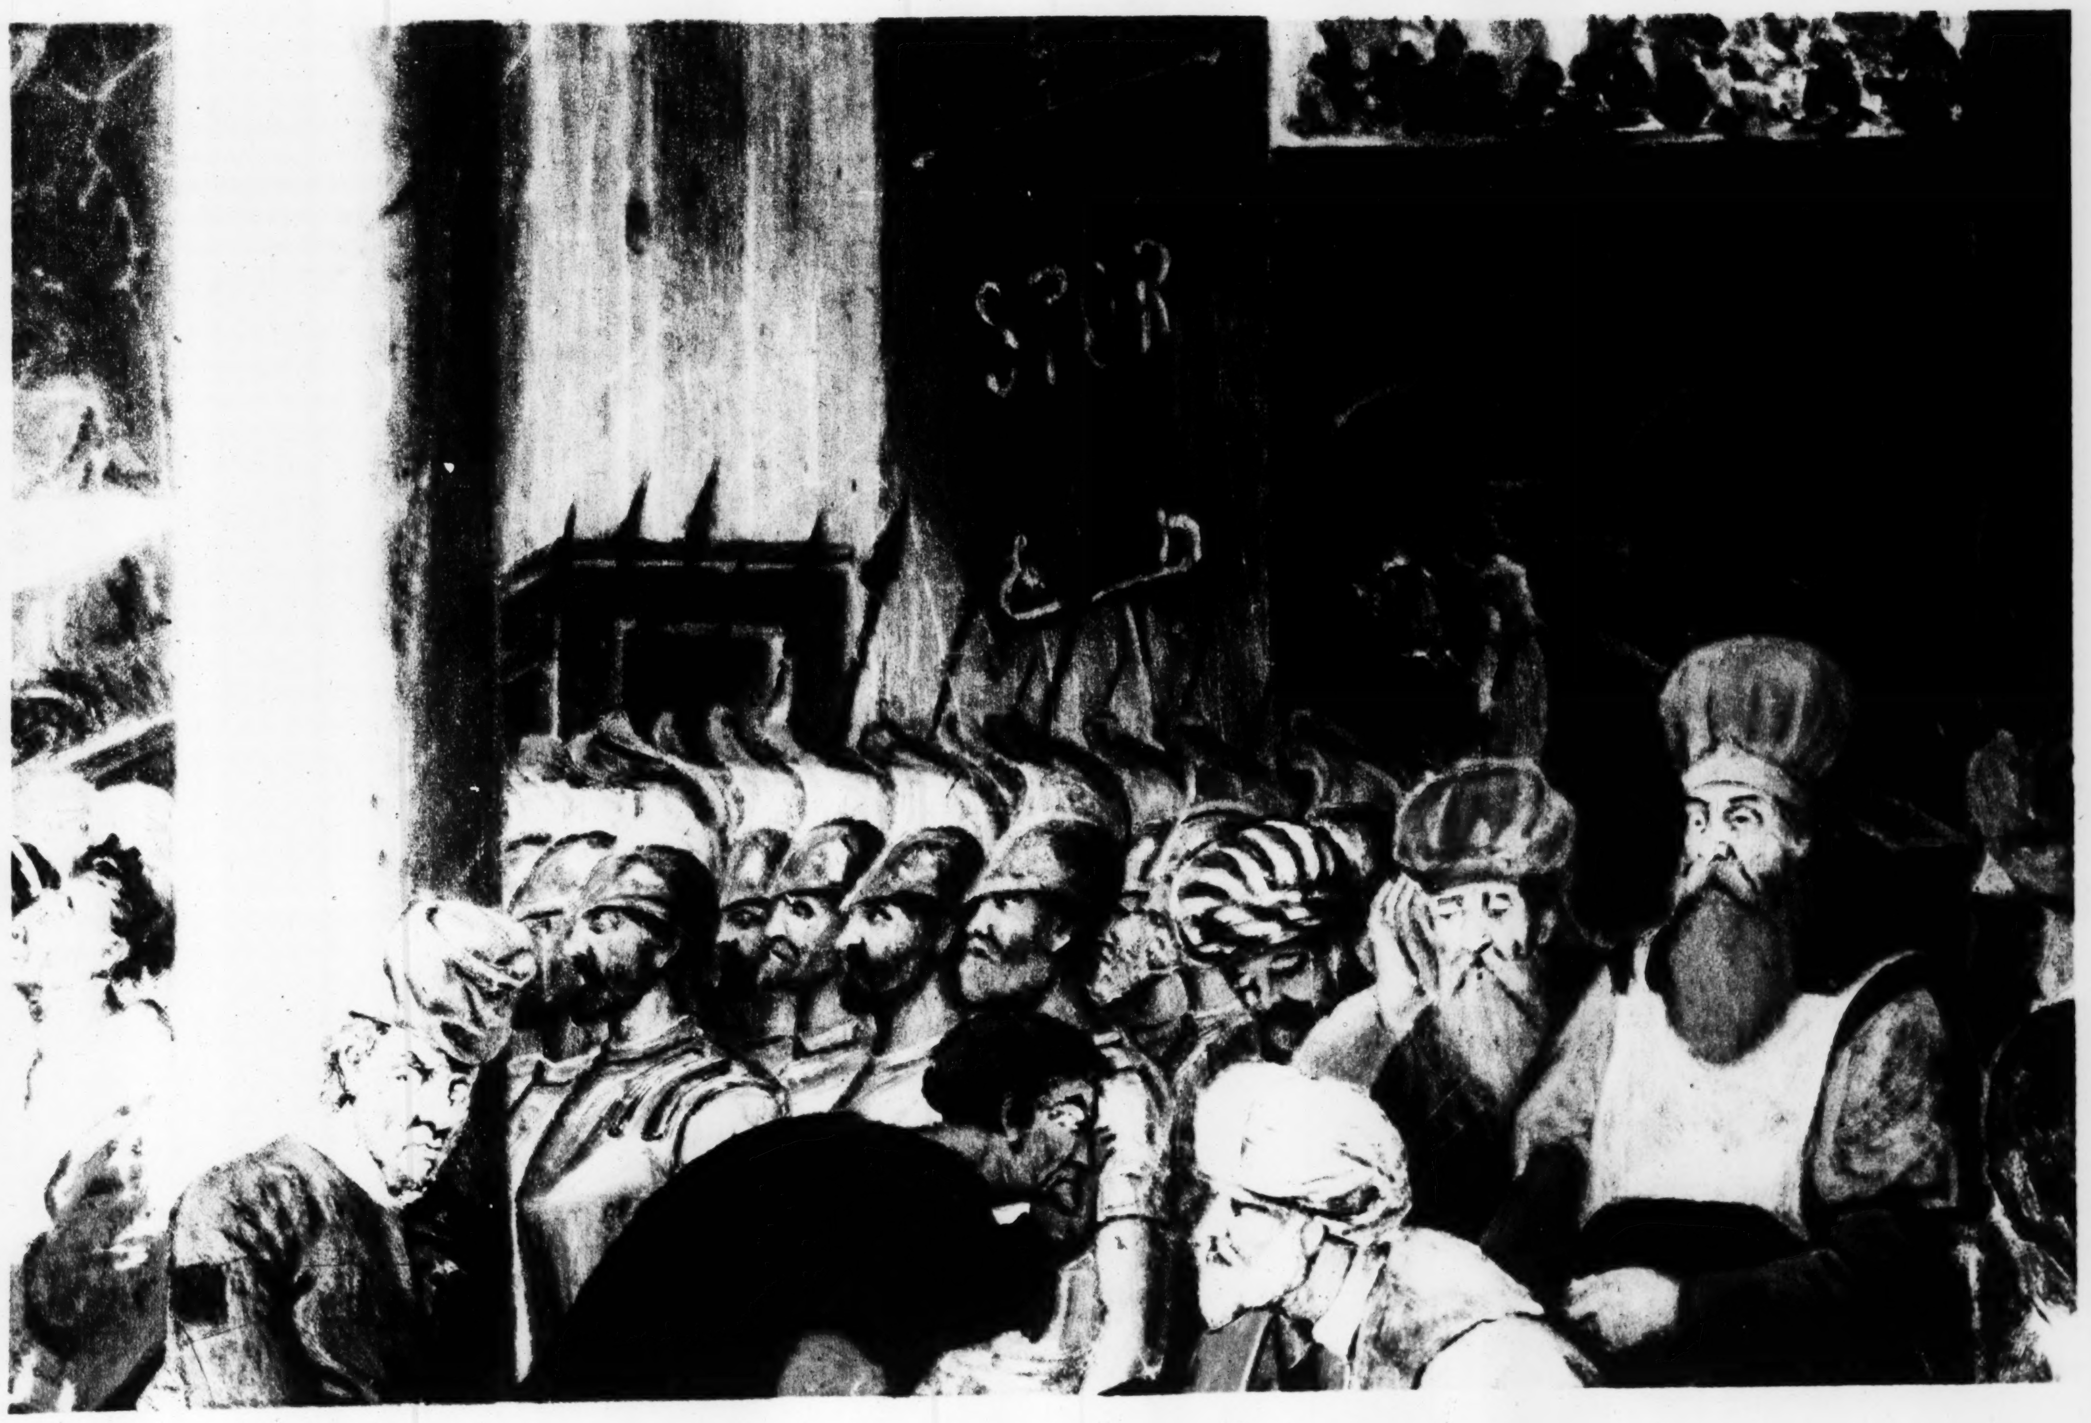
How a Lost Masterpiece Was Discovered in St. Louis





At top: "A Scene Before the Temple in Jerusalem," a masterpiece, according to Maurice Goldblatt, the international art expert, by Eugene Delacroix.

An International Art Expert Finds That a Painting Bought For $250 Is a Genuine Delacroix and Worth $50,000 or More.

By JULIUS KLEIMANN
of the Post-Dispatch Staff

GLANCING around his gallery not so long ago, Max Safron, St. Louis art dealer, decided that while his canvases were far from languishing for lack of company, he might just as well have some more of them. He accordingly wired to a friend and agent in New York informing this gentleman that if in any of the forthcoming New York art auctions he saw anything which pleased his fancy and which he believed Safron would like to add to his list, he—Safron—would consider it a great favor if he would purchase them.

In due time a telegram came to Safron bearing the information that Safron's agent-friend had bought some fourteen paintings, one of them a large one, and all of them calculated to please the aforementioned Safron's fancy. Safron then packed his grip and proceeded forthwith to New York.

The agent-friend exhibited thirteen smallish canvases for what he hoped would be his visitor's approval, and Safron nodded pleasantly. Whereupon, encouraged, but still timorous, the agent-friend led Safron toward another canvas and told him to look. Safron did. He was very well pleased. Before him he saw a large painting, some three feet high and some six feet long, upon which strolled, walked, sat, gamboled and gambled multitudes of men, women and children. It was a pretty masterly looking affair, thought Safron, a pretty good picture it seemed to him, one that he would like to have and one that undoubtedly was worth some modest sum to one or another of his clients.

It did not take these fellows long to arrange prices both deemed entirely fitting and proper for the thirteen smallish canvases. But about the fourteenth and its price there was considerable doubt. That painting, said the agent-friend, might be the work of the first-rate artist, Alexander Decamps. Several persons who knew quite a bit about such things had told him there was great likelihood of its being a Decamps, he said. It would not be straining things honorable to announce that the canvas was possibly the work of Decamps, he continued. And what would he take for it? Well, he didn't know. Would Safron give him a dollar for every person in the picture? Would that be all right?

Safron said he thought it would and the two art men began counting heads. When they had gotten past the first hundred and there seemed an amazing number of hundreds still uncounted, Safron begged that his agent-friend recapitulate. What, Safron wanted to know, did his friend think of fifty cents a head?

The agent-friend, being an honest fellow who wished to take no unfair advantage and who before he started counting possessed no idea whatsoever of just how many persons were portrayed upon the canvas, declared for fifty cents a head, and the counting was resumed.

On, on they counted. On and on and on. Eleven a. m. became 11:15, 11:15 turned to 11:30. Still they counted. 11:45. And they were not even near the half-way mark. Hundreds there were before them and hunger gnawed at their vitals. Still they counted. And then upon the air broke the peal of noon and with one accord both men straightened up, picked their hats off the rack and made for the nearest restaurant. The painting's population had proved too multitudinous for a census.

The first few minutes of the luncheon of these two excompilators were devoted entirely to eating. Then said Safron, balancing two pieces of French fried potatoes on his fork: "What will you take for it?"

The agent-friend paused as he cut into his beefsteak. "What," he enquired, "about $250?"

Safron drew his napkin across his lips. "Sold," he said.

Safron then returned to St. Louis and his St. Louis Art Galleries, the same holding forth at 4398 Olive street, and the big picture duly arrived there, too. Safron had several photographs made of it and on the back of them

Poster circulated through Germany, offering a reward for the capture of the De Autremonts.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A BALANCE sheet has been struck after four years and the cost of an embittered youth's protest against a world which he had come to hate has been reckoned thus:

The lives of four men.

A sum estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000, spent by the Government in tracking down the perpetrators of the crime.

The time, in whole or in part, of innumerable Government agents employed on the case.

And the young man, Ray Charles De Autremont, now 27, must spend the remainder of his life in prison. So must his twin brother, Roy, and a younger brother, Hugh, now 23.

Ray De Autremont was convicted of criminal syndicalism in connection with I. W. W. activities during the World War and served a year in the State Reformatory in Monroe, Washington. He was not reformed. Rather, his mind was further inflamed against the society that had imprisoned him.

He read the philosophical writings of Nietzsche and the doctrinaire dogmas of Karl Marx. They were like strong drink to his youthful mind. They confirmed his partially formed beliefs. Once out of prison, he was not long in imparting his new beliefs, his theory of the will to power in a capitalist state, to his two brothers.

This is how the De Autremont case began:

ON OCTOBER 11, 1923, southbound Southern Pacific train No. 13 was held up in the tunnel in the mountains just beyond Siskiyou, Oregon. As the train slowed up when the air brakes were tested just outside the portal, two youths swung onto the tender of the engine. Covering the engineer, Sid Bates, with their revolvers, they commanded him to stop the train just as the engine reached the exit of the 3300-foot tunnel. The engineer obeyed. When the train stopped, another youth was waiting, with explosives and a dynamiting magneto. Then the engineer and his young fireman, Marvin Seng, were shot through the head. C. O. Johnson, the brakeman, rushed forward to see why the train had stopped, and a bullet brought instant death to him, as it had to his mates.

Immediately a hundred sticks of dynamite were set off at the end of the mail car. The terrific explosion threatened the tunnel, and with it the lives of all the passengers on the train. The end of the mail car was blown out, and the car, filled with gases, caught fire. There another life was spent in this futile attempt at mail robbery. Railway Postal Clerk E. E. Dougherty was burned to death.

The three young bandits, unsuccessful in what was probably their first attempt at robbery, fled into the mountains, leaving behind them, however, enough of their belongings to convince postal inspectors that they were Roy A. A. De Autremont, his twin brother, Ray Charles, and their handsome younger brother, Hugh. Ray and Roy were 23 and Hugh was 19 at the time. Only Ray had a criminal record.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL HARRY S. NEW saw a photograph of the dead train crew as their bodies lay near the tracks, brought to Washington by Charles Ruddiford, postal inspector at Spokane.

"The scoundrels who murdered those men must be caught. You've got to get them, Ruddiford," the Postmaster-General said.

Ruddiford set out to get them. The other day he came to Washington and filed his final report closing the case. But between that day late in 1923 and July 5, 1927, when he completed his report, he had directed a search that had extended all over the world.

Every postoffice, every police station, every railroad station in the United States had displayed pictures and complete descriptions ranging from teeth fillings and favorite songs to the political beliefs and social habits of the boys.

Circulars describing the boys and offering $15,900 in gold as a reward for their capture had been printed in seven languages and distributed all over the literate world.

Every dentist in the United States had been given a detailed description of the dental work in the mouth of each of the De Autremont brothers, and had been asked if he had worked on such teeth recently.

Every jeweler and pawnbroker in the country had been supplied with complete descriptions of the watches Roy and Ray were thought to have carried at the time, and had been asked if they had repaired, bought or loaned money on such watches.

Every optician and optometrist in the country had been given the prescriptions for Roy's and Ray's glasses, and had been asked to watch for any men who might have new glasses made according to those prescriptions.

Librarians had been told to watch out for young men borrowing books on sociology and poetry—particularly Robert Service's poems—and had been asked to search their records for handwriting that might be the handwriting of Ray, Roy or Hugh De Autremont, who were in the habit of frequenting public libraries.

Barbers had been instructed to watch out for the boys, the Postoffice Department feeling sure that they would sooner or later seek employment as barbers.

Logging camps were specially notified as to their habits, for the boys had frequently worked as loggers.

Industrial establishments had been placarded, and employers had been requested to keep the circulars in case one or more of the boys should apply for employment in the future.

Descriptions of the criminals and their crime had been broadcast by radio from time to time.

Maritime officials had been asked to look for them on all incoming and outgoing vessels.

Numerous trips had been made to Canada, Alaska, Mexico and nearly all the Central American countries following up clews which came to Inspector Ruddiford's desk in Spokane.

Every postal inspector in the United States—some 500 in all—had been on the lookout for the three, and nearly every one of them had been called upon by Inspector Ruddiford at one time or another in the three and a half years to follow up a tip that the men were in his vicinity.

And when the twins were finally captured on June 9, a postal inspector was in Europe following clews, and transportation had been bought for one man to go to South Africa, one to Australia, New Zealand and the isles of the Pacific, and one to South America to track down reports that the boys had been seen in those parts.

"There never was a day in those three and a half years," Inspector Ruddiford declared, "that I did not have on my desk a half-dozen reports alleging that the De Autremonts were in one place or another."

And there was never a tip or a clew, however remote, that was not followed up.

AT LAST the far-flung net of suspicion caught the boys—young Hugh in the Philippines last February, where he was serving in the United States Army under an assumed name, the twins at Steubenville, Ohio, in June, working in a steel mill.

In both cases, their actions and appearance aroused suspicion in the minds of their companions, who had noted, perhaps subconsciously, the countless newspaper stories about the boys, and some of the 3,000,000 posters pleading with law-abiding citizens to "help the Government catch the vicious criminals who committed this terrible crime."

The first circulars which plastered the country carried photographs of the boys taken from high school annuals, showing clean-cut, good-looking boys. These circulars brought no results. Later the Postoffice Department found pictures of the three in overalls, with unkempt hair. It was these which got them, not the dressed-up pictures. One of the circulars carried a composite picture of Ray, made of a rogues' gallery picture, which showed him with a shaven head, and another picture which showed him with hair falling slightly over the brow. The two pictures had been combined to show how he probably looked at work outside prison.

Hundreds of thousands had been told that "Roy is boastful, egotistical and talkative, while Ray is quiet and unassuming," and that both had a way with women; that Hugh and Roy liked to argue, particularly about the Bible; and that Hugh was fond of sports, especially boxing and running. Hugh was a leader, the circulars said, and he liked to travel, and boasted that he intended to devise some way to extract a living from the world without working for it.

DESPITE the ceaseless watchfulness the boys exerted in those long years to evade the pursuer they suspected in every person they met, Roy had not lost his talkativeness. When he finally confessed, he kept two stenographers busy from 7 o'clock one morning until 6 o'clock the next morning taking down the history of his life, from his earliest memories until his capture in Ohio.

In those 11 hours Ray and Roy De Autremont told the story which convinced Inspector Ruddiford that theirs was a crime of retaliation, a crime planned to avenge themselves against things as they are. All during the search the postal authorities believed that Hugh, the leader, was the brains of the gang, that it was he who conceived the crime and planned it. But now Inspector Ruddiford believes that Ray, embittered by his year of imprisonment during which he read philosophies and sciences which his inadequately trained mind was incapable of assimilating properly, persuaded his brothers to join him in a violent protest against the established order.

During these years, Hugh amused himself by using various impudent aliases, such as Hugh DeKay, Hugh DeLerious and Hugh DeCoy. He also traveled under the name of E. E. James. His brothers used less picturesque aliases, such as Harris, Burton, Elliott and Joseph.

FOLLOWING the capture of Hugh, renewed efforts were made to find his brothers. Seventy-five thousand circulars were sent out all over the world, announcing that Hugh had been caught, but that his brothers were still at large, and that $10,600 in gold awaited anyone who found them. Huge piles of such circulars were ready for mailing out from the Postoffice Department in Washington when the twins were finally caught.

After a mistrial, Hugh's case was set again for June 9. On that day, Ray and Roy were found in Steubenville. An unnamed person furnished postal inspectors with the information leading to their detention, and the Postoffice Department set the Department of Justice on the trail to make the arrests. Exactly a fortnight later Hugh was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in the Oregon State Penitentiary. That night, on the promise of life imprisonment instead of death, Ray and Roy confessed, and Hugh was brought in to help tell the story of their crime and their three years of hiding. The twins were sentenced likewise to spend the rest of their lives in the Oregon Penitentiary.

Just before the twins were removed to Oregon for trial Ray submitted to an interview with Postoffice Inspector C. W. B. Long. During this interview Ray told how he had worked for an automobile concern in Detroit for three months. The twins then went to Hanging Rock, Ohio.

While in Hanging Rock, Ray married Hazel Sprouse, just for the protection a connection with a known family would afford him and his brother. The community had begun wondering about those two boys who were living alone. Ray frankly said he intended to drop Hazel when the occasion arose.

It soon did. After the posting of the new circular following the capture of Hugh, the two brothers heard talk in Hanging Rock about their resembling the De Autremont brothers. They had aroused suspicion, in spite of the fact that Ray kept his hair and eyebrows light by the use of peroxide, and shaved daily deep into the skin to prevent his whiskers from showing a different color from his hair and eyebrows. From Hanging Rock the twin brothers went to Steubenville, where the net finally closed in upon them.

Of the $15,900 to be paid in rewards for these men, the Southern Pacific Railroad pays $2500 for each of them; the American Railway Express Company, $300 each; the Governor of the State of Oregon, $500 each, and the United States Government, $2000 each.

That is the Government's standing offer for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person robbing the mails and killing postal employes—just a part of its method of never stopping until it gets its man, regardless of the cost, a cost which mounted far into the hundreds of thousands of dollars in this case.

"THE SECRET of my success," says Barry Carman, male butterfly of Broadway, trying to look as if he were being interviewed, "is—er, well, NOT hard work and application to duty, if you know what I mean."

Out in Kansas and Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and the rest of the forthright Middle West, men work for a living.

But on that famous zig-zagging New York street of many kilowatts, referred to by all popular novelists as the antithesis of Main Street, there are masculine lilies, who toil not, neither do they punch a time clock, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as one of these.

Of such is Barry Carman, whose real name is Frank B. Carman, international playboy, who has just reached the end of one of the most exciting chapters in his climactic life, bearing in one hand a check of five figures, signed by his recent and elderly bride, and in the other notice of a decree of divorce won by that same lady, the former Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf, wife of a Buffalo multimillionaire, in a three-minute session before a Chicago Judge last week.

"Such," blithely meditates Barry Carman, seeking a bank, "is life." And he starts out to find new dance floors to conquer.

Deep carmine mystery, intrigue, stolen jewels and ladies in distress, to the obligato accompaniment of excellent jazz, have splashed the pattern of his recent adventures, which, woven together, would form a thriller that might be entitled "Romance, Inc."

For Carman, smooth of face, smooth of hair, smooth of attire, and even smoother of speech, has merely taken cognizance of an old truth as a basis for his amazing career.

"The woman always pays," mused Barry, some years ago—"well, why not?"

Former Mrs. Schoellkopf Divorces HER BROADWAY BUTTERFLY

Barry Carman.

Mrs. Schoellkopf-Carman.

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK.

"THE SECRET of my success," says Barry Carman, male butterfly of Broadway, trying to look as if he were being interviewed, "is—er, well, NOT hard work and application to duty, if you know what I mean."

Out in Kansas and Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and the rest of the forthright Middle West, men work for a living.

But on that famous zig-zagging New York street of many kilowatts, referred to by all popular novelists as the antithesis of Main Street, there are masculine lilies, who toil not, neither do they punch a time clock, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as one of these.

Of such is Barry Carman, whose real name is Frank B. Carman, international playboy, who has just reached the end of one of the most exciting chapters in his climactic life, bearing in one hand a check of five figures, signed by his recent and elderly bride, and in the other notice of a decree of divorce won by that same lady, the former Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf, wife of a Buffalo multimillionaire, in a three-minute session before a Chicago Judge last week.

"Such," blithely meditates Barry Carman, seeking a bank, "is life." And he starts out to find new dance floors to conquer.

Deep carmine mystery, intrigue, stolen jewels and ladies in distress, to the obligato accompaniment of excellent jazz, have splashed the pattern of his recent adventures, which, woven together, would form a thriller that might be entitled "Romance, Inc."

For Carman, smooth of face, smooth of hair, smooth of attire, and even smoother of speech, has merely taken cognizance of an old truth as a basis for his amazing career.

"The woman always pays," mused Barry, some years ago—"well, why not?"

AND, so saying, he set out to prove to a startled world that there is basis for at least one ancient epigram. Women pay, literally and collaterally, women pay willingly and even eagerly—for romance.

They always pay, discovered Barry Carman, especially if they are approaching middle age, and are bored with things in general and their wealthy but prosaic husbands in particular.

And so a blond young man with a pleasant face and accomplished feet became a broker in a new commodity, and sold frivolity at a high price.

One of his best customers was Mrs. C. P. H. Schoellkopf, whose husband, in amassing his twenty millions, had acquired a lethargic outlook on the joys of the dance floor.

Their meeting occurred most romantically some four years ago when Mrs. Schoellkopf, gem-laden, expensively dressed and looking about for some means of relieving the monotony of life, attended a tea dance in a New York hotel with two women friends.

Sedately the three sat at a secluded table and sipped their tea. Tantalizingly the syncopated strains of music drifted through the room.

"Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. Schoellkopf—"why isn't there someone to dance with?"

"There usually is," remarked one of her companions, and launched inquiries, with the result that a suave young man with a nice smile and London shoulders was presently introduced, and Mrs. Schoellkopf was provided with a dancing partner in the person of Barry Carman.

THROUGH number after number and encore after encore they glided, the expert frivolity broker guiding his partner adroitly through the throng, relaying small talk of the theater and of the four hundred, displaying each of his graceful charms in turn.

When the last dance was over the millionaire matron was charmed. She felt young and frivolous again, and positively gay. So, without much difficulty, she arranged that Barry Carman should again be in dancing attendance upon her on the morrow.

A number of appointments followed, and so delighted was Mrs. Schoellkopf that she took her prize all the way to Buffalo, that she might display him to her husband, who was equally charmed with Barry's educated feet.

Perhaps the weary man of affairs saw in the sleek young dancing man a solution to all his domestic trials. If his wife wanted to dance, let her dance. At least he would be left in peace now. Since she wanted a playboy, he would buy one for her, just as he bought her bracelets and diamond earrings. And so it was settled.

For a stated price, Barry Carman was to be in attendance upon Mrs. Schoellkopf whenever and wherever her fancy dictated. In the future he would escort her to the theater or the night club or the ball, while Mr. Schoellkopf, with a large sigh of relief, was left free to seek house slippers and easy chair, unharried by pangs of conscience for neglect of his gayety-loving wife. It was all quite delightful.

A late portrait of Carman.

Then came the catastrophe which precipitated the playboy and his wealthy patroness onto the front pages of the nation's newspapers.

There was a party at Carman's apartment, and Mrs. Schoellkopf was there. It was New Year's eve, 1923, and laughter flowed as freely as champagne. Then the Buffalo matron suddenly tired of it all, and announced her intention of retreating to her car below, where she would wait for the others.

As she descended the stairs, according to her story told later to police, a man confronted her and queried:

"Going home?"

"Yes."

"Come in for a minute; the others will come along," said the man, and gently pushed her into a third-floor apartment rented by Carman to a trio named McGowan, Lewis and Marshall. Quietly and courteously, then, according to Mrs. Schoellkopf, the three, all in evening clothes, proceeded to drug her and strip her of the $520,000 worth of jewels which she was wearing and disappeared.

When the robbery was reported, Barry Carman, despite Mrs. Schoellkopf's pleas, was immediately placed in jail without bail, charged with conspiracy in the theft.

It was an inside job, authorities insisted—otherwise, how could anyone have known that Mrs. Schoellkopf would be in that particular spot at that particular time, wearing that particular number of jewels?

The spotlight of publicity was turned full upon the horrified but perfectly poised Carmen.

"How do you make a living?" thundered his official questioners.

"What do you do?"

"Where do you do it?"

To all this Barry Carman simply smiled calmly and replied:

"Oh, I have a patron."

HE ADDED that he had more than one patron, and that C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf wasn't the only one who had recognized the commercial value of his charm.

There was J. Brown Pierce, for instance, a New York millionaire. Before he met Mrs. Schoellkopf, Carman was retained, he told his inquirers, by Pierce, who paid all his living and traveling expenses and gave him an allowance of $250 a month besides.

Up and down the American and European resorts Carman had flitted with his rich and elderly patron—from Narragansett Pier to the Riviera and from Tyrol to Biarritz, paid just for being charming and frivolous.

The young charm dispenser voiced his sympathy for Mrs. Schoellkopf over the loss of her jewels, and insisted with gentlemanly fervor that he knew nothing of the whole thing.

Through it all Mrs. Schoellkopf protested that she was sure of his innocence.

"I don't care what you say or what you or anyone else thinks," said she to the detectives—"Barry Carman had no more to do with this robbery than I did. He is innocent and I command that he be released. It is wrong to bring these charges against him."

As to the husband in the case, he stood squarely with his wife and her paid escort.

And so the upshot of it all was that Carman was released, the three jewel thieves were found to be internationally known criminals and then when the plot was growing hourly thicker, the jewels were mysteriously returned.

All was well again with the smooth-haired young man upon whom Fortune had smiled so lavishly and so often. His position as professional escort to Mrs. Schoellkopf continued, and a few months later the two of them sailed on the same boat for Paris:

"She's going to adopt him!" whispered some of the cattier of Mrs. Schoellkopf's friends.

"She is going to marry him," said some of the cannier.

AND AT about this time the word was made public that the Buffalo matron had secured a divorce and $500 a month alimony from her generous but unfrivolous husband.

"They'll make a honeymoon of it now," said all the friends together.

But they didn't.

When the middle-aged divorcee and her attentive young swain arrived again in New York, things seemed to be on exactly the same basis as before.

They were seen everywhere together—at the races, at the seashore, at the theater. The orchid-tinted Schoellkopf Rolls-Royce, with its inseparable two passengers, became a familiar spectacle on Fifth avenue and Broadway, and less fortunate but quite as aspiring youths sighed:

"How does he do it!"

Extravagant gifts were lavished on Carman by his patroness, a roadster of swanky lines being one of her earlier presents.

"Love her?" said Carman the other day—"Oh, well, I was very fond of her, if that's what you mean. But it was mostly sympathy on my part, you know."

Thus matters continued, and it was not until five months ago, on February 8, 1927, that the strangely matched couple were finally married, with the utmost secrecy, in Honolulu.

According to Barry, the marriage idea was all Mrs. Schoellkopf's.

"Last summer, you see," he explained, "I was helping decorate her new home at Great Neck, and staying there. One day I was down on the beach and heard a remark I didn't like about my living up there, so I left.

"Then she kept begging me to come back, and I refused. So she suggested that we be married, and put a stop to all the talk, and so that's the way it was."

At the time of the marriage a legal document was drawn up, in which Mrs. Schoellkopf agreed to pay her husband-elect a large cash sum, said to have been $50,000. Then they took the boat to Honolulu and sought a tropical minister, returning to live happily for a very short while after at the Long Island home.

THEN came the rift—such a tiny thing it was to cause a breakup in such an ideal arrangement. The house in which Mr. and Mrs. Carman were living on Long Island had been bought by the matron some two years ago through one Albert Victorson, her niece's fiance, to whom she intrusted $45,000 for the purchase.

It was discovered only a few weeks ago by Mrs. Schoellkopf-Carman that she did not have the deed to the property, and that she could not sell it because it had, without her knowledge, been mortgaged for $47,500.

She immediately preferred charges of swindling against Victorson and, according to Barry, proceeded to visit all her wrath upon her new husband.

The suit was finally dismissed a few weeks ago, but in the meantime the Schoellkopf-Carman marital tie had become very strained.

"She kept blaming it on me," said Carman aggrievedly, "and I didn't have anything to do with it, or with Victorson. But then you know how women are. Finally it got so bad that I just left, and here I am.

"When she started fussing at me I told her all right, I'd just get out; and all I would ask was a settlement of the property agreement she made when we were married. How much? Oh, I really can't say, but it's not any too much.

"Mrs. Carman owes me a lot anyway. You see, all the publicity and everything following that jewel robbery almost ruined my career as a social entertainer. So it's only fair."

The charges made by Mrs. Carman in her complaint were two instances of cruelty when her husband is said to have struck her in an argument over money.

"But she does change her mind so often," remarked the frivolity salesman—"we might be married again in a couple of months."

To which Mrs. Schoellkopf, who was allowed to resume her first husband's name, replied:

"You may be sure I won't do any such thing. No more marrying for me."

Built His Own Eden—In Kansas

S. P. Dinsmoor of Lucas Has Completed With His Own Hands a Labor of Thirty Years, Following as Closely as Possible the Biblical Descriptions.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LUCAS, Kansas. S. P. DINSMOOR has, so to speak, "rebuilt the Garden of Eden." He has just completed it. The task required 30 years to finish. It took 2273 sacks of cement, or, translated, 113 tons of that material. It took thousands of dollars. It took him till the age of 84. But "rebuilt" it—so to speak—he has. And he did it all with cement and his own hands.

Adam and Eve, of course, are in this new Eden at the town of Lucas. So are Cain, Abel, Gabriel, the serpent. And the Devil, too. He has done a good job, this self-schooled sculptor in cement; his figures, the general opinion goes, are well modeled. In fact, it is said that one visitor, upon looking at the Devil, remarked: "It looks like hell to me." This was not destructive criticism. Neither was it constructive criticism. It was pure appreciation of the generally accepted likeness of the Prince of Darkness.

Dinsmoor is a veteran of the Civil War. Late in the middle span of his life, after he had retired from farming, he decided that he would reconstruct the Biblical beginning of the race of man. So at his home, this little village of 200 persons, he began his work. Lucas is far out on the plains of Western Kansas, territory spoken of only a few years ago in the geographies—and spoken of vaguely at that—as the "Great American Desert." But here was where Mr. Dinsmoor chose to do his work. And do it he did, and as far as he is able to ascertain his Garden is the only attempt in the entire world to put into actual expression some idea of just how the Garden of Adam and Eve appeared to—if you know what we mean—the naked eye.

TO THE Garden. The figures in the Garden are all life-size. The account of Moses has been followed in the reproduction. Except—Dinsmoor has put in a few things the great prophet omitted. He has given wives to Cain and Abel. He has two serpents instead of one. And he has storks about—storks who fulfill their time-honored tradition.

Then there are animals. There are the figures of the serpent, the fox, the wolf, badger, bear. And birds—eagles, owls, pigeons, other birds, roosting high above. And among such additions to Moses' story as Dinsmoor has seen fit to add is a story in concrete which he calls the eternal struggle for existence, the story of one thing preying on another. It begins with a little worm in the act of eating a leaf. A hungry bird is about to devour the worm. A fox is ready to leap upon the bird and provide itself a breakfast. A wolf stalks the fox, and an Indian, his bow and arrow ready for business, stands behind the wolf. Then, standing in the background, is a soldier, his gun ready to shoot down the Indian. And there is a girl after the soldier.

All this sculpturing work was done by Dinsmoor. Although he had slight training for the work, his figures are formed excellently. If there are any mistakes in the modeling, he stands ready to accept all blame. On Judgment Day, he says, he will tell the Creator of All Things that he is willing to take the entire responsibility for any errors or mistakes in his Garden of Eden. He does not, however, accept blame for mistakes made by Moses in reporting the details of the original Garden.

Not all the objects in the new Eden are of cement. For there is a terraced flower garden, patterned something after the hanging gardens of Babylon. The flowers grow in rows, layer above layer. There are also grapes. And strawberries. And there are trees. But they are of cement, and there are 29 of them, some of them 40 feet high. Biblical figures are perched among the branches. The tree of life has not been neglected; it is there, too. The angel guards the apples, so no more of them will be taken. The Devil is poised nearby, where he also can keep an eye on those apples. The fellow has a three-pronged fork in one hand, and he points his fork towards a little child. That is the way it is with Satan, says Dinsmoor. He is always after the little children.

IN THE grape arbor of this strange, strange garden you find the serpents. One is handing Eve an apple. The other snake has no apple, and Adam is depicted smashing its head with his heel for its failure to tempt him. That is an indication of the disposition of man, says Dinsmoor. He got his idea for this picturization from the Biblical statement that "The heel of the seed of woman shall smash the serpent's head."

In one of the concrete trees we were speaking of, two little girls are seen. "Moses never said a word about these girls," says the founder of the new Eden, "but he did tell about the boys up there making their offering. You know and I know and everybody knows that the girls are always hangin' around the boys, so I put them up, one in a swing and the other catching a bird."

Then, speaking of his own additions and interpretations, he asked:

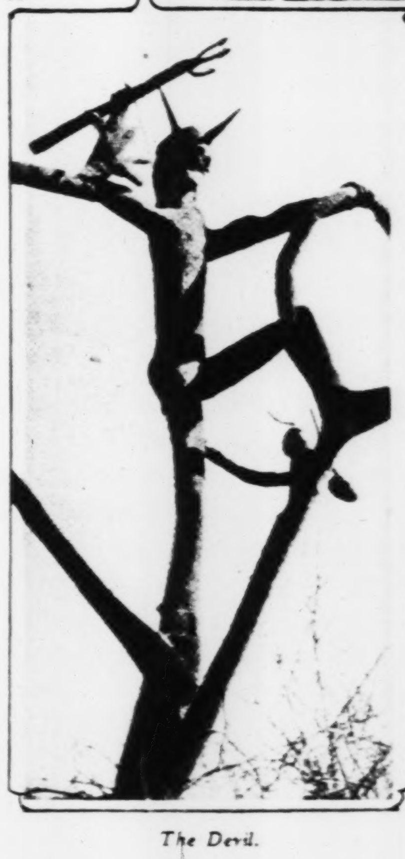
"DO YOU know what the mark of Satan was? The Bible doesn't tell. Preachers don't tell. Well, a kid playing will always try to do things right. You see kids making a mud pie. They will try to get the lid on right. When I was mixing and putting up Cain here, I wanted the mark of Cain. I happened to look down in the Garden of Eden and think, 'There was the fall of man!' The redemption of man is the crucifixion, so I imagined the mark of Cain must be a little red cross placed on his forehead, typical of the crucifixion that was to come. Now I don't know whether that is right or not, but it connected things up in dandy shape."

It is at night in particular that the Garden becomes a beauty spot. Electrical effects have been brought in to show the new Eden to its best advantage. And the Devil is lighted with red and green lights. Anybody who sees the fellow under these conditions is certain to gain a most unfavorable impression of him.

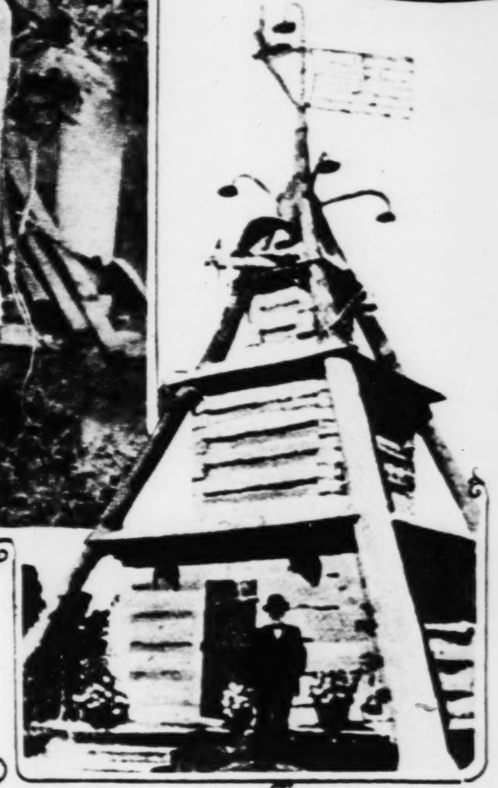
Dinsmoor's first wife died several years ago. He decided that man should not live without a helpmate. Unlike Adam, he was unable to spare a rib for the creation of a woman, but he didn't go outside of the Garden to find a wife. He married the girl who had been serving him as a housekeeper.

He was 81 years old at the time and she was only 20. In speaking of his marriage, he said: "An old man needs a nurse, a young man wants a companion. I got both."

Two years ago a little daughter, Emily Jane, was born to them. She holds the distinction of being the first little girl ever to be reared in the new Eden, or in surroundings made to typify the Garden of Eden. As Dinsmoor has a nephew not yet 17, who is a father, Dinsmoor believes that Lucas has the youngest and the oldest fathers living in any one town in the country.



The Devil.



Dinsmoor's self-built mausoleum with cement flag on top which revolves in the wind.

Mrs. Dinsmoor has family duties, but she has others, too. It is her task daily to show visitors around the new Garden of Eden. And thousands have visited the place.

Mrs. Dinsmoor, whose name is not Eve but Emily, is quite proud of her privilege of living where she does. She says she wouldn't exchange her lot with anyone. While her husband — he contends he is no older than she. Sixty-one years' difference in age seems to make no difference to them.

The Dinsmoors, of course, live right in their own Garden. No wood has been used in the construction of their home. Their cabin was erected with great rocks, quarried from hills in the surrounding country. Some of these rocks weighed tons. The largest weighed forty-two thousand pounds.

In building his cabin, Dinsmoor put knots on the cement logs. "I thought," he said, "when I was putting the knots on, if I was a girl on a porch and my fellow was down below, if he could not climb that post, with all those knots, I'd fire him and get one that could."

Dinsmoor is in splendid health and he's never known sickness. He expects to live at least to the century mark. But, nevertheless, he has built his own coffin and his mausoleum. In the building of the mausoleum, Dinsmoor has used some original ideas.

HE HAS placed the body of his first wife on one side of the tomb. His own coffin is to be placed on the opposite side. This coffin has a glass top. In his will he has provided that after his death he shall be buried under the glass top. This is so everyone may see him.

"It seems to me," he says, "that people buried in iron and wooden boxes will be frying and burning up on the resurrection morn. How will they get out when this world is on fire?

"Cement will not stand fire. The glass will break. The cement lid will fly open and I will sail out like a locust. Some people know they are going to heaven, and those they do not like are going to hell. I am going where the Boss puts me. He knows where I belong better than I do. If I get to go up I have a cement angel outside, above the door, to take me up."

One dollar admission will be charged to enter the tomb and view the creator of the garden, he says, and this sum will be sufficient to pay for its upkeep and also will provide funds for his wife and child.

The aged builder of the new Eden is doubtful if Moses was right when he wrote that man shall die and wake no more until the day of resurrection. Dinsmoor hopes to prove this.

He also has made a large jug which is to be placed at the foot of his coffin. "In the resurrection morn," Dinsmoor says, "if I have to go below, I'll grab my jug and fill it with water on the road down. They say they need water down below."

Dinsmoor is quite adept at getting water where there is no water. His garden has a spring, the only one in town—or in this region, for that matter—for rainfall isn't any too abundant in Western Kansas.

"Everyone could have a natural spring if they lived in the Garden of Eden and did what I have done," says Dinsmoor. "I simply have plugged in on the water main, and so my natural spring gurgles up both day and night. But nobody else has thought of it and so I have the only spring in the county."

IN THESE parts the remaker of Eden has quite a reputation as a humorist. For instance, he is very proud of his Civil War record. He was in 18 big battles and numerous skirmishes. He saw the surrender of Lee. "In every battle," Dinsmoor says, "we either beat the Johnnies or runned them. About half the time we were in the lead and out-runned them."

The people of Lucas have never really known just what to make of this old man who has devoted the last 30 years to his cement figures and his reproduction of the Biblical early world. But his fellow citizens, even though the creator of the new Garden of Eden is pretty much of an enigma to them, have fallen in with his plans and his ambitions. And so they have helped him in his labors to re-create Adam's garden.

So he communicated with one Maurice Goldblatt, art expert of Chicago, gentleman who recently had been honored by the French Government with the title of "Officer of Public Instruction," which is no mean degree. This Goldblatt had been so decorated for having cleared up some extremely old mysteries surrounding canvases hanging on the walls of the Louvre and other places, canvases which some attributed to one artist and some attributed to another—canvases, in fact, which had been laid to the hands of about every artist of prominence, with the possible exception of Mr. Rube Goldberg.

THESE disputed paintings had come under the Goldblatt ken, and before long he had determined who were their rightful authors and, furthermore, convinced the officers of France that he was right, the latter business usually being about as difficult as the former.

Safron conferred with Goldblatt and Goldblatt informed him he would make his way to St. Louis at the earliest opportunity. While Safron was waiting for Goldblatt to arrive, Safron sent him one of the photographs of the painting, upon the back of which appeared the information that maybe it was the work of Alexander Decamps and maybe it wasn't. Mr. Goldblatt looked at the photograph and Mr. Goldblatt became extremely interested. Mr. Goldblatt studied the photograph, and the more he studied it the more interested Mr. Goldblatt became. Pretty soon he became so intensely interested that he hopped a train—or perhaps he boarded it, which would be the more dignified manner for an art expert to get himself into a train—and he came to St. Louis.

Straight to Safron's gallery he went. He took one long look at the painting. His eyes lit up and he threw his hands toward the clouds. "I knew it," he said. "I knew it! It's a Delacroix."

Safron thought he was dreaming. When I saw him the next day he still thought he was dreaming. But on this day before, his head swirled and whirled and spun about, and all with good reason. For while he would have been a little more than satisfied if his picture had turned out to be an Alexander Decamps, he was hardly prepared to realize that his painting was a Eugene Delacroix. Because, though Alexander Decamps was an excellent artist, the difference between Alexander Decamps and Eugene Delacroix is that Decamps was an excellent artist and Delacroix was a master, and a great one.

NOW, while Mr. Safron's head was going through these gyrations, Mr. Goldblatt was running about in front of the canvas with a magnifying glass and muttering strange and inaudible things. He

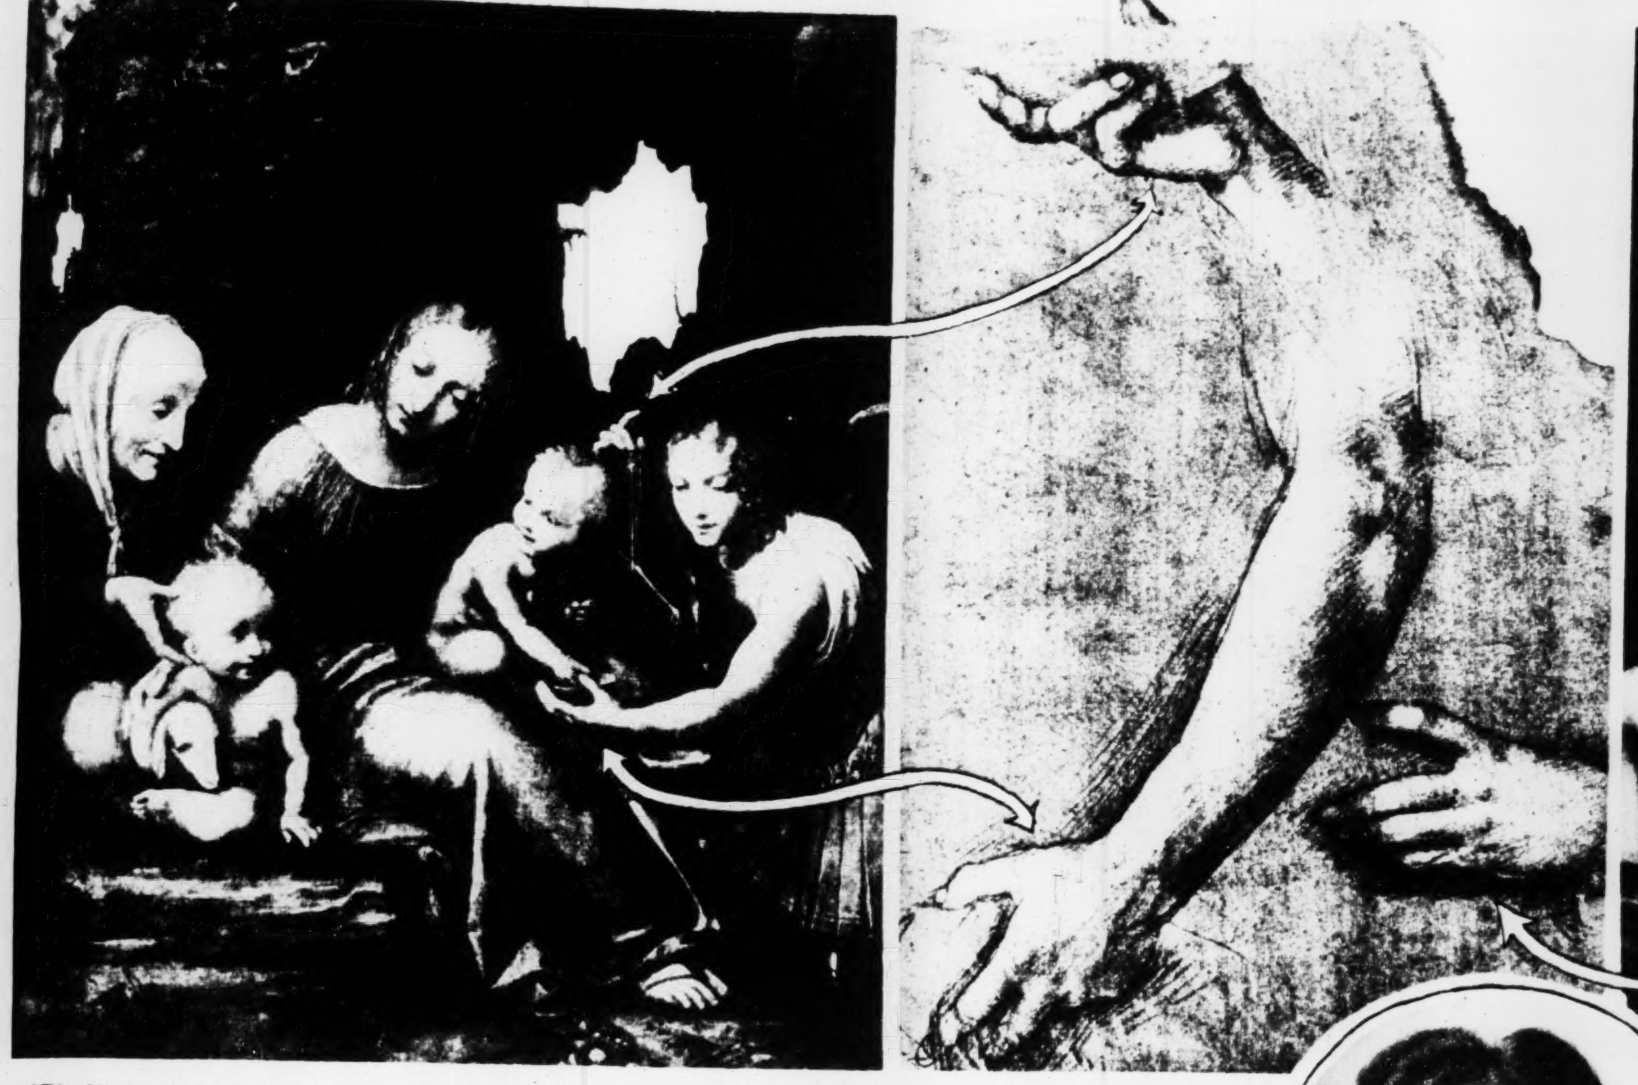
How a Lost Masterpiece Was Discovered in St. Louis



"The Virgin of the Scales," hanging in the Louvre. This painting was once attributed to Leonardo da Vinci, then to the school of Da Vinci. The discovery of the similarity between the hand holding the balances, and the other hand and arm, and the hand and hand and arm indicated in the drawing on the right—a known sketch by Da Sesto, a pupil of Da Vinci's in Milan, made on a single piece of paper—proved the painting to be a Da Sesto to the satisfaction of experts.

For while he would have been a little more than satisfied if his picture had turned out to be an Alexander Decamps, he was hardly prepared to realize that his painting was a Eugene Delacroix. Because, though Alexander Decamps was an excellent artist, the difference between Alexander Decamps and Eugene Delacroix is that Decamps was an excellent artist and Delacroix was a master, and a great one.

NOW, while Mr. Safron's head was going through these gyrations, Mr. Goldblatt was running about in front of the canvas with a magnifying glass and muttering strange and inaudible things. He would look closely at one place and enthuse and then he would run over to another point and enthuse.

"But, Mr. Goldblatt"—this from Safron—"how do you know it's a Delacroix? Oh, how do you know?"

"Do you see that grouping?" asked Goldblatt. "Delacroix! Do you see that attention to detail? Here, look through the glass. Delacroix. Do you see this coloring and this coloring and this coloring? Do you see the treatment of these figures? Do you see the primary colors he used? That red? And that blue? Delacroix. Delacroix. Delacroix."

Safron was caught in the storm of Goldblatt's enthusiasm. But he wasn't quite persuaded. He was afraid to be persuaded. Afraid he'd wake up and find it but a dream.

"I wonder," said Safron. "I wonder if there's a signature."

"I'm looking for it," said Goldblatt, peering over the canvas with his glass. "I'm looking for it."

They looked and they looked. They examined the lower right-hand corner, where artists are given to place their names. No signature was there. All they found was paint, faded out by art dealers and art experts, whose quaint custom it is to stick their respective thumbs in their respective mouths and, thus moistening those thumbs, to run them over this corner of a painting in an effort to remove any dust or grime or later varnish which may be obscuring the signature of some great master. That was all they found, faded paint and an anemic hen, almost a specter hen, once undoubtedly plump and well fed but now almost wasted away by the damp thumbs of hungry art dealers.

SATISFIED that no signature had ever likely been in this lower right-hand corner and that certainly there was none there now, Goldblatt and his glass moved to other parts of the painting. Meticulously, minutely he conducted his inquiry. He looked here and he looked there. At this corner and that corner, along the edges, in the middle. He peered at the base of the temple, at the sides of the judge's desk, at the banner held aloft by one of a company of Roman legionaries, bearing, as was customary with the banners of the Romans, the letters SPQR, which, as everybody knows, means Senatus Populusque Romanus, and which, as everybody also knows, of course, means, "The Roman Senate and People." Closely he peered at that banner, still more closely. Then suddenly he jumped up and, pointing toward the bottom of the scutcheon, cried out,

"There it is. There it is. His initials. E. D.—Eugene Delacroix!"

There it was, come from the French master by some unknown route to America and after all these years turned up in St. Louis by way of an art auction. A Eugene Delacroix.

"What is it worth?" said Goldblatt. "Anywhere from $50,000 to $250,000!"

When I saw Maurice Goldblatt the day after his discovery, I asked him to tell me about it.

"I thought," said he, "when I first saw it in the black and white photograph that it looked like Delacroix's work. Look at the countless figures on it, there must be well over a thousand people. That was characteristic of him and his meticulous attention to detail. I think the painting might be called 'A Scene Before the Temple in Jerusalem.' At the top of the steps, there, toward the center of the canvas, sits Christ and around Him you see His twelve disciples. That woman in the yard, attended by her servants and her retinue, is, I believe, the Queen of Sheba. Over to the right you see Roman soldiers. Pilate is there, too. Of course, all of these people were not contemporaries. But that is a liberty artists take.

"Well, such painstaking is characteristic of Delacroix. Very few artists but Delacroix would go to the trouble to paint in all these hundreds of persons. And see how exactly every face and every figure is worked out. There is no slurring over, no carelessness no matter how small a part the character plays in the whole.

"Now Delacroix was a colorist and a great one. This is probably as fine a piece of color work as he ever did. His reputation as a colorist may stand on this canvas. And here you find another characteristic of him. He frequently used the primary colors as they came from the tube. He placed a red or a blue or a yellow direct on his canvas without mixing it with something else. That turban, there, of red and blue are the same red and blue that Delacroix squeezed from his tubes.

"Yes, I thought it was a Delacroix when I first saw the photograph, and I knew it was as soon as I saw the canvas."

But this Mr. Goldblatt was not always an art expert. For instance, when he lived in St. Louis, as he did for a time when he was a boy, he was merely a stamp expert. His father was a stamp collector before him, but the boy's eye was so sure that it became his father's custom to bring him along to the meetings of the father's stamp-collecting society to authenticate various and sundry stamps which caused the members of that club grave doubt.

Then, as Goldblatt grew up, Goldblatt and the stamps parted company. He became a musician, his particular instrument the violin. I am told he is a very good violinist. He has been on the concert stage, he has been first violin with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, he has been concert master of a symphony orchestra.

But none of these had anything to do with his becoming an art expert. It was in 1918 that Goldblatt more or less suddenly decided that he ached to know art for his own sake.

Nearly every summer after that saw the fellow in Europe, haunting art galleries in Paris, London, Vienna and points north, south, east and west. He studied and he studied and he studied. In Chicago he attended the Chicago Art Institute; he wanted to learn the technique of painting. And he did a landscape that won much applause.

Now in Turin was the drawing of a head of Da Vinci and in Venice was another one much like it. They were drawings, it was said, of Da Vinci by Da Vinci. Goldblatt came and he looked closely. The drawing at Turin showed oblique lines running from left to right. The drawing at Venice showed oblique lines. But they ran in the opposite direction.

Leonardo, being beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt a left-hander, must necessarily have drawn those characteristic left-handed oblique lines shown in the drawing of the head of Leonardo Da Vinci at Turin, i. e., the drawing of Da Vinci at Turin was by the artist himself. And, logically enough, the drawing of Da Vinci at Venice must be the work of some other fellow. It didn't take Goldblatt long to fasten the authorship of the Venice drawing on Andrea Salaino, one of Da Vinci's pupils.

Now in the Louvre hangs a painting called "The Virgin of the Scales," or as the French prefer to put it, "La Vierge aux Balances." For years it rejoiced in being a Da Vinci. Then along came a few art expert gentlemen and said it wasn't a Da Vinci, it was of the school of Da Vinci. So there it was, hanging in the Louvre—there it was, the poor thing, looking for an artist. Then along came Mr. Goldblatt.

It seems that in Venice Goldblatt had seen on a single sheet of paper the drawings of two hands and an arm and hand, none of the three having any connection with the others. These drawings were known to be the work of Cesare da Sesto, another pupil of Da Vinci's. Now one of the hands on this paper corresponded exactly with a hand of the Virgin in a painting at Milan, known to be by Da Sesto and called "The Holy Family."

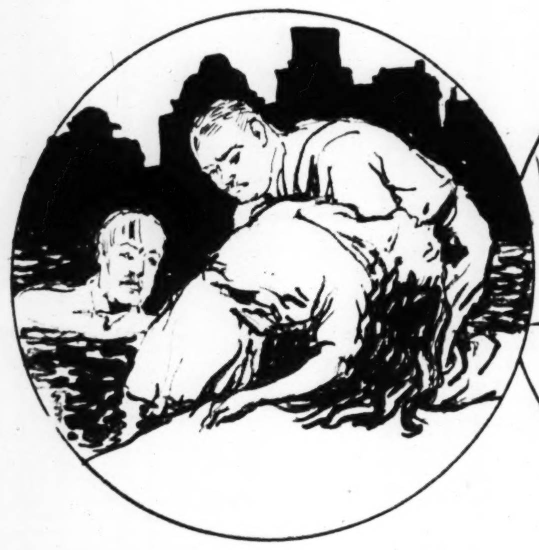
In the Louvre, Mr. Goldblatt compared the hand and the other hand and arm of the angel of "The Virgin of the Scales" with the remaining hand and the hand and arm of the sketches by Da Sesto on the single sheet of paper at Venice. And Mr. Goldblatt had discovered that the Louvre painting, once attributed to Da Vinci, and then to the school of Da Vinci, was the work of one Cesare da Sesto and no other. And the high gentlemen who have charge of the Louvre for the French Republic agreed with him.

AND Mr. Goldblatt has been pretty well setting things aright in art galleries around the world ever since. Going about he has found that 63 paintings and drawings, given to Da Vinci and Luini and Sodoma and the school of Da Vinci and almost everybody else, are the work of Andrea Salaino. He's also proved to the satisfaction of France that its "Mona Lisa" by Da Vinci is its "Mona Lisa" by Da Vinci.

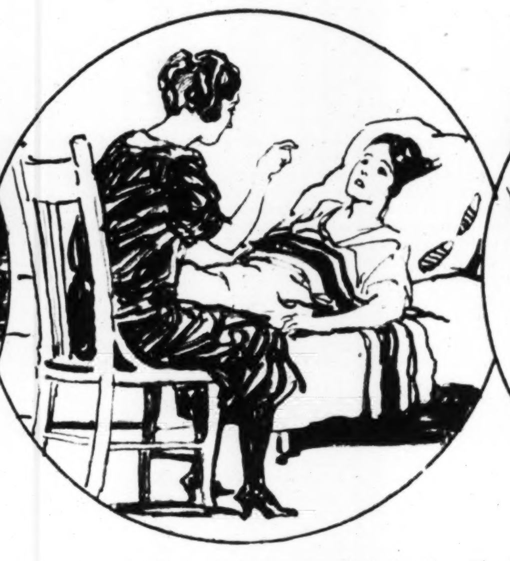
So it's not to be wondered at, when Mr. Goldblatt arrived in St. Louis and said a painting picked up for $250 was a painting by Eugene Delacroix, that the man who owned it felt pretty good about it. And it's not to be wondered at that Mr. Goldblatt, considering what he's done, wears one of those colored little buttons in his coat lapel one sometimes sees on distinguished looking gentlemen in Paris, only Mr. Goldblatt doesn't wear a beard. He could wear that, too, if he cared to.

EXPOSING THE BOGUS Grand Duchess Anastasia

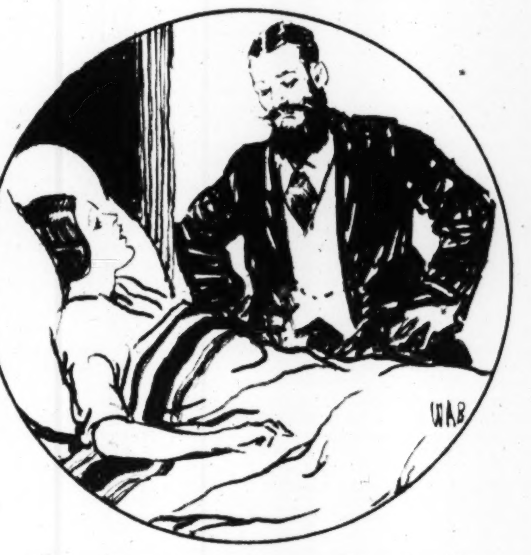
Prof. Pierre Gilliard Finally Proves the "Czar's Daughter" Was Just a Polish Peasant Named Schanzkowski.



Pulled out of a canal by the Berlin police after an attempted suicide.



In the hospital she met a woman who related to her the fate of the Czar's family.



She began to tell visitors that she was Anastasia, who had escaped the general slaughter of her family.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS.

A REMARKABLE impostor has just been unmasked in Berlin.

For six years an uneducated Polish peasant girl named Franziska Schanzkowski has posed as Grand Duchess Anastasia, fourth daughter of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia, who was shot by the Bolshevists with the rest of her family at Ekaterinburg in July, 1918.

In spite of the improbability of her story she deceived thousands of the Russian nobility, including members of the imperial family, at first, into accepting this extravagant imposture.

The Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna, who lives at Copenhagen, was so impressed by Franziska's explanations that she had the Danish Minister at Berlin make an investigation, and when he was unable to clear up the mystery she asked Professor Pierre Gilliard of Lausanne, who was the Czarevitch's tutor for many years, to go to Berlin and see if he could recognize her.

"I can clearly remember that my Aunt Olga (the Czar's sister) called me 'Schwibzik,'" the impostor declared, and the Grand Duchess Olga confirmed this.

Professor Gilliard went to Berlin in 1925, and after talking to Franziska and studying her for several hours, reported positively to the aged and agonized Dowager Empress that the impostor was certainly not Anastasia, whom he had known intimately. They had the same gray eyes, but the resemblance ended there.

THE members of the imperial family were still in doubt and hundreds of Russian aristocrats, who had a semi-mystic adoration for the ill-fated young Grand Duchess, swore that the sick young woman in Berlin was certainly she.

The German Government even gave Franziska a passport to go to Lugano, Switzerland, in the name of "Anastasia Tchaikovsky"—this was the man she alleged had saved her from the massacre at Ekaterinburg and later married her—"born June 18, 1901, at Tsarskoe-Selo," which was the real Anastasia's date of birth, although she had been born at the royal castle at Peterhof and not at Tsarskoe-Selo, but the impostor didn't know this.

Professor Gilliard again went to Berlin at the request of the Dowager Empress and, with the aid of the Berlin police, proved by a police bulletin and other documents that the impostor was simply a peasant girl from Pomerania, who had never been in Russia in her life.

This girl, Franziska Schanzkowski, who had lived in a humble cottage and practically never gone to school, was able to paint such a true picture of life in the imperial household at St. Petersburg that many Russian nobles, who were really acquainted with the Czar's family, are still convinced today that she is Anastasia and always address her as Imperial Highness.

The explanation of this curious affair is simply that the girl was extraordinarily clever, in spite of her lack of education, and drew out all the information she wished from the Russian aristocrats who surrounded her.

The four daughters of the late Czar—Marie, Tatiana, Anastasia and Olga.

Professor Gilliard has now written a fascinating account of how he exposed this extraordinary imposture for L'Illustration of Paris, and he remarks that it was probably the greatest hoax of the century.

"On Feb. 17, 1920, the Berlin police pulled out of the Landwehrkanal a young woman who had tried to commit suicide," he commences.

"When she had recovered sufficiently to be questioned they wished to establish her identity, but she refused to give her name and she acted so strangely that the authorities sent her to a hospital for the weak-minded in a Berlin suburb."

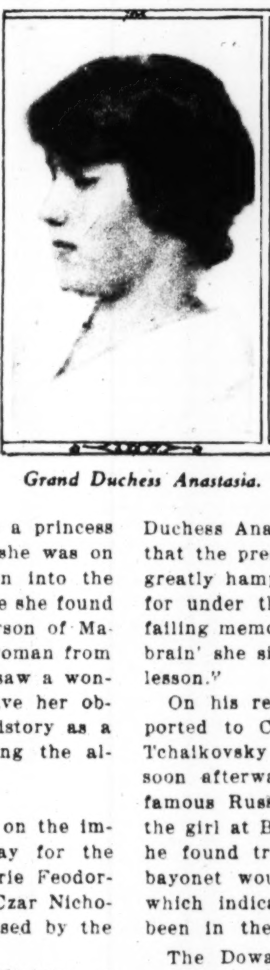
HE EXPLAINS how a German woman in this hospital, who had formerly lived in Russia, recognized her first as Grand Duchess Tatiana, and later as Grand Duchess Anastasia; how the Polish girl extracted a lot of information from this woman about the tragic fate of the Russian royal family; how she then related to the Russian monarchists her escape from the slaughter at Ekaterinburg, her voyage to Rumania with Tchaikovsky, the ignorant soldier who had saved her and then married her, the murder of her husband by Bolshevist agents in Rumania, the voyage to Berlin, the effort to see her aunt, Princess Irene of Prussia, the brutal way in which she was kicked out of her aunt's house by the servants and finally how she threw herself into the canal in despair.

A Russian monarchist, Baron Kleist, was so impressed that he secured permission in May, 1922, to take her to his home to be nursed, as she was still suffering from the shock of her horrible experiences and loss of memory.

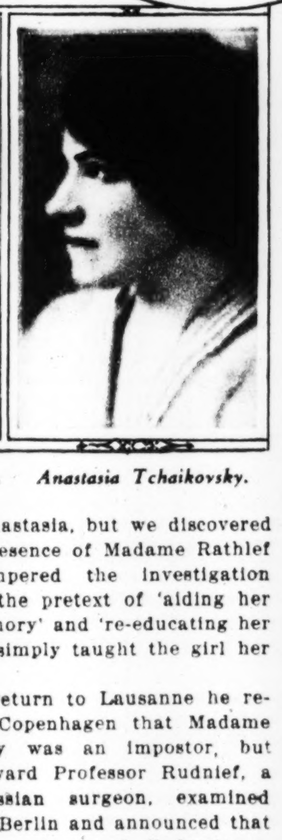
"From this date starts what I call the 'period of the Russian monarchists,'" Professor Gilliard relates, "and it continued until June, 1925. During these three years Madame Tchaikovsky lived at the home of Baron Kleist, and with other protectors. There was a continual procession of Russians who came to see the miracle with their own eyes. They tried to awaken memories of the past in the august patient, bringing her photographs and post cards to recognize. All of them claimed that they had been on intimate terms with the imperial family, and that they recognized her."

The mysterious girl was also taken into his home by Dr. Grunberg, a Berlin police official, who was making a great effort to identify her.

He arranged an interview with Princess Irene, who was a sister of the late Czarina, but the aunt and alleged niece did not recognize each other. He decided that she was an impostor and washed his hands of her.



Grand Duchess Anastasia.



Anastasia Tchaikovsky.

The Russian monarchists also became suspicious, and the girl, who had been treated like a princess for three years, saw that she was on the verge of being thrown into the street when by good fortune she found a new protector in the person of Madame Rathlef, a Russian woman from the Baltic provinces, who saw a wonderful opportunity to "leave her obscurity and go down in history as a pious woman" by succoring the alleged grand duchess.

FORTUNE also smiled on the impostor in another way for the Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna, mother of the late Czar Nicholas II, began to be impressed by the girl's stories.

She had the Danish Minister at Berlin make an investigation and he reported a number of facts which caused the deepest emotion among the members of the imperial family at Copenhagen, notably that the girl said that her aunt Olga had always called her 'Schwibzik.' This was exact, and it was troubling because it was only known to members of the family. How could an impostor ever discover such a thing?

"A pathetic letter from Copenhagen decided my wife and I to go to Berlin," Professor Gilliard continues.

"The mysterious sick girl not only did not recognize us, but she mistook my wife for the Grand Duchess Olga! We did not find that she had the slightest resemblance to Grand Duchess Anastasia, but we discovered that the presence of Madame Rathlef greatly hampered the investigation for under the pretext of 'aiding her failing memory' and 're-educating her brain' she simply taught the girl her lesson."

On his return to Lausanne he reported to Copenhagen that Madame Tchaikovsky was an impostor, but soon afterward Professor Rudnief, a famous Russian surgeon, examined the girl at Berlin and announced that he found traces of skull fractures, bayonet wounds and bullet holes, which indicated that she really had been in the Ekaterinburg massacre.

The Dowager Empress again begged Professor Gilliard to go to Berlin in October, 1925, and he and the Grand Duchess Olga made a thorough inquiry, but again came to the conclusion that she was an impostor.

ASIDE from the fact that she did not resemble Anastasia, and all of her recollections seemed suspect, he found that she could only speak German, whereas Anastasia spoke Russian and English fluently, a little French and no German at all!

He also discovered that she had picked up the nickname of "Schwibzik" from a Russian officer whom Grand Duchess Olga had sent to Siberia to search for Anastasia some years before.

She had met this officer in Berlin, and he had tried to recall her memories by using this name, which cleared up one of the most baffling mysteries connected with the case.

In spite of the overwhelming evidence that Madame Tchaikovsky was a faker a movement among the Russian emigres in favor of officially recognizing her grew rapidly. A constant procession of admirals, generals, princes, diplomats and other distinguished people waited on her, addressed her as Imperial Highness and rivaled one another in loading her with favors and presents.

And when her supporters decided to send her to Lugano in the spring of 1926 for a change of air the German Government gave her a passport in which it practically recognized her as the young Grand Duchess.

"THE spring at Lugano was exquisite, but Madame Tchaikovsky did not have an idylic soul and, after her first enchantment, she returned to her great objective—her recognition. She commenced to find that her imperial relatives were very indifferent in receiving her. She became impatient, and showed annoyance toward Madame Rathlef, who had done all she could. It became impossible for the two of them to get along together. She had always known how to drop her protectors when they were of no further use and, finding Madame Rathlef in her way, they separated in July, 1926."

The impostor had made a clever move in dropping Madame Rathlef for she was placed in care of Madame Melnik, daughter of Doctor Botkine, who had been massacred with the Czar and his family.

As soon as Madame Melnik saw the girl she recognized her as Grand Duchess Anastasia!

Although her father had been physician to the imperial family for many years, Madame Melnik, who was a kind of mystic, had only seen the Grand Duchess three times in her life, the last time being in 1914, when Anastasia was only 13. The Russian emigres didn't know this and there was another rush to hail the impostor as Anastasia but, in the opinion of Professor Gilliard, what was more grave, Madame Melnik knew a host of details about the life of the Romanoff family and she confided them to the impostor in order to "aid her failing memory" and "re-educate her brain."

On top of this triumph the Duke of Leuchtenberg, whose grandmother was the daughter of Czar Nicholas I, invited Madame Tchaikovsky to his castle in Bavaria, which amounted to recognition of her claims.

IN THE meanwhile Professor Gilliard, who had almost despaired of finding documentary proof of this hoax, had asked Monsieur Bischoff, professor of the Bertillon school and police technique at the University of Lausanne, to compare the full face and profile photographs of Madame Tchaikovsky and Grand Duchess Anastasia according to the latest police methods.

The impostor continued her triumphal career until several weeks ago, when she was finally tripped up.

She had made only one little mistake and in the end this ruined her.

During 1922, when she was living at the home of Baron Kleist, she had disappeared for three days and returned with different clothes, refusing to explain what had happened. When a Berlin newspaper mentioned this point in trying to unravel the mystery of Madame Tchaikovsky recently, a woman named Wingender, who keeps a boarding house, came to the newspaper office with some clothes left by a person named Franziska Schanzkowski, who had been at her place for three days in 1922. Baron Kleist identified the clothes as belonging to Madame Tchaikovsky and the boarding house keeper identified the alleged Grand Duchess as her erstwhile lodger.

The police commenced to investigate and in the huge card index of all the strangers arriving at Berlin found the bulletin that Franziska Schanzkowski had filled out when she arrived at Berlin on Nov. 20, 1919.

The handwriting was identical with that of the mysterious Madame Tchaikovsky, and upon further investigation the police discovered that the impostor was a simple peasant girl born in Pomerania on Dec. 16, 1896. On top of that Professor Bischoff gave an equally damaging report against her claims.

VACATION BLUES

Vacation Notes Those Gaudy Folders

THE vacation, we are advised, is good for the system—especially the transcontinental railroad system. Unfortunately, we cannot all be certified public accountants or heavyweight champions. The certified public accountant prepares an annual statement and then, as is generally supposed, goes hunting, possibly hiding, until the end of the fiscal year; while the heavyweight champion raps somebody in the tusks and lays off to turn down offers until they begin to resemble the census figures for Milwaukee. These classes work about as often as a triple steal on Muddy Ruel. Possibly the most vacationed man in the world is the professor who plots the course of Halley's comet, there being an interval of 76 years before the people scan the heavens for something that hasn't got a motor in it.

The vacation bug, which is small enough to crawl through the meshes of the finest window screen, leaves its lair about the first of May and seeks warm climates, where it is especially partial to bald-headed business men incubating in offices as they reply to yours of the sixteenth, comma. The bug zooms around the room to get the lay of the land and then lights on a pile of invoices, where it hums: "Come on, kid! Snap the locks on the mahogany and let's beat it for the far and wide, where men are caddies!"

THE business man parries the thrust and passes his hand over his moist forehead and says: "We quote the following prices, best can offer, subject to delivery"—Here he gazes at the calendar, which shows a gigantic locomotive hurtling along the shore of a sun-kissed lake and a clean-shaven engineer leaning out the window waving his hand to a group of white-clad persons standing on the deck of a sail boat. The vacation bug is quick to take advantage of this break and he clamps his jaw on the victim's mashie arm.

"Miss Pound," says the business man guiltily, "remind me to see those railroad people tomorrow." Whereupon the vacation bug sounds a buzz of triumph and wings to another office, where he attacks a salesman trying to land a telephone order for 1000 sheets of cardboard, while the other party protests that he must have the wrong number as this is a company making ice cream cones.

The smitten victims go home and read highly lithographed booklets of accordion-like construction. One cover design will show a young man in white flannels lolling on a green hilltop with a pretty girl nearby cutting a large slice of home-made angel cake, another shows a smiling, bronzed young man holding up a muskie about 16 feet long, and still another shows a curly-headed scout in golf knickers seated under a striped awning on the lawn of a country club and steadfastly refusing to surrender his chair to three pretty girls who are standing in front of him with polo bats under their arms.

BUT is it such a tough break to be on the receiving end of a wish-you-were-here postal? How about the sunburned wreck who collapses in his office at the end of his vacation and rejoices at the continuance of the dull season so that he can rest the weary frame, which for two weeks has climbed four flights of a rickety hotel to reach a bed that originally served as the box for a croquet outfit? How about the man who comes home after serving for one month as a barbecue for hypodermic-nosed mosquitoes of the unscreened spaces?

Much depends upon whether one wishes to "rough it" or "smooth it"—take a vacation demanding corduroys and riding boots or one calling for blue coats and that delight of the dry-cleaning industry, the flannel trouser. Many old married couples love to "rough it" over the summer, although they have been roughing it the year around, and they generally select a national park with the idea they will have to make their own fire by rubbing twigs together and then grow their own tomatoes. As a matter of fact, they usually wind up in a hotel that has high-speed, micro-drive elevators, circulating ice water and a radio set and they get the Sunday papers on Friday, which is two days quicker than they get them back home. The only note of roughness is in the texture of the mashed potatoes, although the hotel lobby is "rustic" with a couple of frayed buffalo heads that were possibly purchased second-hand from the Smithsonian Institution.

The Government is very fond of the National Park idea, having created some 46 of them by and with the consent of the Senate, and any territory is eligible for a national park that has a few trees, a brook or two, a Turkish bath or somebody who looks like he might be an Indian. They will probably end up by making national parks of the roof gardens on the summer hotels.

SOME persons like to go to Michigan or Wisconsin for their vacations, although those regions are actually within the city limits of Chicago, as will be realized over the week-end when the whole town comes North and shoots all the golf and catches all the fish. When they are through with the vacation territory, it looks like one of those newspaper photos taken three minutes after the tornado struck Main street. The golf course looks like the subject of a taxpayer's complaint to the Board of Aldermen and the lake is as devoid of fish as a Birmingham butcher shop in August.

Supposing you are taking one of these luxurious vacations to the land of 10,000 lakes, more or less, you get off the train and see an old, whiskered gent lolling against the baggage platform and cleaning a fish with his pocket knife and he guides you to a hotel, where they pigeonhole you in a room that is equipped with a bed covered with a crazy quilt, also a lot of pictures decorated with pink flowers that were painted by an artist working for a Chicago mail order house.

YOU ask for a guide and they point out the whiskered gent, the man who performed the autopsy on the fish. He has guided you to your room and seems to be well acquainted with all parts of the country. He rows you out to the middle of the bay and lights a pipe full of something that appears to have been blended in a mattress factory, and you get six bites—all mosquitoes. These mosquitoes are constructed along the lines of a De Haviland bomber, and they escort you back to the hotel in style, flying in V formation.

But, After All— The Bronzed Wrecks

EXCHANGING your fishing tools for a tennis racket, you repair to the court, which appears to be in partial usage as a truck garden, and when you start to pluck a handful of weeds from the foul lines, a rabbit jumps out and looks at you with indignation. You then go to the lobby and buy a half-dozen postal cards showing a jolly fisherman holding up a string of 12 muskies (photo snapped 400 miles away in 1888) and you send these to your friends inscribed "Wish you were here."

That evening, when you turn in, you discover your room is located over the poolhall and the tobacco fumes seep through the floor and you are kept awake by a lot of vociferous merriment, the clicks of billiard balls and lesser clicks as they register scores on the trolley. Just as you are beginning to doze off, there is a racket out on the bay and a squadron of canoes filled with young people paddle up and down singing songs and twanging ukeleles until about 3 in the morning, when all the chickens in the county commence their setting-up exercises.

Some people think things over and quash this sort of vacation. They point out that the movies have that zestful October tang and are so delightfully chilled it is advisable to enter them wearing goloshes.

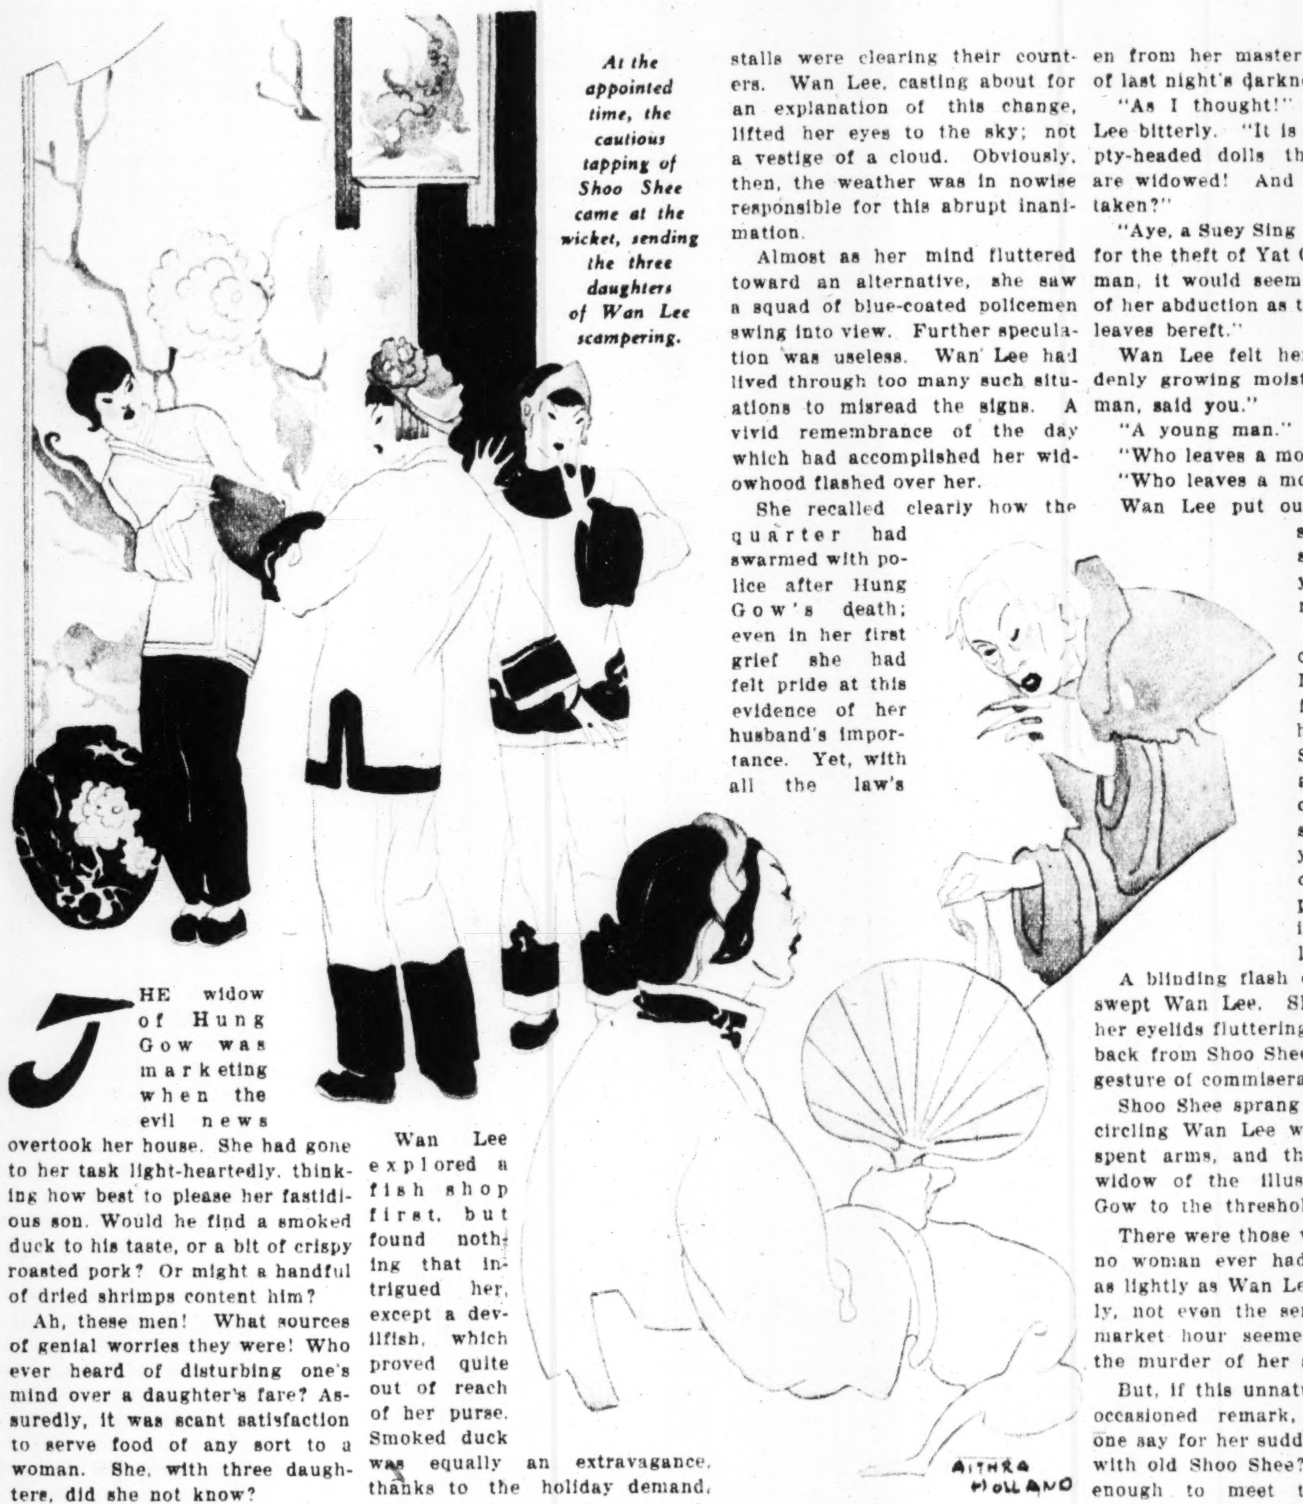
THE THRICE BEREFT WIDOW OF HUNG GOW

by CHARLES CALDWELL DOBIE



At the appointed time, the cautious tapping of Shoo Shee came at the wicket, sending the three daughters of Wan Lee scampering.

THE widow of Hung Gow was marketing when the evil news overtook her house. She had gone to her task light-heartedly, thinking how best to please her fastidious son. Would he find a smoked duck to his taste, or a bit of crispy roasted pork? Or might a handful of dried shrimps content him?

Ah, these men! What sources of genial worries they were! Who ever heard of disturbing one's mind over a daughter's fare? Assuredly, it was scant satisfaction to serve food of any sort to a woman. She, with three daughters, did she not know?

But to minister to the appetite of a male—ah, that was different! Even his disgusts were lively, putting one on edge to please him. As a bride, how she had thrilled to her husband's meal-time ardors! For Hung Gow, in his day, had been as lusty a diner as any gunman in all the length and breadth of San Francisco's Chinatown. And he had lived lustily, too, in the end paying the price of certain philandering with his life—a pointless enough matter beside the fact that he had been to his wife, Wan Lee, not only a male, but a male worth feeding. Which made her loss the greater at his untimely taking off, and her pleasure in her son's desires the more profound.

Happily for her, she thought this son of hers was more the connoisseur and less the gormandizer. That he ate gravely and without haste was to Wan Lee a circumstance by no means as unsatisfying as it seemed. Thus, she argued, would he live—calmly, moderately—to a ripe old age, blessing her with many grandchildren, or, to be precise, many grandsons to feed.

However, she had a suspicion that her husband would have found little satisfaction in the studious decorum of his son, in his distaste for gun play, in his pronounced contempt for all melodramatic flourishes. But, to repeat, all this filled the matronly Wan Lee with a large content.

Effect, to her simple reasoning, bore a close relation to cause: Did one gather nettles from plum boughs? Then could violence spring from tranquillity? As with us all, the wish was father to the thought; and Wan Lee, being passionate to have her son, built up a wall of reasoning for his preservation.

In short, she wrapped herself so tightly in her security that she drew the attention of the gods. And they laughed, which brings us the more speedily to our tale.

IT WAS just the day for marketing—a February day with a crisp warmth wherever the sunshine fell, but harboring shadows too cool for loitering, and with the New Year a quarter of a moon distant, the choicest of wares on display, and everywhere the contagion of holiday bartering.

Wan Lee explored a fish shop first, but found nothing that intrigued her, except a devilfish, which proved quite out of reach of her purse. Smoked duck was equally an extravagance, thanks to the holiday demand, and dried shrimps of poor quality. But in the meat stall of Yoke Moy she came upon such a crisp and freshly roasted pig that she threw all thrift to the wind and demanded the choicest cut possible. Yoke Moy smiled blandly:

"The choicest cut!" he echoed. "Perhaps you have guessed that meat such as I sell brings a fair price?"

To which she replied vigorously:

"Think you that I have lived to my age without knowledge? The widow of Hung Gow is no twittering fledgling."

He poised the wide blade in midair. "The widow of Hung Gow!" he repeated. "You have a son, have you not?"

She drew in a breath of pride. "For whom else do I purchase the choicest morsel your shop affords? I have a son, in sooth, and, if the gods be kind, I shall continue to have him until my days are accomplished."

Yoke Moy looked away, intent upon the pig's quartering. "This son of yours—is he a Suey Sing?"

"As his father was before him."

"A hazardous affiliation," ventured Yoke Moy, "from all reports."

"By what token?"

"Have you so soon forgotten your own widowhood?"

"Nay, but the worthy Hung Gow was cast in a reckless mold. His son is of a more even temper. He goes not to extravagant lengths to provoke encounters."

Yoke Moy continued to cut with vigorous strokes. "I have yet to learn that a timorous hare gains the consideration of foxes because of its gentleness."

TWO spots burned upon Wan Lee's cheeks. "The son of Hung Gow has naught in keeping with cowardice," she flared.

"So much the worse," replied Yoke Moy.

Then he lapsed into a cryptic and soul-chilling silence.

Coming out from Yoke Moy's shop into the slanting sunlight, Wan Lee found the street curiously emptied of its holiday throng. Ten minutes before, what had been a scene of cheerful barter was now a dreary prospect, with here and there a few belated souls scurrying to cover. Even the keepers of the street stalls were clearing their counters. Wan Lee, casting about for an explanation of this change, lifted her eyes to the sky; not a vestige of a cloud. Obviously, then, the weather was in nowise responsible for this abrupt inanimation.

Almost as her mind fluttered toward an alternative, she saw a squad of blue-coated policemen swing into view. Further speculation was useless. Wan Lee had lived through too many such situations to misread the signs. A vivid remembrance of the day which had accomplished her widowhood flashed over her.

She recalled clearly how the quarter had swarmed with police after Hung Gow's death; even in her first grief she had felt pride at this evidence of her husband's importance. Yet, with all the law's vigilance, eight lives had been snuffed out before the bloody war between the Suey Sings and the See Yups had been halted. She was wondering what tongs had lined up for battle today and whether a toll of life already had been taken when she saw the figure of the noseless Shoo Shee pushing toward her.

Ordinarily, so worthy a matron as Wan Lee would have scorned such an infamous old hag, but curiosity arose above respectability. Who could gain-say this venerable hag's capabilities in the direction of the latest news? Thus it was that Wan Lee met the villainous Shoo Shee's smile of greeting.

"It seems that there is naught but shuffling old women abroad. Can it be that the men have lost all taste for adventure?"

A CURIOUS look came over the face of Shoo Shee, and her usual smile of derision was missing as she answered:

"Surely one so concerned as yourself must, by this time, have heard the reason for so much scurrying to cover; within the hour the Suey Sings and the See Yups have opened fire."

Wan Lee said, with a show of scorn: "That circumstance is as far removed from my concern as any I shall ever know."

"And yet," said Shoo Shee, "your husband was a Suey Sing."

"To my sorrow."

Shoo Shee took in a fluttering breath: "And your son?"

Wan Lee felt resentment, and the defense that had answered a like challenge less than 10 minutes before leaped to her lips: "My son's ways are not the ways of his illustrious father. He is schooled in tranquillity."

"Which," replied Shoo Shee sagely, "is as thin a cloak against violence as any known."

Wan Lee felt herself trembling with anger and fear. Why had she thus bared herself to the shafts of derision? Yet a certain pride held her to this encounter, and she asked, as calmly as she could:

"Know you the cause of the outbreak?"

"The usual cause—a woman!"

"A bird of brilliant plumage?"

"None other than the distracting Yat Gee, for whom already five men have died. She was stolen from her master under cover of last night's darkness."

"As I thought!" replied Wan Lee bitterly. "It is for such empty-headed dolls that we wives are widowed! And has toll been taken?"

"Aye, a Suey Sing has answered for the theft of Yat Gee—a young man, it would seem, as innocent of her abduction as the mother he leaves bereft."

Wan Lee felt her palms suddenly growing moist. "A young man, said you."

"A young man."

"Who leaves a mother bereft?"

"Who leaves a mother bereft."

Wan Lee put out a hand to steady herself. "Heard you his name?"

"It has escaped me. But I knew his father before him." Shoo Shee paused, and her cracked voice softened. "A youth, according to report, schooled in tranquillity."

Shoo Shee sprang forward, encircling Wan Lee with her thin, spent arms, and thus came the widow of the illustrious Hung Gow to the threshold of sorrow.

There were those who said that no woman ever had borne grief as lightly as Wan Lee. Outwardly, not even the serenity of her market hour seemed ruffled by the murder of her son.

But, if this unnatural placidity occasioned remark, what could one say for her sudden friendship with old Shoo Shee? It was not enough to meet the old hag about the bazar, but every night, at the appointed time, the cautious tapping of Shoo Shee came at the wicket, sending the three daughters of Wan Lee scampering.

To any who might have listened to the conversation, the secret of this strange association would have been half solved. For did not Shoo Shee bring gossip from the covert streams of life which could undermine what or whom it would? And Wan Lee was filled with a vaguely destructive urge as she contemplated the unrevenged havoc which the gods had wrought for her undoing.

ASSUREDLY, justice moved slowly in these days. Within 12 hours, her husband's murder had been met with equal violence, while now three days had passed without so much as a finger lifted in the defense of her household's honor. "Were there no males in the mighty See Yup Tong worthy of sacrifice?" she asked Shoo Shee repeatedly. Shoo Shee's replies were not altogether reassuring; from the meetings of the tongs came tales of difficulties, indecisions, differences of opinion.

And Shoo Shee heard subterranean rumblings filled with portent. If her ears did not deceive her, the storm would gain violence by very virtue of this prolonged calm. Thus for three days ran the burden of Shoo Shee's encouragement, and on the fourth evening she came with confirmation.

"The man who must pay the penalty for the murder of your son has been picked."

Wan Lee simulated a dignified calm. "Why, then, do you not name him?" she asked coldly.

"Because my breath was, for the moment, spent with the haste of bringing such joyous news to you. Before the week is out, the honor of your husband's house will be satisfied. The name of him who has been chosen is none other than On Yick, the son of On Wo Low. What think you of the choice?"

Wan Lee stiffened with importance. "I think it could not be matched within a hundred miles of this city. And were you a messenger from my husband's tong, I should send back word saying: 'Of a truth, the humble Wan Lee is this day honored above all women!'"

That night, sitting upon her balcony, she saw this On Yick pass, and her satisfaction grew; a tall, upstanding youth, who almost equaled this son of hers. A youth, if memory served her, who in his boyhood had romped with her first-born in the cobbled streets.

SHE felt no personal hatred, but she was schooled in matching suffering with suffering. Had not this On Yick a mother? Let her feel the lash of bereavement. And, besides, what woman, being human, could have gainsaid the honor of having so mighty a family chosen to wipe out the memory of the See Yup's last insolence? For On Wo Low was their most distinguished member, and, by the same token, his first born a fruitful branch, ripe for plucking.

And this son's mother? Wan Lee smiled when she thought of her—a woman with lily feet, mincing between her daughters-in-law, a woman of circumstance, a woman of caste, a woman to be envied, and, yet, a woman as vulnerable to sorrow as the humble widow of the intrepid Hung Gow. Is it to be wondered, then, that Wan Lee was shaken with gusts of satisfaction? For, of a truth, one must feed upon cold comfort, if the fires of happiness have burned to ashes. And when, an hour later, she heard Shoo Shee again pattering up the stairs she thought:

"Can it be that the honor of my husband's house has been so swiftly accomplished?"

But her hopes were premature. Yet Shoo Shee brought gossip of even greater import. Most extraordinary news had seeped through the wall of secrecy with which the Suey Sings hedged in all proceedings of import. It seemed that, on the morrow, there would be dispatched to Wan Lee a messenger whose duty was to acquaint that matron with certain tong secrets.

And, having fulfilled this part of his mission, to take counsel with the widow of Hung Gow as to the best line of action.

ALL that night Wan Lee lay wide-eyed on her couch, shaken with misgivings and reassurances, rising with the dawn to set her house in order for her visitor.

She had expected a venerable messenger, but, when her glance rested upon the figure of a man midway between youth and middle age, she had a sinking of the heart. This man was not intent on carrying formal honors to her house.

By the time he had reached the meat of his argument, she had almost anticipated it: Would a goodly sum from the coffers of the See Yup treasury serve the honor of her house as lustily as the death of On Yick? She felt her cheeks burn with the heat of this indignity, and, rising to her feet, she answered him:

"Does my husband's tong think that the honor of Hung Gow's house is to be bought like a bolt of silk?"

To which her visitor made answer: "Is it bought the less because the currency is blood?"

The question was confusing, but she rallied quickly. "The currency has been fixed by custom. Who am I to gainsay it? Are there no more men among you that you must shift the burden upon the shoulders of a woman?"

The messenger bowed, a questionable suavity in his voice. "We thought the shoulders of compassion broad. Men are not versed in mercy. But they have often great knowledge of expediency. And yet expediency is a weak thing in itself. Is it so vile to call pity into counsel?"

"Pity!" she sneered. "Was it pity that widowed me? And pity that bereft me of a son? There is not money enough in all the world to requite me."

"Nor blood either, if you but knew it! I am the father of a first-born son, and I know that the lives of 50 such would not add one jot to my happiness were he taken from me."

SHE looked at him scornfully, steeling her heart. "And yet," she answered, "you say men are not versed in mercy! Nay, but they can make even mercy serve as a cloak to cowardice. And so you come fawning for justification to the widow of the boldest man who ever graced your tong, that you may say: 'Wan Lee, the widow of Hung Gow, has persuaded me against our inclination. Having been bereft of both a husband and a son, she has need of money; the father of On Yick is rich. In such a dilemma we have no wish but to accede to her wishes!' It is thus that the tale will run, will it not?"

The messenger looked at her with admiration. "You have guessed it. You are wise, Wan Lee. This is why, if you but cast your eyes in the direction I point, you cannot fail to discern the truth."

Her sneer continued. "A truth drawn closer to your vision with the eyeglass of expediency?"

He bowed very low. "The short-sighted take whatever means is nearest to clear up their infirmity. What does it matter how the blind are made to see, so the miracle is accomplished? However, one but muddies a pool with constant stirrings. Let us permit the issue to settle. I shall go back to my brothers and say that the widow of Hung Gow is undecided."

"You will go back, then, O crafty messenger, with a lie!"

"What would you have me say—that Wan Lee cried no quarter? That the shoulders of compassion are shrunken? Are you ready, Wan Lee, to send a bullet speeding toward the heart of On Yick? You have but to command it, and it shall be done!"

And thus he departed, smiling.

For hours after Wan Lee was shaken with fury. Was it possible that she had ever fancied that the great house of On Wo Low had been marked for her honor? An unqualified contempt for all males possessed her. A woman admitted to the deliberations of the Suey Sings! Sugar for the trapping of even so wary a female as Shoo Shee! What would that toothless old emissary say when she heard the truth of the matter?

BUT Shoo Shee knew not only the truth, but much more. She had heard what pressures had been brought; what interests were to be served; what precedents were to be established by Wan Lee's inspired decision to renounce vengeance for cash. For the powerful merchants' organization, the Six Companies, had given their word to the city government to rid the quarter of all community strife, and, when the Six Companies spoke, there were many attentive listeners.

So, continued Shoo Shee, the Suey Sings and the See Yups had met in counsel and, with On Wo Low's consent, had chosen his son for an empty gesture toward satisfaction. "For," said the sagacious in both camps, "we shall have the widow of Hung Gow to justify us and thus save our reputation for valiance!" Fine specimens, truly!

Wan Lee's eyes narrowed with malevolence. "And if I decide not to justify them?" she inquired.

The Widow of Hung Gow

And thus he departed, smiling.

For hours after Wan Lee was shaken with fury. Was it possible that she had ever fancied that the great house of On Wo Low had been marked for her honor? An unqualified contempt for all males possessed her. A woman admitted to the deliberations of the Suey Sings! Sugar for the trapping of even so wary a female as Shoo Shee! What would that toothless old emissary say when she heard the truth of the matter?

BUT Shoo Shee knew not only the truth, but much more. She had heard what pressures had been brought; what interests were to be served; what precedents were to be established by Wan Lee's inspired decision to renounce vengeance for cash. For the powerful merchants' organization, the Six Companies, had given their word to the city government to rid the quarter of all community strife, and, when the Six Companies spoke, there were many attentive listeners.

So, continued Shoo Shee, the Suey Sings and the See Yups had met in counsel and, with On Wo Low's consent, had chosen his son for an empty gesture toward satisfaction. "'For,' said the sagacious in both camps, 'we shall have the widow of Hung Gow to justify us and thus save our reputation for valiance!'" Fine specimens, truly!

Wan Lee's eyes narrowed with malevolence. "And if I decide not to justify them?" she inquired.

"In that case, they must put through their program. Not even the Six Companies can make the Suey Sings the jest of the market place!"

"We shall see, then!" exclaimed Wan Lee.

OUTWARDLY, the quarter resumed its holiday gaiety—proclaiming that animosities and feuds of vengeance were to hang suspended until the New Year had been accomplished. Thus did the powers gild the ugly possibilities behind Wan Lee's indecision.

The women of On Wo Low's household came forth, his wife supported on either side by her daughters-in-law, pattering up and down with the painful movement of bound feet, also intent on calls and ceremony.

Can it be that they have halted by the greasy flight leading to the lodgings of Wan Lee, widow of the valiant Hung Gow? In truth, and not only halting, but mounting the stairs, preceded by a serving woman bearing gifts.

No wonder that the heart of Wan Lee flutters midway between satisfaction and misgiving.

She sits motionless, a just and terrible Wan Lee, while the wife of On Wo Low prostrates herself in all humility before her. And presently the gifts are spread upon the floor, as gifts are spread before a princess. The three daughters of Wan Lee stand upright against the wall, aping their mother's immobility. Here is a box of red lacquer, with carvings half an inch deep, and a bolt of azure silk, and priceless tea, flavored with jasmine.

And the trembling voice of a woman saying:

"O worthy and compassionate Wan Lee, behold, you are a saviour of youth, a drier of woman's tears, a dispenser of laughter! Truly, there is not enough treasure in the world to measure my gratitude to thee!"

And another voice replying, cutting the air like a thin knife:

"That being so, why trouble yourself with these gauds and trifles? Nay, put up your gifts!"

A movement of solicitation from the two fluttering daughters-in-law.

"Nay, you but jest. Are not the terms agreed upon?"

"Verily, between men. But, happily for the honor of my husband's house, I am not bound to their bargain. It seems at last that women are to have a hand. Well, so be it!"

"Shall they not do better, then, than the men before them? Lost you a husband, a son at a woman's command?"

"Nay, but neither heard I a woman's voice plead for them."

"Just and relentless Wan Lee, a stone cast in a pool sends out ripples without end. Thus will it be with you, whether you cast pity or destruction."

"WHETHER I cast pity or destruction is beside the mark. Will pity bring me back my son? And will pity still the gossips of the market place, saying as I pass: 'There goes the covetous Wan Lee, who for a bag of silver bartered away the honor of her husband's house'?"

"And does my son pay the penalty of gossiping tongues with his life?"

A silence, with the lips of Wan Lee curling insolently: "Not if he be fleet of foot, O timorous mother of On Yick! Tell him my purpose, and maybe he shall be swifter in his flight than the bullet that shall speed toward him!"

The serving woman gathered the gifts into a kerchief, and the mother of On Yick answered proudly:

"He shall be told, in truth."

If the news of murder and the gossip of the tongs flew on swift wings through the quarter, what could one say for the speed with which it was reported that the wife of On Wo Low had humbled herself before Wan Lee? The streets hummed with conjectures, turning the shuffling feet of Shoo Shee toward Hung Gow's household. Wan Lee met the old hag's questioning with insolent pride.

"And mark you," she said, concluding her description of the encounter, "how swiftly this swaggering coxcomb will vanish. Tomorrow he will not pass again below my lattice, as is his daily wont."

Shoo Shee lit a cigarette. "To stir a pheasant into swift flight does not insure a feast," she observed, and withdrew, chuckling.

Wan Lee sat motionless, staring into space. Was there more satisfaction in the laughter of the market place than in the grief of women? A pheasant in full flight! Suppose the bird refused to wing toward freedom? The alternative set her to shivering, and she knew in that moment where her hopes lay.

She sat all next day behind the lattice of her window, and he did not pass. Hourly, her satisfaction grew. Would her son have fled, being warned? Would her son have played the coward? The question vaguely disturbed her, yet, for the most part, a weight seemed lifted from her heart. To hold out for the honor of her husband's house and yet have Fate decide the issue peacefully—after all, that were the easier part.

Yes, she was old, and violence had lost its glamour. But pride still reigned. What whisperings in the market place, when next she picked her way in quest of culinary inanities for her three simpering daughters! The profound Wan Lee, honored by the consideration of her husband's tong, whose word could spell destruction! The profound Wan Lee, before whom the lily-footed wife of the great On Wo Low had prostrated herself; who had refused rich gifts and preserved her household's integrity! The profound Wan Lee, who had sent a powerful man's son scurrying to exile! The profound Wan Lee, whose son was slain. Aye, always at the bottom of the cup remained this drop of bitterness.

BUT at twilight her erstwhile conclusions came to naught, for who should swing down the street but this same On Yick, a proud, upward thrust to his shoulders and the apricot bloom upon his cheek.

Wan Lee felt sick and satisfied in turn. Satisfied? Did she still hunger for the blood of On Wo Low's firstborn son? Nay; but a pride stirred her—a pride in youth who could flaunt death so fearlessly. She knew now with what eyes the wife of On Wo Low, divided between agony and elation, looked down upon the spectacle of a son unafraid. For mothers are mothers the world over.

And yet, now that she had drawn so close to courage, she trembled for it. Well, the issue was still in her hand. But she drew back from her weakness, as one who comes suddenly to the edge of a precipice. Drat the youth and his bravado! Could heroics give her back her son? Nay, she must be steadfast.

But, withal, she did not surrender a secret hope, and so she sat behind her lattice. When he passed in the street below her at midnight, she crept out upon the balcony and threw him a lily stem. This time he halted and, seeing her, he smiled insolently and would have been on his way had she not called softly:

"O valiant On Yick, can it be that thy mother has kept silent as to what I purpose? If not, then let me plead with thee to be gone. For I am a woman, and I have been a mother, and I would preserve the honor of my house and thy life also."

He looked at her, pityingly, and he answered:

"Would you have me less courageous than thy son? Fled he from danger?"

She bent lower, so that not even the night could hear her whisper:

"They flee who are warned."

"As he was."

"What say you?"

"Did not my own lips whisper the truth of what they purposed?"

"Nay, they were not seemly. A man does not betray his tong thus lightly."

"I AM of a younger generation. To me friendship comes first. And thy son was my friend. Did we not sit in school together? And share our cocoanut strips on feast days? How, then, should I let them plot his ruin unwarned?"

"Why did you not come to me? Perhaps I could have persuaded him."

He shook his head. "As my mother persuaded me? Nay, thy son was worthy of the mother who bore him!"

"But you say: 'I am of a younger generation?' What to you remains then of all this ancient folly?"

"Pride remains, O worthy mother! Else you would not lean thus upon your balcony to persuade me to cowardice for the honor of thy house."

She put her hand to her side. "Nay," she cried softly, "pride is dead. And you have killed it! Thus am I, for the third time, bereft!"

The quarter humming with released tension. It appears that everything has been settled. For has not the widow of Hung Gow three unwed daughters, and is not money needful in her condition? So runs the official record.

But, as usual, there are other whisperings abroad, whispers that grow into loud confirmations. Wan Lee is at heart compassionate, a benefactress, the money to her is naught but a symbol of a slate wiped clean. Do any doubt this? Then remember that she was the wife of Hung Gow and well-trained in honor. The story leaps the confines of the quarter. Strangers applaud; the name of Wan Lee becomes, for a day, famous. A woman, single-handed, routing tradition!

Streams of visitors appear, knocking at her wicket; emissaries from the Six Companies; an official from the foreign government; On Wo Low, himself, concealing a fan in his old-fashioned coatsleeve; his wife, teetering between her daughters-in-law, bearing gifts, as before; Shoo Shee, smirking. But to none of these does the door fly open.

Only when comes a slender figure up the stairs does Wan Lee so much as stir from her chair. Between the rifts in her lattice she sees youth tapping, and, at that moment, in the kind blur of dusk, it might be her own son beating against her heart for entrance.

And so she admits him.

Exiled Chinese Emperor Wants to Visit America

Mr. Henry Pu Yi, as He Calls Himself, Hopes to Find in the West a Remedy for the Woes of His Troubled Country.

By M. W. CHILDS
of the Post-Dispatch Staff

THE Emperor without an empire, the lonely exile who calls himself "Mr. Henry Pu Yi," but who was once Manchu Lord of Ten Thousand Years and 400,000,000 subjects, wants to come to the United States.

Now a young man of 21, Mr. Henry Pu Yi, who was once Emperor of China, is tired of war and war lords, communist intrigues and imperialistic diplomacy. For the past few years, with his two wives and his sadly dwindled retinue, he has lived under the protection of the Japanese legation at Tien-Tsin.

For long this scholarly young man with the face of a prophet and the tastes and desires of an Oxford graduate has pondered on the problems of his country. Having studied under the most learned tutors, English and Chinese, and having mastered political science, philosophy and history, the ex-Emperor on the very threshold of a world that seems to have no place for him has expressed his desire to seek in the West the answer to the question that has given him much concern: What can I do for China?

In a letter to a friend in this country a member of the Emperor's household recently expressed his majesty's desire as follows:

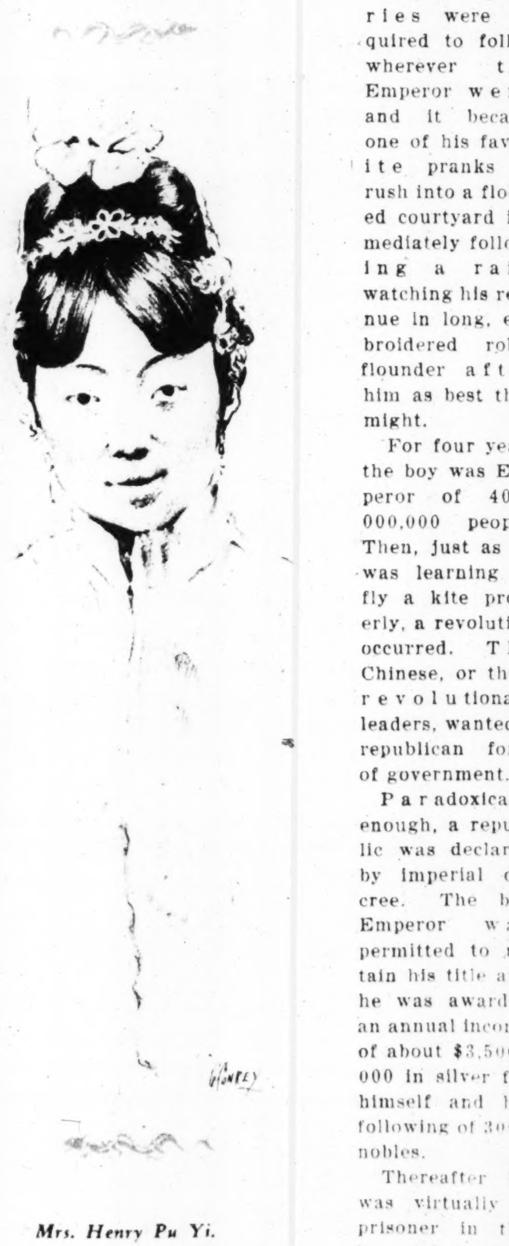
"The Emperor wants to meet President Coolidge and ask his advice as to what he should do for China."

According to friends of the Emperor in this country he regards the President of the United States as a symbol of Western genius.

"An astrologer in whom he has much confidence assures him that the visit to America would bring good luck," the court servitor added, revealing that the young Emperor has not entirely divorced himself from the superstition of ancient China. "His Majesty has been told he would be the first Emperor to set foot in the United States; that both Napoleons wished to do so, but were disappointed."

On several occasions in the past the Emperor, who was given the name of Hsuan Tung at his accession to the throne, has expressed a desire to visit this country. On one such occasion in 1925 United States Government officials indicated that there would be no difficulty as to his admission should he seek to make such a visit.

In an interview with an English journalist recently he made his own position clear as follows:



Mrs. Henry Pu Yi.

"I never wish to be Emperor again. It is no sinecure but a great responsibility to be an Emperor or a King today. A good Emperor or King must be the representative and the father of his people.

"I am not good enough to be the father of the people of China, not fit enough morally or mentally.

"If there should come a time again—and I am sure it will come, once we have a united China—that an Emperor is called to the throne once more, someone else must go, a greater man than I am. I want to help China as an ordinary man or a statesman."

Much of the misfortune which has almost constantly dogged the footsteps of the Emperor of the Chinese is ascribed to his birth. He was born on the thirteenth day of the first moon, supposedly a very unlucky day. So unlucky that by official decree his birthday was celebrated on the fourteenth of the first moon instead of on the proper day.

Before he was three years old Pu Yi was made Emperor of China and given the name of Hsuan Tung, which, as nearly as it can be translated, means "General Proclamation," a name which it was hoped would bring good luck.

The coronation ceremony was long and impressive. A robe, heavily embroidered with jewels, was placed upon the child. Without faltering he walked alone across the enormous throne room and mounted the dragon throne.

The whole court prostrated themselves before the Son of Heaven. Thousands of Manchu nobles bowed before him and a fanfare of drums, bells and firecrackers burst forth. Only then did the imperial dignity break and little Hsuan Tung began to cry.

His father, Prince Chun, was named regent, to serve until the child Emperor should reach maturity. There began a series of intrigues that have never ceased. Several persons at the court wanted to gain power. Foremost was Princess Yenahola.

She sought to work out her plan by bringing the boy Emperor under her control. One day she took him to her apartments in the palace and thereafter she never let him out of her sight.

FOR a long time, until he was threatened by a serious illness, his mother was forbidden to see him. To save the life of the Emperor, Princess Yenahola permitted mother and son to see each other for a few hours each day in the presence of the Princess.

He lived with 3000 to 4000 of his Manchu followers in the imperial city at Pekin. Even in the imperial city there were certain spots that his sacred feet might not touch and he was always followed by a train of eunuchs who lifted him over unconsecrated ground.

Court dignitaries were required to follow wherever the Emperor went, and it became one of his favorite pranks to rush into a flooded courtyard immediately following a rain, watching his retinue in long, embroidered robes flounder after him as best they might.

For four years the boy was Emperor of 400,000,000 people. Then, just as he was learning to fly a kite properly, a revolution occurred. The Chinese, or their revolutionary leaders, wanted a republican form of government.

Paradoxically enough, a republic was declared by imperial decree. The boy Emperor was permitted to retain his title and he was awarded an annual income of about $3,500,000 in silver for himself and his following of 3000 nobles.

Thereafter he was virtually a prisoner in the imperial city. But never for a moment did the pomp and ceremony relax. His official status was that of a "foreign Emperor."

Quite early Hsuan Tung began to show that he had a mind of his own. When the court split over the question of an English tutor, he decided the issue himself. Again, when the question of spectacles arose, Hsuan won out. It was a question of spectacles or his eyesight, and over the protests of his courtiers, who argued that a Manchu had never before worn such a barbarous device, Hsuan broke the precedent.

The few Americans who penetrated the rigid circle of court etiquette reported that Hsuan Tung seemed to be rather a lonely little chap. He had absorbed just enough Western ideas from his English tutor, the distinguished scholar, R. F. Johnston, to be dissatisfied with his lot. He wanted to travel, to see the world, to play with boys his own age. And he was cooped up in a palace which was really a prison.

He wanted to learn to ride a bicycle, and again he won out against precedent. When the President of the republic asked him what gift he would like, he did not ask for jade ornaments, as his ancestors would have done. He requested a portable typewriter.

Mr. Henry Pu Yi.

At 16 it was decided he should marry. He had already singled out the object of his love from a photograph, a girl of noble birth but without money. The Manchu nobles said that this could never be. He must marry into a wealthy family, since the republic had failed to give him his annual income. Hsuan Tung would not be moved by their pleas. Finally a way out was found. He married the girl of his own choice, and she was given the title of "Eastern Consort." Then, on the following evening, he married the wealthy Manchu girl who had been selected for him.

The arrangement was entirely satisfactory. He loved the wife of his choice and he honored the wife of his nobles' choice. To the latter he gave the name Elizabeth, having learned that it was the custom for all monarchs to have a single titular name. He took the name of Henry.

Henry and Elizabeth did not rule over their mock empire for long. One attempt had been made during the war to restore his empire to him, inspired, it is said, by the German Government. For five days, backed by a General with an army, he had been actual as well as nominal Emperor, and then again he had retired into obscurity in the imperial city. There were rumors that other attempts were to be made to re-establish the monarchy.

Then one day representatives of the latest revolutionary faction came to the palace and told Henry and Elizabeth that they could no longer occupy the imperial city. They were given a few hours to leave their luxurious quarters. The two, with a few of their followers, fled to the Japanese legation for protection.

LIFE is not too monotonous for him. He is still a pale, slight youth. His long, oval face has usually a wistful cast, his intimates say. He has large, dreamy eyes and a slender nose. Manchu eyes are not uptilted like those of their Chinese kin. He speaks and reads both English and French readily.

If he comes to America in the fall it is reported that he will leave behind him both his wives after the Chinese custom. He will travel with only two or three attendants. And it is said that if he once gets away he will be content with nothing less than a trip around the world.

Whether he will be able to raise the money to come, is still a question. But it is certain that he is growing more bold with each taste of freedom.

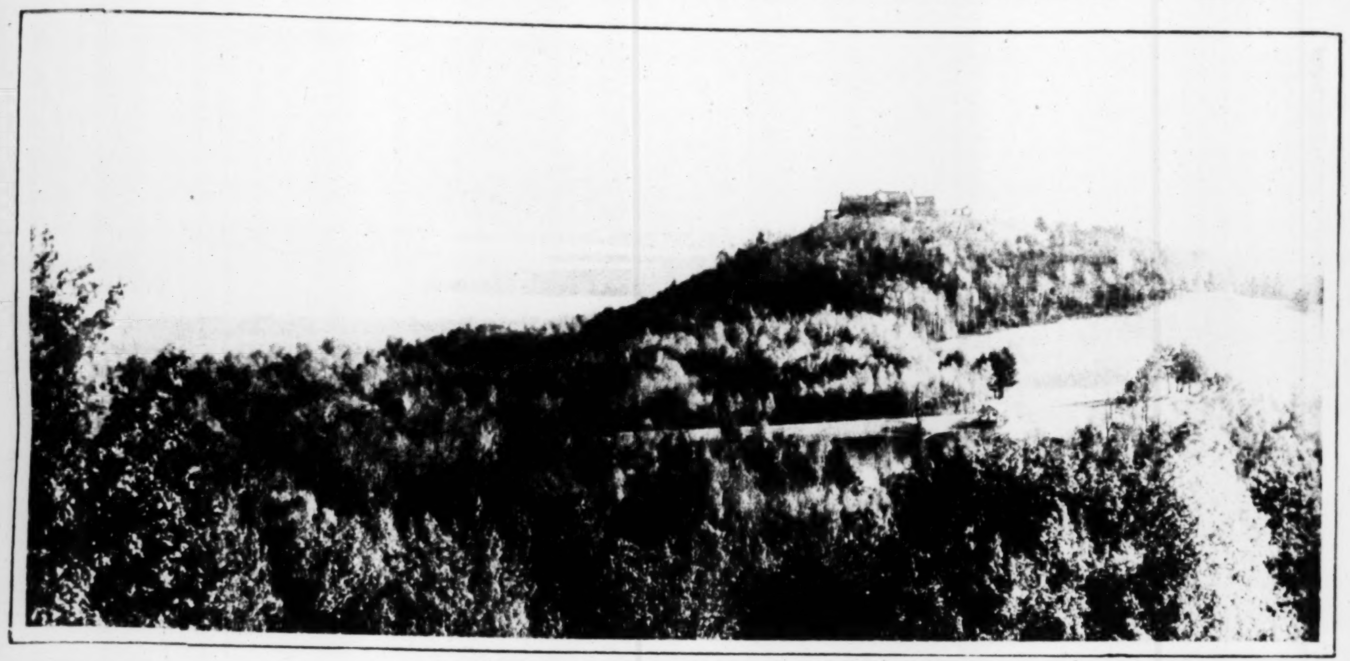
A Mountain and Lake Estate—Six Thousand Three Hundred Acres



"LUCKNOW"

LUCKNOW is a country home for a man of big thoughts and ideas who can enjoy big things in a big way; a man who wants to make it possible for his family to spend long, happy summers and autumns in the open, close to nature, where they can enjoy within the limits of their own property every conceivable healthful outdoor sport.

Such a man and his family want something more, something richer and better than the artificial, hectic life of the suburb, or of the fashionable summer resort. They appreciate the comfort and freedom and privacy of a real home; the purity and tonic effect of the pine-scented mountain air; the joy of living their own lives in their own way, free from interference and intrusion of close neighbors. They want a conveniently accessible location, but independence and seclusion as well. And all this LUCKNOW has to offer.

In the heart of New Hampshire, on the southern slope of the Ossipee Mountains, lies Lucknow, a magnificent estate of 6,300 acres, extending from the summit of the mountains to the north shore of Lake Winnipesaukee and bordering the lake for a mile and a half.

Midway between the lake, one of the most beautiful in the country, and the crest of the mountains, on a hilltop 800 feet above Lake Winnipesaukee is located the house, commanding on all sides views of incomparable beauty, majesty and inspiration. The natural setting of the house, with its background of lofty mountains; the immediate environment of rolling plateaus, shaded valleys, streams and falls running through rocky gorges; the mile upon mile of wooded drives and bridle paths, and finally the far-flung vistas across the lake that stretches 24 miles off into the distance—provides a general assembling of natural beauty acknowledged by world travelers to be without equal.

Within this private domain await all outdoor sports, both summer and winter; riding, driving, golf and tennis, canoeing, hunting, fishing, bathing, motor boating, shooting, skating, snowshoeing, skiing, sleighing and tobogganing. Moreover, although there are no near neighbors to interfere with one's privacy, there is within fifteen minutes the congenial companionship of the Bald Peak Club Colony—an exclusive summer colony of country lovers, where all outdoor sports and social intercourse may be had when desired.

The house is in perfect condition and built to continue so for centuries, being constructed of stone and hand-hewn oak, with inside walls of hollow tile, and erected upon the solid ledge of the hilltop.

A large house organ by the Aeolian Company occupies a space 21 feet deep, 12 feet wide and 13 feet high, with an echo organ in the attic of the house.

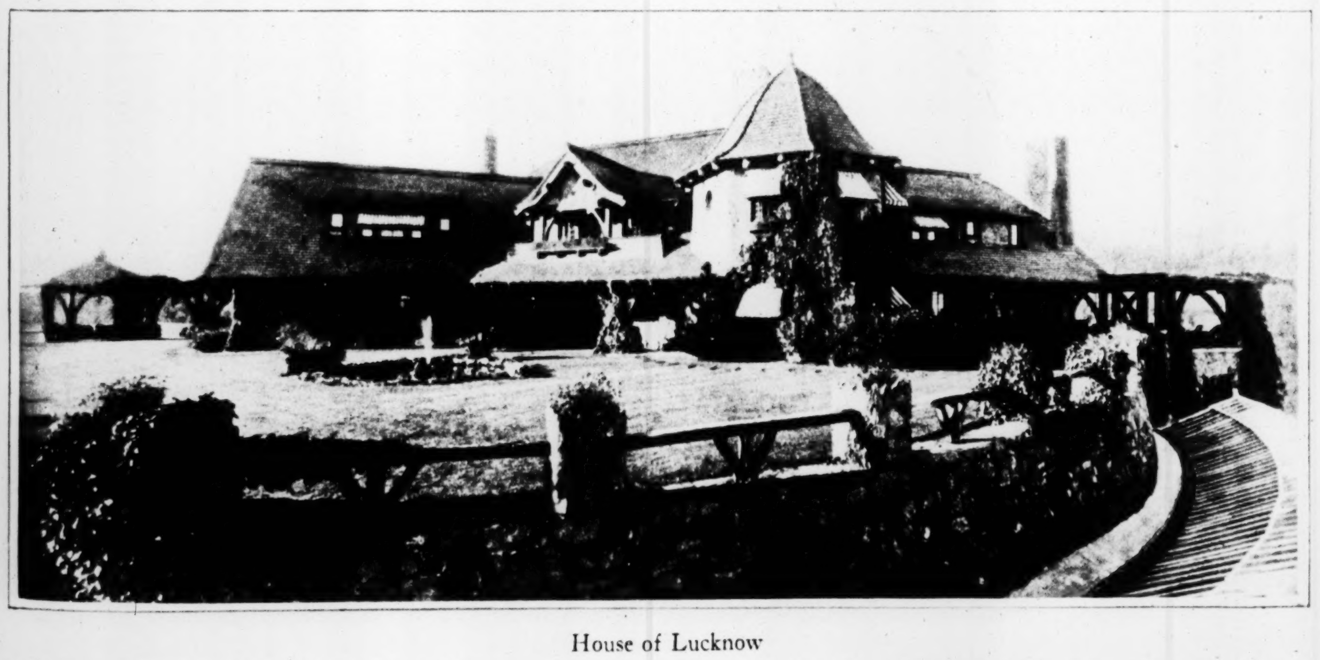
There is a large garage and stable and a well-equipped house for the help. There are also two gate lodges, and all these buildings are built of stone and equipped with running water and baths.

There is a well-equipped boathouse on Lake Winnipesaukee to care for large motor boats, canoes, rowboats and fishing boats. There is a private wooded road of four miles leading to the boathouse. There are roads running via two valleys up the mountains to the topmost peak 3,000 feet high, from which can be had extensive views of the surrounding country for a radius of 75 miles.



House of Lucknow

Shannon Lake

Below the house and within five minutes' walk is Shannon Lake, which empties into Shannon Brook, which flows through the estate for more than two miles.

The Life for Boy and Girl

WHAT a life for the boy and girl, to spend many months each year in nature's environments; not a life of narrow limits, but one of the widest scope with nature in all its varieties; furthermore with all this boundless freedom of the vast woodlands, meadows and pastures, they are yet within their own domain under the watchful care and guidance of their parents.

Such a life for the young will result in strong robust bodies, clean normal minds and a broader view of life, laying a sound foundation for better men and women than is possible by any other mode of living.

What an asset to start in the world with—a healthy strong body and a clean normal mind! What is there that can be done for young people that can equal it? What matters the cost to accomplish this? Give your boy and girl your companionship during their vacation season and make your estate the summer playground of their friends.

TONIGHT—try something new. . . . Instead of selecting a hot drink, ice up several bottles of "Canada Dry" and serve with your dinner.

You will feel cooler the minute you see this fine old ginger ale sparkling on the table. Then, as you drink, you will realize that it is more than just a pleasing flavor. You will find that it is more refreshing and invigorating than any other beverage you have ever tasted.

The reason is simply because "Canada Dry" is a real "dry" ginger ale made from the highest-grade Jamaica ginger instead of the capsicum (red pepper) which is used in so many ordinary ginger ales.

Try it tonight and note the zest and sparkle it adds to even the simplest dinner. Your family will welcome the change from the usual day-after-day menu and appetite will be keener just because of it.

Dinner isn't "just another meal" when you serve "Canada Dry," but something to look forward to and remember.

Such as Women Never Knew Before
Peace-of-Mind . . . Comfort . . . Immaculacy

This New Way is Changing the Hygienic Habits of Millions — Now Positive Protection, Plus an End to the Problem of Disposal

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Registered Nurse

YOU wear gayest, sheerest gowns without fear; you meet every social and business exactment in peace-of-mind and comfort, this new way.

It supplants the hazards and uncertainties of the old-time "sanitary pad" with protection that is absolute. Millions of women are flocking to its use.

The name is Kotex. Doctors urge it. Nurses employ it. Women find in it the scientific solution of their oldest hygienic problem. Its use will make a great difference in your life.

What Kotex is Unknown a few years ago, 8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have discarded the insecure "sanitary pads" of yesterday and adopted Kotex.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, Kotex absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture. It is 5 times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad. It discards easily as tissue. No laundry—no embarrassment of disposal.

It also thoroughly deodorizes, and thus ends all fear of offending.

Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex

It is the only sanitary napkin embodying the super-absorbent Cellucotton wadding. It is the only napkin made by this company.

See that you get the genuine Kotex at better drug and department stores everywhere simply by saying "Kotex." Comes in sanitary sealed packages of 12 in two sizes, the Regular and Kotex-Super. Supplied also through vending cabinets in rest-rooms by West Disinfecting Co.

Kotex Company, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Easy Disposal
and 2 other important factors

① Disposed of as easily as tissue. No laundry.

KOTEX REGULAR
65c per dozen

KOTEX-SUPER

TURKISH & DOMESTIC BLEND CIGARETTES

There's always enjoyment in Camels

MODERN smokers have a particular taste that requires the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos, and they find them in Camels. They are pleased only with the blend that yields a perfect smoothness and mildness. They find this blend in Camels.

In fact, there is always enjoyment when modern smokers and Camels get together. Created and blended to the modern standard of quality, Camel is more than a choice. It is favorite in this hard-to-please age. Camel is the new-day word for smoking pleasure.

And what a sense of security there is in Camel. Back of it are the resources of the largest tobacco organization in America. The money to search out the choicest tobaccos. The skill to balance and blend for taste and fragrance. For never-failing enjoyment, we invite you—

I'D BETTER GET ALL THE OPEN AIR NOW I CAN — FOR I'M LIABLE TO GET MINE FILTERED THROUGH IRON BARS FOR A WHILE!
YOU CAN SEE WHAT HAPPENED TO THIS OLD ESTATE—THE UPKEEP WENT UP AND THE INCOME RAN OUT!
I THINK I CAN SELL MYSELF THE IDEA OF TAKING A SWIM! IT'S HOT—I'M HOTTER—THE WATER'S COOL—AND IT'S MILES TO THE NEAREST NOWHERE!
FATHER MAN'S DONE A LOT OF WONDERFUL THINGS, BUT HE NEVER MADE A BATHING SUIT AS GOOD AS MOTHER NATURE!
OGEEGOSH!
"HE OUG THIS CANE THAT HAT!"
AH, MY DEAR ALBERTUS, THIS PROSPECT IS A PERFECT PASTORAL!
YES, CADWALLADER—POSSIBLY WE MAY FIND OURSELVES CONTIGUOUS TO SOME RARE SPECIMENS HERE!
LUDICROUS STATUARY—HAVE I EVER READ YOU MY MONOGRAPH ON PRIMITIVE SCULPTURE?
NO—LET US DISCUSS IT WHILE REFRESHING OURSELVES WITH IMMERSION IN YONDER STREAM!
ISN'T THAT AN ATROCIOUS STATUE! SO OUT OF PROPORTION—SO POORLY DONE—SO UGLY!
I CAN HARDLY SEE IT WITHOUT MY GLASSES, BUT IT CERTAINLY IS GROTESQUE!
ELLA'S CLOTHES
THIS MAY NOT HOLD IT'S OWN AS A STATUE, BUT IT'LL HOLD OURS AS A CLOTHES RACK! HEE! HEE!
THEN IT IS ONE OF THE USEFUL ARTS! HA! HA!
MY CLOTHES—GONE!
THIS WATER IS INSUFFICIENTLY THERMOGENIC—I SHALL BE GLAD TO DON MY RAIMENT!
PRECISELY—IT'S REALLY CONDUCIVE TO CIRCULATORY CESSATION!
FOR MAKING NASTY REMARKS ABOUT ME, THOSE TWO COMIC VALENTINES CAN WHISTLE FOR THEIR CLOTHES UNTIL MINE DRY IN THE BREEZE! I'M ONE STATUE THAT HAS A COME-BACK AT COMMENTATORS!
